Excellent Program is Reported in Y.M.C.A. Membership Drive.

Excellent progress is being made in the annual Y.M.C.A. membership campaign according to reports made by the campaign generals and their staff officers at the first report meeting of the drive last night. With the objective set at 600, the recruiting of 130 members during the first couple of days was reported.

Mathews and "Adjutant" R. M. Glover while Division B is commanded by "Major" J. H. Vernor and "Adjutant" Charles Lacheur.

Division B was accorded first honors last night, having secured 70 members for a total of 2,010 points. Division A reported 60 members and 1,956 points. The team captained by Graham Eastwood was singled out for special mention for having scored a possible—signing up 21 members on 21 calls.

Team captains are as follows: Fred Hills, A. E. Dryland, Rus Kitchen, Graham Eastwood, Jack Clayton, Jack Archibald and Vern Janeway in Division A and A. R. Piper, S. G. Payne, Roy White, George Nichols, Gord. McIntyre, Fred Williams and Cliff Boate in Division B. The campaign began last Friday and will continue until next Monday evening. Ross Dobbin, Y.M.C.A. president, held the chair last night.

Fine reports are coming in also on the junior membership campaign, a twoweek drive which will be concluded on Saturday. The junior objective is 300 members and the young campaign workers have already reported 150. Every hope is held that the objective will be reached before the end of the week. The public is giving the campaigners fine support.

Barn Blaze Laid To Boy's Revenge

ORILLIA, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP)—Fire which destroyed the barn of Mars Middleton resulted from a nine-year-old lad's desire for revenge on a companion who struck him and his sister, Police Chief A. L. Church said to-day, in revealing investigations of an inspector from the Fire Marshal's Department, Toronto.

The barn was owned by relatives of the boy accused of the assault. Chief Church said. The chief, detailing the boy's alleged confession, declared, "He said he got three matches, then went to the barn, lighted one, and dropped it on hay which had been stored there."

A FADING COURSE.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Sept. 27 (CP). — In response to pleas of 2,000 fraternity men, the University of Illinois offered a home economics course for them last year. The enrollmen was large. This year only three have signed up and the course will be dropped unless more interest is shown. School officials do not know whether the food or the course was hardest to digest.

NAZI PRISONERS ARE NOT COWED BY THE ALLEGED MALTREATMENT

Communism Spreads Under Suppressive Measures—Men in Custody Crippled.

GIVE RED SALUTE.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN.
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

PARIS, Sept. 27.—The great majority of the men in the concentration camps in Germany remain unbroken in spirit in spite of months of unrelenting cruelty and in many cases inhuman treatment. Tens of thousands of them who believed in social reform by parliamentary means when they entered the prisons, have become determined revolutionaries. Communism is spreading like a prairie fire in Germany. The effect of the suppressive measures by the Hitler government is having the very opposite of what they were expected to achieve. The Nazi authorities are faced with a silent, invisible, unseizable opposition as no government ever before. The Communists have built up an underground apparatus which functions with German thoroughness. It has no less than 500 clandestine printing presses and although the heaviest punishment is meted out to any one caught distributing illegal literature, the circulation of Red newspapers in Germany is now greater by several hundreds of thousands than it was before Hitler's coming to power and when their sale was unrestricted.

This information I have from M. Stefan Priacel celebrated French writer, who belongs to no political party, but who undertook a two months' trip of investigation in the Reich. M. Priacel was assisted by the Nazi authorities in his inquiries, who were so certain of the favorable impressions the "New Germany" made on him, that Dr. Goebbels, the propaganda minister, allowed him to visit the concentration camp at Oranienburg, something which no foreigner has been permitted so far, except in large groups and after due preparations were made at the camp to "receive" and "impress" the visitors.

"Twisted by Accident"

M. Priacel gave me a description of his interviews with prisoners in Oranienburg. "I arrived there after the mid-day meal," he said, "when the prisoners were returning to work. I noticed that a large number of them limped. 'Why do these men limp so badly?' I asked the commandant, who never left my side for a moment during the entire inspection. 'Why do they limp? That's very simple . . . I will tell you why they limp,' the commandant replied. 'Yesterday they made a march of forty kilometers. We had, of course, placed trucks at their disposal, but these fellows were so glad to be outside that they refused to ride. Of course today they have sore feet' . . . I said nothing," went on M. Priacel, "but noticing an old man, whose foot was horribly swollen and completely turned sideways, I asked: 'And this old man, is that leg also due to yesterday's march?' The commandant had not lost his presence of mind.

"' Come here, you,' he shouted at the tottering man. 'Here is a foreign writer who thinks we beat you here; just tell him it is not so and that you have twisted your leg by accident. Tell him that we look well after you!'

"The man stood still at attention. His face was twisted with pain. He looked me straight in the eyes. And then in a voice without color, like an automaton, he repeated the words of the commandant: 'I have not been beaten. I have twisted my foot by accident. I am well looked after!' The man was thereupon sent back to the ranks.

"I asked the commandant," Priacel said, "if it was not possible to talk to the prisoners alone. This produced some embarrassment and the commandant consulted the official of the propaganda bureau who had accompanied me. Finally after a few moments talking aside, the commandant replied: 'But they won't have anything interesting to tell you, they are only working-class people.'

"'Have you no intellectuals here?' I asked,'" went on M. Priacel, "for I wanted to make certain the Nazi authorities could not say later that I had had every request granted.

"'Intellectuals? No, we have no intellectuals,' replied the commandant (there are in reality hundreds of the foremost writers and economists held captive in Oranienburg). 'Still, we will see!' The commandant called over a sentinel. 'Go and get me an intellectual. Do you know what that is? Pick one out among that gang of ruffians.' 'Yes, heil Hitler!' replied the sentinel.

"Tell—" Said the Commandant

"While we stood talking," M. Priacel continued, "the sentinel brought us up a man. A young fellow he was. He carried his head high and on his face lay that expression of calm which is the mark of physically strong men, a very sympathetic face. He stood at attention. 'Here is a writer', the commandant said to him, 'who wants to talk to you.'

"Our brief dialogue was to begin," M. Priacel said. "Everything I could tell him was dangerous, not for me personally, I ran no risk at all, but for him whose every move was watched by the commandant. I did not want to be a provocateur under any circumstances. I hesitated a moment and then trying to put in my looks the maximum possible amount of sympathy, I said I was a writer from Paris and that I had come to investigate conditions at Oranienburg. At the word 'Paris' a half-smile flashed into the prisoner's face, but he quickly suppressed it. The prisoners know full well that Paris is the centre of the political emigration and that it is also the headquarters of the groups who battle for them.

"'How are you getting along?' Mr. Priacel asked the prisoner.

"'Personally I am as you see me, but' . . .

"'But what? But what' the commandant interrupted, "don't you understand what the gentleman asks you? He wants to know what you are doing. He doesn't care a damn about your health. Tell him that you have been to see the exposition and a film . . . Yes, sir,' went on the commandant, 'those rascals go to see films.'

"The man stood still at attention. Then just as automatically as the fellow with the twisted foot, he repeated: 'We have been to the Brown exposition. We were shown a film.'

"I asked him his profession," M. Priacel went on, "'I am a functionary of the Communist party,' he said. What is that?' thundered the commandant. 'Functionary of the Communist party? But that is not a profession! Tell him you are a shipwright!'

"The prisoner looked me straight into the eyes, but said nothing.

"I asked if I might know the prisoner's name," Stefan Priacel went on. "This was refused.

"Revolutionary Greeting"

"I was shown a third prisoner. This fellow is going to be released tomorrow', I was told. 'He used to be secretary of a Catholic club.'

"'Aren't you glad you are going home?' the commandant asked him.

"The man did not answer.

"'You see, the pig dog doesn't even answer. Why didn't you tell us,' the commandant turned himself to the prisoner, 'that you had ten children at home. We wouldn't have kept you here sixteen months!' All at once the man began to shake violently and a dry sob came out of him. His terrified eyes were turned to the commandant.

"'When I went away," Mr. Priacel concluded, "we passed the drill grounds. Just as I was mounting in the automobile I could see the mass of prisoners standing at attention. The Nazi drillers stood looking at the car and they had their backs turned to the men. The commandant was talking to me. He did not see what happened on the field. But I saw," M. Priacel added. "And what I saw was this: Every one of the prisoners lifted his right hand and clenched his fist. It was obvious that they made a sign to me. Later I learned that this is revolution-greeting and that it means: 'Red Front!'" he said.

CO-OPERATIVES OPPOSE PRICE FIXING PLANS

Means More People in Distributive Trades Than Needed for Best Service.

CUT BUYING POWER.

Claim Majority of Societies Able to Show Surplus Even in Present Times.

TORONTO, Sept. 27 — (CP) — Opposition to any policy of price regulation because it would add more people to the distributive trades than are necessary to provide a satisfactory and economical service and thus reduce purchasing power of the consumer was contained to-day in the executive report submitted to the 25th congress of the Co-operative Union of Canada over the signature of W. C. Good, Paris, Ont., president, and George Keen, Brantford, secretary.

Should any such policy be adopted, the report said, co-operators in every province must see that, as in the United States, no code or price-fixing regulation shall debar co-operative societies from returning savings effected for their members.

The report contended the organized co-operative movement in Canada is passing through the present period of economic stress with greater success than the private trade with which it is in competition and the majority of societies are able to show a net surplus.

Some Figures.

Retail societies comprise the greater part of the membership, 21 of them reporting aggregate sales of $2,719,312, but a sales volume decrease of $229,062 from 1932. The retail societies had a 1933 membership of 10,100, an increase of 1,264 over the 27 societies reporting for last year. Total membership of reporting affiliated societies was placed at 10,497. Additional membership was made up as follows: Marketing, 50; dairy, 73; bus transportation, 275.

In addition, the report noted two wholesale societies with a membership of 88 local associations and the Manitoba pool elevators which had 150 local elevator associations linked with it. Also, the report pointed out, the aggregate membership of the organized co-operative movement in Canada is exclusive of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan Section, Ltd., of three retail societies, one wholesale society and two dairy organizations. Membership in the union also includes the Co-operative Wholesale Society (England) and the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society, Ltd.

During the first six months of 1934 retail sales were $71,996 more than for the corresponding period of the previous year, the report stated.

Of the societies handling milk and milk products, only one failed to report. It indicated turnover of $166,063. Also, the distributive department of a reporting marketing society had sales of $27,016. This brought the total volume of the retail trade to $2,941,292.

$3,244,481 Turnover

Total distributive turnover, wholesale and retail was $3,244,481. With marketing society and sales of a milk distributive undertaking added the total would be $3,466,562. This volume, the report pointed out, does not include the marketing operations of societies affiliated with the union, two of which are in business on a large scale. It is also exclusive of the Rossland Co-operative Transportation Society which had receipts of $10,920.

Ten societies failed to meet expenses in 1933, compared with a similar number the previous year. Aggregate loss of these societies was $3,006, against $6,491 in 1932.

Dividends on the purchases of their members were declared by 15 retail societies, three more than last year. In one case there was a dividend on sales. Total amount of purchase dividends distributed by the 15 societies was $80,219, lower by $30,910 than the amount distributed by 12 societies in 1932.

THE SHINE IS STILL THERE

If it's a "NUGGET" Shine!

You can't keep mud and dust from spattering on your shoes now and then. But you can keep a polish on the leather that comes up bright and shining again at the touch of a brush or cloth. That's just one of the things "Nugget" is famous for.

Another is the great protection it gives to shoe leather. There's really nothing quite like "Nugget" for waterproofing shoes, keeping the leather soft and pliable, durable and neat-looking months longer than you would expect.

BRITISH DOORS BEFORE BOARD

United Kingdom's Application for Duty Removal Meets Oppostion.

MARKET FLOODING FEARED.

OTTAWA, Sept. 27. (CP)— The Tariff Board to-day concluded its hearing of the application submitted by the Timber Trade Federation of the United Kingdom for removal of the Customs duty on certain types of wooden doors. The application was opposed by the Eastern Canada Door Association.

For the United Kingdom producers, K. S. Greene of Ottawa declared that the articles to which attention was directed were of the "all flush" or hospital door and the "single panel" variety. His principals were not concerned with the standard types. He produced figures to show that British exports of doors to Canada had dwindled from more than $500,000 annually to almost nothing between 1928 and 1934. At the same time Canadian exports to the United Kingdom had risen from $10,000 to nearly $500,000 in the same period.

A. L. Bennett, for the Canadian manufacturers, declared the British firms were working to capacity to supply their home market, due to the construction boom caused by the national housing scheme. In Canada no such conditions existed, with the result that Canadian factories were operating from 25 per cent. to 40 per cent. capacity.

He feared that if the British boom subsided and Canadian activity increased, the result of removing the duty would be to flood this country with British-made doors.

SHIP'S SMOKE DETECTOR CUT OFF FROM BRIDGE

NEW YORK, Sept. 27. —(AP)— The smoke detector system on the Morro Castle was cut off from the bridge because the stench of wet hides stored in one of the holds was too foul, the board of inquiry into the burning of the luxury liner has been told.

The air, pumped from the holds by the detector to spread smoke on the bridge as a warning of fire, was shunted to the outer air where it could not be smelled, First Officer Ivan Freeman told the board. This forced the pilot house occupants to rely upon seeing smoke in the wall tubes.

The change, Freeman testified yesterday, was made on command of Captain Robert Wilmott.

Launching of "Queen Mary" Recalls Tragedy of 1898

CLYDEBANK, Sept. 27 — (C. P. Cable).—The successful launching of the giant liner Queen Mary by the Queen yesterday recalled a tragic launching at which she christened the H.M.S. Albion in 1898, when she was Duchess of York.

The public swarmed all over the yard at Blackwall on that occasion and as the 12,500-ton battleship slid into the water it displaced a huge wave which submerged a staging, 50 persons being carried away by a flood tide and drowned.

ALMOST THREE CITY BLOCKS LONG

If the hull of the new Cunard - White Star liner the "Queen Mary" launched on the Clyde yesterday by Her Majesty the Queen could be placed on George street, its length would extend practically three blocks. The overall length of the liner is 1018 feet and the length of each block in the business section of George street is 334 feet. Roughly speaking the liner would occupy the entire length of space between The Examiner office and The Capitol Theatre, although the width of George street inclusive of the sidewalks would not be nearly wide enough. The vessel has a beam of 118 feet and a depth from the keel to the highest point of the superstructure of 135 feet.

The Weather

TORONTO, Sept. 27.—(C.P.) — Synopsis: Pressure is high on the Pacific Coast and over the greater portion of the United States, also over the lower Mackenzie Valley, while a fairly deep depression is moving eastward over Ungava with a trough extending southward to the Lower Lake region and another fairly deep disturbance covers Manitoba. Showers and thunder storms have been general over Ontario and Western Quebec and a few light scattered showers have occurred in the western and Maritime provinces. It continues warm from the Ottawa Valley eastward but has become much cooler over western and northern districts of Ontario. The weather has been a little milder in Alberta and Saskatchewan but continues cold in Manitoba.

Lake Region and Georgian Bay—Fresh to strong west to north-west winds; cloudy and cooler with some showers. Friday: Fresh to strong westerly winds; fair and much cooler.

Northern Ontario—Northwest to west winds; mostly cloudy and cool to-day and Friday with scattered showers.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley— Fresh southwest to west winds with occasional rain; cooler to-night. Friday: Fresh to strong west and northerly winds; mostly fair and much cooler.

PROBE BEAVERTON DEATH AFTER COTTAGE BURNS

BEAVERTON, Ont., Sept. 27.—(C.P.)—Dr. E. R. Frankish, Ontario medico-legal expert, to-day continued an investigation into the death of Charles Leake of Toronto after finding the man died of a fractured skull before fire destroyed the cottage in which his body was found.

Dr. Frankish testified at an inquest last night that Leake was dead before his body was burned. He was unable to determine what had discharged cartridges in two chambers of a revolver found in the ruins of the cottage, although he said the man's skull fracture might have been caused by a bullet.

He said two cartridges with percussion caps missing might have been discharged by the firing pin of the weapon, but that he was sure those in the remaining four chambers of the pistol had been discharged by heat.

The inquest will be resumed Oct. 3.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

IRISH FREE STATE OPPOSITION BADLY SPLIT IN THREE SECTIONS

Gen. O'Duffy Again Nails Colors to Masthead Despite Cosgrave.

INTENDS TO STAY.

DUBLIN, Sept. 27 (CP-Havas).—The Irish Fee State official opposition group to-day split three ways and threatened to go to pieces.

General Owen O'Duffy, whose recent resignation from the main body apparently was made to avert a split, came back to nail his colors to the masthead of the militant section, thereby precipitating crisis.

O'Duffy had been replaced as head of the party by William Cosgrave, former Premier of the Irish Free State, and as Director General of the Blue-shirt "League of Youth," the party's militant division, by Commandant Cronin.

To-day, at Cork, he vigorously denied he had resigned from the "League of Youth" at all. Cronin, he said, had published an undated, unsigned resignation entrusted to him.

Thus Cosgrave, Cronin, and O'Duffy were at political daggers drawn as leaders of warring divisions of the League of Youth.

Council Called.

Cosgrave announced he would call a meeting of the Central Council of the League of Youth next Saturday.

"I am Director-General of the League of Youth until removed in accordance with the constitution and the appointment of Commandant Cronin to the position is null and void," O'Duffy said.

"I resigned from the Fine Gael (political section of the United Ireland Party) because I could not find agreement on national policy, on the position in regard to the North of Ireland, nor on the land annuity question. Neither could I agree with the policy proposed in regard to the control of the League of Youth by the political section of the United Ireland Party."

Plan Settlement Welsh Mine Strike

LONDON, Sept. 27 (AP)—Two plans for a settlement of the threatened walkout of 140,000 South Wales miners, Oct. 1, were laid before representatives of the miners and the mine owners at a joint conference to-day by Ernest Brown, secretary of the Department of Mines.

Both sides were urged either to agree on the appointment of a mutual board which would make a wage award or to try to reach a wage agreement jointly with a mutual third party presiding.

UNIFORM PRICES.

TORONTO, September 27 (C.P.). —Reduced tariffs and abolition of the sales tax in Canada were strongly pressed to-day in resolutions before the 26th annual Congress of the Co-operative Union of Canada as the final day's session turned to discussion of resolutions.

Other resolutions desired: A Federal law compelling all manufacturers and wholesalers to supply merchandise to all retailers at the same price on the same day, irrespective of the quantity ordered; appointment by Dominion and Provincial authorities to consumers' representatives to all boards; provision in price-fixing regulations to prevent them interfering with the right of co-operative societies to return to consumers in proportion to their purchases the savings made on their behalf.

Dictatorship was attacked in a resolution urging a ban on drilling of political groups. The Congress desired the Federal Government introduce a Bill making possible a national incorporation of co-operative societies, and that the Income Tax Act be amended to exempt co-operative societies from such taxation.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

In our natural diet so far, we have had in one day's ration some fruit supplying us with quick energy in the form of sugar, with buffer substances to keep the body reaction neutral, with vitamin C: some cereal to give us energy somewhat more slowly absorbed, and vitamins A and B: milk with its minerals and vitamins: meat with its essential protein units.

But no natural diet is complete without vegetables.

Predominantly what we get from the vegetables is starch. And in the green vegetables especially, this starch is in a form which takes more time for digestion than the fruit sugars. The energy-producing powers of green vegetables are not manifest for some time, therefore, but are of a reserve nature which is delivered up to the body gradually for several hours. The advantage is obvious.

Green vegetables, therefore, such as beans, peas, spinach, lettuce, asparagus, broccoli, parsley, watercress, beet greens, artichokes, are certainly essential ingredients of the natural diet.

Another contribution they make to the diet is the furnishing of roughage, undigestible cellulose and fiber which furnishes bulk, and thus stimulates the intestines to natural evacuation.

Minerals are also present in all vegetables—minerals derived from the soil—calcium and iron and, in most parts of the country, iodine.

What may be called the colored vegetables bring good amounts of other essential substances. We all need some pigment in our diet. Pigment means minerals. Iron is red, manganese is purple, copper blue, etc. Also a substance called carotene. Carotene is yellow, and the yellow vegetables—such as carrots and corn—contain good amounts of it. Many things are claimed for the addition of carotene to the diet—the extra addition—but it is probable that these claims are somewhat exaggerated, and that in the diet selected by anyone with a normal appetite there will be enough carotene, anyway.

Carotene is the substance from which the body builds up vitamin A. Vitamin A appears to have something to do with increasing the body's powers of resistance to infection.

For more concentrated energy we have our old standby, the potato. What would a housekeeper's life be without potatoes? Twenty per cent. starch. Delicious in all forms. Amenable to mixture with butter, condiments, cheese, cream—nearly anything. Mineral content, but not much vitamin content.

For bread and butter, the same good things may be said as for the potato. Bread, one of the finest of all foods—either white or brown. It is too bad that anything unkind has ever been said of it. Certainly a part of the natural diet.

LUCK AND POOR DEFENCE HELPED SOUTH.

When opponents open the bidding it usually is a hard struggle to go game. Five-odd seldom can be made, while a small slam usually is possible only to freak holdings. The following hand shows what sometimes may happen, with care, luck and a slip by an opponent.

After South had passed, bidding went: West, 1 heart; North, 2 hearts; South, 2 spades; North, 3 hearts, on the opening game of the rubber; South, 3 spades; North, 4 spades, ending bidding without a double.

The opening lead was the king of hearts. West then might have led almost anything except another heart or a club, but he thought that he might as well ruff the declarer. It might defeat him in case he held only 5 trumps. South ruffed the queen of hearts. East let go his lowest diamond.

It was reasonably certain that West held the missing king of clubs, or he would not have made an opening bid. Unless something went wrong there should be game in the hand of spades. There were slightly better than 2 in 3 chances for trumps to be divided 3-2 between opponents. That error of leading a second round of hearts might be utilized to establish the suit in dummy to provide discards for the declarer's losing clubs.

Having planned his campaign as well as he could, South led his king of spades, followed by a low one. Both opponents followed suit. South ruffed a return lead of hearts. East let go his lowest club. The queen of clubs was led. West covered with the king. Dummy won the trick. Another heart was led. South used next to his last trump to ruff. Then he picked up West's last spade, with his own last trump, but 3 good hearts stared at him in dummy. It made no difference whether South let go a heart or a club from dummy. The remainder of the tricks were good, giving him a small slam. Ordinarily play would have given him 4-odd.

It is quite unusual for a player to go game at a suit previously bid by an opponent, but North probably would have encountered no particular difficulty in going game at 4 hearts, after West had made an opening bid of 1 heart. All that East and West should win are 3 trump tricks at hearts.

Within the last few months I have noted several cases where game was made at the same call which opponents had previsouly employed. These opening bids were not psychies at that.

Regrets follow use of CHEAP SOAP FLAKES

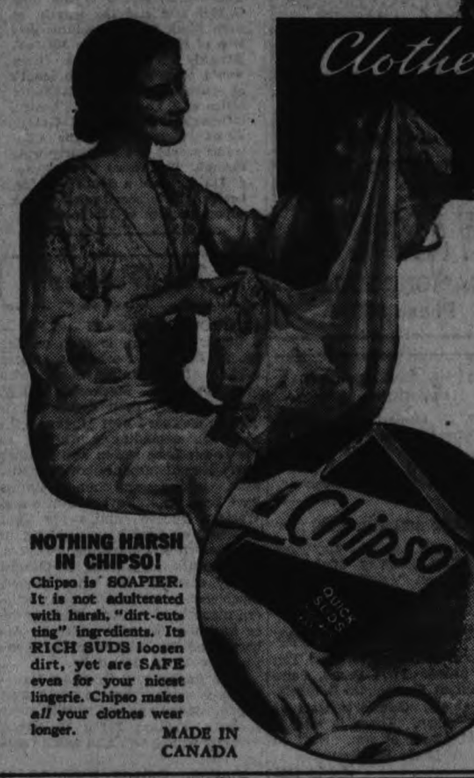
Cheap soap risk No. 2
—Colors faded by bleaches and strong water-softeners.



NOTHING HARSH IN CHIPSO! Chipso is SOAPIER. It is not adulterated with harsh, "dirt-cutting" ingredients. Its RICH SUDS loosen dirt, yet are SAFE even for your nicest lingerie. Chipso makes all your clothes wear longer.

Clothes Cost Dollars... Chipso Pennies Save Clothes

Experience favors Chipso... condemns cheap soap flakes. Why? Because cheap soap flakes are made to astonish your eyes with the size of the package. Chipso is made to give thick rich SUDS.

Your carton of cheap soap flakes uses up fast. The suds are thin. You have to rub the clothes hard—beat the dirt out. Chipso suds are thick and creamy with soap. They soak dirt out.

Bleaches and strong water-softeners, used in cheap soap flakes to make up for the lack of suds, are hard on colors. Chipso contains nothing harsh to fade colors.

Alkali let loose on your clothes by crudely made, cheap soap flakes, gradually weakens the strongest cloth. You wonder why your clothes tear so easily—wear out so fast. Learn to save them on washday. Chipso is a fine, properly made soap. Use it for dishwashing—see how soft and smooth it leaves your hands. This shows you that Chipso is safe for your clothes—safe even for sheer materials and delicate colors. Chipso makes all your clothes wear longer.

OUR MAIL

Anne Wilcox,
Examiner.
Dear Anne:

One or two letters have appeared during the last few months and once you said you were lonely for them. I did write once early in June or late in May, but did not see it. I may have missed it, however, as this has been such a heavy summer in more ways than one, that often things were missed.

I do hope you had a delightful holiday. You surely deserve it. I did begin a letter about a month ago, but it was unfinished and is now passe as it rests beyond the waste-paper basket.

Is it not wonderful how things are made to turn out? For weeks there was practically no rain, so much was dried up. Pastures were so dry the brown grass broke off like powder. Then came rain. The grain harvests were nearly all in and there were dry days enough to get it properly under cover. The brown meadows suddenly became green, roots started to grow. Nearly everything that should be growing took on new life and is rushing ahead. I was disgusted with our garden but we will still have variety and plenty. I often wonder if we are thankful enough for the good that is granted us. Often the story of St. Michael and St. Peter comes to my mind. I have a habit of twisting names, but one saint started off with an immense hamper to collect the thanks, the other with a little basket to collect the requests, but he returned with a few thanks in the bottom of the hamper and the other with his basket full, pressed down and overflowing with petitions. John Oxenham's "Te Deum" for little things of every life, is delightful, but it seems to have disappeared. It is so easy to say "Thank you" to God, and there seems to be so little in public places anyway, where we look for them.

We hear a lot about the rich and the poor, but it seems both conditions are only relative. A dweller in the slums might think me exceedingly rich and one with a houseful of servants wonder how I ever manage. Why should a millionaire be asked as some seem to think he should, to reduce his income, by giving to some who have to work hard to make ends meet? They would probably be through in no time. It often appears that unearned money dropping upon a person unaccustomed to it is more of a curse than a blessing. It came easily and it goes easily with what had been honestly earned along with it. I had better stop, but it does seem that the whole economic question cannot be settled by any one law or set wages, but by every one remembering Christ's summing up of the law, which I do not believe will happen and we will have another world war infinitely more awful than the last. It may be averted, as was the destruction of Ninivch

Very sincerely yours,
"Quid Eest".

Dear Quid Est:

I am so glad to welcome you back to the column. I do not know what could have happened the letter you wrote early in the summer. It may possibly have been mislaid in this office Sometimes things like that do happen. However, I hope it does not happen again.

The rains of the last two weeks have certainly been blessings. How lovely the country looks as you drive along. The fields are fresh and green and have the appearance of Spring rather than Fall as it is. Yes, Quid Est, we are not thankful enough to our Heavenly Father for all His blessings. How impatient we are, and how little faith we have in His power and guidance. At the least sign of suffering or distress how panicky we become and in most cases lose hope. If we just wait a while and trust we find that these crosses are blessings in disguise. God did not thrust human beings that He created with souls into a planet of forgotten projects. He works quietly and surely and each man was fashioned for some definite end. But we must follow His teaching and trust in Him andafter a life well spent in His service, we shall enjoy the reward of happiness with Him in His Heaven for all Eternity.

"Esma" has very kindly sent in the address of a person who sells a remedy for varicose veins, which she claims is very wonderful. Already I have had several requests for this address and we certainly hope that it may help all those who are suffering from this ailment and who try this remedy. It was a lovely gesture on Esma's part to pass this along to the neighbors. Can we not do this with a lot of other things? In our own little way spread kindness and happiness to others.

Well, dear Quid Est, I want to thank you once again for your lovely letter. Do write again very soon.

Very sincerely yours,
Anne Wilcox

MAY'S SCHOOL.

The annual meeting of the May's Home and School Association was held on Monday evening. The president, Mrs. Briscoe, was in the chair. The secretary read a very encouraging report of the year's work, after which the treasurer gave a report of the year's expenditures. An interesting feature of the evening was the election of officers, with Miss Squires presiding, which resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. A. Briscoe (acclamation); Vice-president, Mrs. W. Carter; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. K. Denoon. Social convenor, Mrs. Watkins; Visiting Committee, Mrs. Halliday; press secretary, Mrs. W. Stevens; Program Committee, Mrs. A. Pearson, Mrs. G. Cunningham, and the teachers, Miss Squires, Miss Brown, and Miss Cheyne.

Arrangements were made for the presentation of the entrance certificates at the next meeting. The meeting closed with the singing of "God Save the King."

LETTER BOX KILLS TOT.

BUFFALO, N.Y., Sept. 27 (CP).—Betty May Barnes, five years old, was killed last night when a combination letter and parcel box at the corner of Esser Avenue and Skillen Street fell on her.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Ann Shaw,
Ford Ave., City.

Your handwriting is so cramped and changeable in shape, size and slant that you appear to be under great nervous strain, or else you are too young to have formed a definite type of writing yet. Small letter formations such as yours, usually indicate reserve, fear, and secretiveness. Sometimes when adjoined to other types of letters, they reveal temper which is sharp, easily roused and slow to forgive. Your upper loops do not show any type of imagination, but your 't' bars show inclinations to worry a great deal needlessly.

If you are a very young person, your writing will change as you grow older and I think you will be interested in many more things than you are at present. Try to dress to suit your type, match your hair, eyes and skin. Choose very carefully the quality, remembering always, that one dress of good quality is preferable to many cheap, shoddy gowns. Try to take care of your clothing, see that your shoulder-straps are immaculately clean and free from frayed edges. Make the most of your good points, if your teeth are pretty—keep them sparkling. Use a good boracic eye wash every day (but never the same cup full for each eye, because you might infect one eye from the other). Hair need not be waved if it is brushed till it shines. Shoes need not be new if clean. Don't you see . . . you have a lot to be thankful for and to look forward to. Life is full of surprises, but one must search for them. I hope you will take the above advice as philosophy and with a smile, for smiles pay in the long run.

Helen Anderson,
R. R. No. 1, Round Lake, Ont.

Your handwriting shows that you have a desire for perfection. One of your type as a rule has a longing for self expression.

You are inclined to be in too great a hurry over your work because you are very energetic.

You are not the type of person to sit still while others do the work. You must be "up and doing" all the time.

Your capital letters denote a keen mind and a love of personal comfort. You are conscientious and thoughtful, ever ready to perform good deeds.

You are polite, well poised and diligent, honest and persevering. You dress well, but not extravagantly.

Moderation in all things seems to be your motto. You can be depended upon at all times to keep a secret.

Moderation in material things is a noteworthy characteristic. Your capitals denote artistic tendencies and also reveal a love for "good" music.

You are diplomatic and yet independent. You like to do your own thinking, and to speak your own intelligent thoughts. You are critical but fair. You demand attention, but in a gentle, discreet manner. Your mental faculties are well developed, and therefore you keep yourself conversant with current topics. You are influential and inspiring, generous and not at all obdurate or aggressive. The main body of your writing denotes a tendency towards versatility. This characteristic is noteworthy because it allows you to change your mind without hurting the feelings of others.

You are discriminating and an excellent judge of quality. You disapprove of anything which is cheap or gaudy. The general outline of the signature as a whole designates you as lovable and kind.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Confidence and a cheery attitude will find a way to overcome obstacles. Dejection and a downcast attitude will find unsurmountable obstacles in the way of success in any undertaking. If you want to succeed, therefore, it is evident that you will have a good start by following the first plan, and that you will stand a very good chance of being frustrated, or rather of frustrating yourself, if you follow the second.

* * * * * *

Confidence in an undertaking, whatever it may be, is necessary. It must be the confidence which is foreign to conceit. They have much the same outward appearance, confidence and conceit, but appearances are deceitful so, says the adage; which is certain true in this instance.

* * * * * *

Confidence is a buoyant assurance. Conceit is a vain self-esteem, a prideful imagination. A conceited person wants to impress others verbally with his fanciful ideas in all of which he features himself as succeeding. A background of efforts well thought-out and well achieved even in small matters is lacking, nor are his ideas actively pushed ahead. On the other hand a confident person thinks constructively, and can outline plans of action to bring his ideas to pass. So it is an error to confuse the two. Confidence is necessary for success. Fortunately it is usually coupled with a cheery attitude, one which sees ways and means of measures for overcoming difficulties.

* * * * * *

Dejection is in itself, an obstacle, since it puts you in an attitude whereby you see difficulties pile up one after another and no ways and means of surmounting them or of passing them by, even by circuitous routes. You fail before you begin, or as the slang expression puts it "you are licked at the start."

* * * * * *

There is no royal road to success, and there are always difficulties and obstacles, but they will present themselves. They do not have to be sought. Fortunately they do not present themselves all at one time, but at intervals one at a time, so that they can be tackled well. The cheerful outlook lends keenness to vision while the dejected attitude dulls it. A clear outlook, one which sees the hazards and realizes the difficulties but always with an eye to the fortunate features is necessary. A person whose aim is to succeed, should take stock of himself or herself, and discover whether he is standing in his own light by having the wrong attitude or whether he is starting well with a confident cheerful attitude.

SALLY'S SALLIES

FAMOUS STAGE STAR'S HANDS LOVELY WITH PEARLY, TIPPED FINGERNAILS

Katherine Cornell

The lovely Katherine Cornell, who is considered one of the most talented actresses on the American stage, has very beautiful and expressive hands. Because of the characters that she usually portrays, on the stage, however, Katherine seldom uses vivid polishes on her fingertips. Her nails seem to possess a natural rosy luster of their own. And so, all she does to give them a perfectly groomed appearance is to keep their tips clear and white.

Of course, the gal who has a lot of time on her hands usually doesn't find it difficult to keep her nail tips clean and white. But because of the nature of their daily duties, the Harassed Housewife and the Hard Woiking Goil usually do find this a difficult task. Yet it really needn't be.

There are several ways in which the nail rims may be given that whiteness so essential to perfect grooming. One method is by cleansing under the nails with a bit of cotton that has been wrapped around an orange stick and moistened with peroxide. A second way is by pouring a few drops of peroxide on a nail brush, and rubbing the fingertips over the bristles. And a third means is by using white under the tips of the nails.

I've never been much in favor of the last mentioned method, for if the nail white is too cementy, it may pile up under the nails, and become discolored. Of course, one can't very well carry about a bottle of peroxide and a nail brush for use on the nails when they become soiled during the day. Nor can one go to the trouble of touching up the nails with nail white each time that they need attention. But cosmetics manufacturers have now put out a new manicuring implement that should prove a regular godsend to the Harassed Housewife and the Hard Woiking Goil.

This latest addition to the manicure series is the nail white pencil. It looks just like any other pencil, and is sharpened when necessary in the same way. The only difference is that it has a white point, which is protected by a gold cap. When your nails tip become grimy, you simply wash your hands, moisten the pencil point, run it under your nails, and presto!—your nails emerge with the loveliest of white rims.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Astringent

Shirley: An excellent astringent for a sensitive skin may be made of equal parts of rosewater, glycerine and witch hazel. If this lotion proves drying to the skin, reduce the amount of witch hazel used.

Red Nose

Mildred: A red nose and hands usually result from poor circulation. Take deep-breathing exercises when you rise in the morning. Get plenty of exercise and fresh air. Also, eliminate foods that stimulate the blood supply from your daily menu.

Superfluous Hair

Maude: The superfluous hair bleach you refer to is composed of two teaspoons of peroxide and one-half of teaspoon of ordinary household ammonia. This solution will not promote the growth of the hairs.

Reducing

C. S. C.: The reducing course contained in my booklet on "The New Figure" is guaranteed to take off 8 to 10 pounds in two weeks. It is, to my knowledge, one of the health-fullest reducing routines in existence.

TRAINS COLLIDE IN STATION KILL AND INJURE WORKERS

Rescue Gangs Smash Their Way to Trapped Passengers

CRASH HEARD AFAR

Glasgow. — Women and children, pinned beneath the wreckage of five telescoped coaches, cried and sobbed for over an hour when two passenger trains collided outside the Cumberland St. station.

Rescue gangs, perspiration streaming down their faces, smashed and levered their way to the victims. Two were killed and 40 injured in the smash, which was heard by thousands in the crowded main street adjacent to the railway. The city's whole medical force mobilized for aid.

Dozens of injured lay moaning among the debris which littered the side of the track. Along the permanent way was an unbroken line of stretchers, on which lay men, women and children. Some were unconscious and terribly injured.

The dead are Arthur Robert Balmer, driver of the Kilmarnock train, and James Cardigan, of West St., Paisley, a passenger.

The trains involved were the 5.12 from Paisley West to Glasgow St. Enoch, and the 5.35 outward from St. Enoch to Kilmarnock. The 5.35, crowded with business people returning home, had just drawn out of the station when the crash occurred. The other train was empty.

Coaches on each train were telescoped and two on the crowded train collapsed into piles of matchwood and twisted metal. Another was cut clean in half.

One engine, its front buckled and torn like paper, turned over against the wall at the side of the line. The other was piled on top of the tender of the overturned engine.

WOMAN, AGED 107 WOULD WED AGAIN

Second Oldest Person in England Believes in Marriage

London.—Mrs. Ellen Palmer of Ulundi Rd. Blackheath, is 107 years old

Mrs. Palmer believes she is the oldest woman in England. She prides herself on that "fact." Her belief brings her such innocent pleasure that there is a conspiracy to deceive her.

She has never been told of Mrs. Merriott, the Thornton Heath centenarian. Mrs. Merriott will be 109 next month.

Mrs. Palmer is so old that she cannot believe any one has lived longer. Her great moment came when she lit the 107th candle on her birthday cake. Her family and friends toasted her as the "oldest woman," and Mrs. Palmer will once more indulge her innocent pride in that title.

When a reporter saw her she was very pleased with life. "I wake up in the morning bright and happy," she said vivaciously, "thinking here's another day, and how good it is to be alive. "I feel about 50, and my doctor says I've got the heart of a woman of 30. I asked him the other day if it would be all right for me to marry again. He told me I'd better wait till I was asked. I suppose he thought I couldn't get any one to marry me now! Perhaps the man would have to be a bit younger than myself, but I wouldn't mind that! I believe in marriage."

MOTORCYCLE SPILL ENDANGERS RACERS

14 Contestants Scattered on Track—Five Injured

Belfast.—Fourteen motorcyclists and their machines were scattered over the road after one of the most amazing crashes in the history of road racing during the Ulster Grand Prix on the Clady Circuit.

Five of the riders were taken to hospital.

As the riders tried to forge to the front, Jim Guthrie, noted Norton rider, struck the grass bank at 80 miles an hour. He and his motorcycle were hurled seven feet in the air.

Behind Guthrie was a mass of riders whose view of the crash had been cut off by a bend in the road. A few swerved round the fallen rider.

Others, however, could not find room to pass, and in less than ten seconds the road was a mass of groaning men and broken machines. Some of the men were ridden over as they lay on the ground.

Women screamed and some fainted as a dozen men, regardless of the machines still flashing round the circuit, ran on to the track and dragged the injured men to safety.

WOMAN IN SACKCLOTH LIVES AMID WEALTH

Tame Mice Scamper Among Bank Notes—Husband Found Stabbed

London.—Scotland Yard has just ended one of the queerest inquiries it has ever undertaken.

Involved in it were a suggestion of attempted murder—finally reduced to one of attempted suicide—a flat in which mice ran about tame and in which thousands of pounds in money and a valuable stamp collection were hidden, and a woman dressed in sacking and silk.

The principal actors in this strange drama were Mr. and Mrs. William Bartel, who occupied a flat in Southampton St. W. The police found Mr. Bartell stabbed just above the heart with a dagger. Bleeding freely from his wound, he was taken to hospital.

Then they discovered his wife acting strangely and dressed in a sacking sugar bag, which had been converted into a skirt, and a silk blouse tattered and torn, but pieced together with safety pins.

The flat was in an incredible condition. The couple had been living in primitive style, and mice had been allowed to wander about the room to such an extent that they had became tame and were ready to eat out of the hands of the detectives.

A further discovery was that the flat contained bank notes and other money to the value of thousands of pounds.

There were also several stamp collections which were worth another $5,000.

Mr. Bartell had been an enthusiastic philatelist and had collected a large number of valuable stamps.

After weeks of inquiry Scotland Yard has established that the husband attempted to take his life in a fit of melancholy brought on by his extraordinary surroundings.

His wife had not been out-of-doors for nearly 10 years.

Both are now in a home, where they are being well cared for, and the money, stamp collection and other assets are to be administered by the public trustee.

USE SAME MEADOW AS PILGRIMS OF 1061

Five Thousand Pray As Did Worshippers of Early England

Houghton-in-the-dale.—Five thousand pilgrims, men and women from all parts of England, knelt in prayer in the meadow through which flows the River Stiffkay.

They prayed to the Virgin Mary, to Our Lady of Walsingham. They came to kneel with Cardinal Bourne, two archbishops, six bishops, and many prelates.

Many of the worshippers came from Norwich with the cardinal. Like ribbons of white and blue, they wended their way through the narrow valley road from the Slipper Chapel towards the altar, which had been set up in a field.

They couldn't cast aside their shoes at the Slipper Chapel, and walk to the shrine of Our Lady of Walsingham, for the shrine was destroyed at the Reformation.

B"' the cardinal in red and the bi.ops in purple k elt and prayed before the Host in that tiny Slipper Chapel.

The cardinal followed the procession in his motor c.r. His driver wore a surplice. The pilgrims surrounded the altar—a sea of kneeling figures with banners waving in the breeze.

Archbishops, bishops and laity knelt with bowed heads. A silver bell tinkled as the pilgrims crossed themselves. Such a bell first brought pilgrims to their knees at the same place in A.D. 1061.

TIMES EAGLE FLYING 120 MILES PER HOUR

Rises 1,000 Feet in Escape From Falcons

Wester, Ross.—A drama of the air, in which a golden eagle, pursued by falcons, was timed by a scientific observer to fly at an average speed of 120 miles an hour for three and a half miles, has just been revealed.

Dr. F. Fraser Darling, making observations on the flight of birds in the western highlands of Scotland, kept the golden eagle under observation through a stalking telescope.

With a stop watch, he timed its flights between different points, and obtained observed speeds that have never before been reported.

Throughout the "record flight," the eagle appeared to be flying at full pressure to get rid of the pursuing falcons.

When the eagle was timed at 120 miles an hour, it was actually making a steep climb, and, as near as the observer could estimate, gained 1,000 feet in altitude in three and a half miles.

This would mean that had it been exerting the same energy in a level flight it would have been travelling at between 140 and 150 miles an hour.

AIRMAN'S DEATH REVEALS SACRIFICES FOR FIANCEE

Few Coppers in Pocket Tell Story of Devotion to Others

FATHER IN CANADA

St. Albans.—Sacrifices made by a flying officer to assist his fiancee and her mother have been revealed by his death.

Flying Officer John Bigelow was killed recently. The R.A.F. aeroplane he was piloting during manoeuvres struck a 132,000-volt grid cable at Ham St., Kent.

He had ninepence in his pocket when he crashed. It was all he had in the world.

Here is the story told at the home of Miss Wava Josh, his fiancee — a beautiful flaxen-haired girl. Her mother told it:

"We met John in the boat from Canada two years ago. We came for a short visit, but while we were in England, my husband, a Canadian farmer, had financial trouble, and we were left stranded.

"John's father is a criminal court judge in Regina, Canada, and I want him to know of his son's steadfast friendship for us. I want him to understand, too, that we did not know how he was depriving himself for us. I have only just found out.

"John was stationed at North Weald and visited us whenever he could. He saw our position, and insisted on settling our debts time and time again. He bought a cheap car so that he could take Wava to work to save her fares. They were to have been married soon.

"Six weeks ago I fell ill and had to go to St. Thomas' hospital, and John came to see me nearly every day. He brought nourishing food when I was convalescing. Wava does not know of his sacrifices yet. She is broken-hearted."

BOY WORTH MILLION IS IGNORANT OF FACT

Heir to Novar Estate Will Learn Good News in Six Years

Minehead.—A twelve-year-old boy who is to inherit $1,000,000 will not be told for at least six years.

This is the decision of Ralph Pagnael Luttrell, father of the lucky boy, Arthur Brocklehurst Luttrell.

At present Arthur is at school here in Somerset. If possible, his inheritance is to be kept a secret from him until he leaves school at the age of eighteen.

Lord Novar left no children. His will directed that his vast estates in Scotland and his personal estate of $1,069,035 should be left to Lady Novar for life; and, failing issue, to the eldest son of his brother, Hector Munro-Ferguson, provided the son was not born later than December 3, 1930.

No son was born, so the residue is to go to his grand-nephew, Arthur Luttrell, when he reaches the age of twenty-five, and if Lady Novar is not then living. Ralph Luttrell's mother was Lord Novar's sister.

BULL AND DUCKS WON'T OBEY TITHE COLLECTORS

Crowd Laughs as Bailiffs Forced to Wade Into Pond

Ashford.—A furious bull rushing madly round the farmyard, chased by men with sticks, to the ironical cheers of a crowd, was an exciting incident of a tithe raid on Beechbrook Farm, Westwell, near here.

The distraint was on the farm of R. M. Kedward, president of the National Tithepayers' Association. It was the third distress for the same tithe.

When lorries arrived from London to collect the goods, a number of farmers were already in possession and had blocked he road with their cars.

The lorries were then taken to another part of the farm, where it was found that a large cart of oats, with locked wheels, barred the way. The cart was moved, and a number of agricultural implements were seized.

After the bull had been caught and driven away the raiders attempted to capture a number of ducks swimming in a pond.

As fast as the birds were driven one way, the laughing crowd chased them back, and the raiders at last had to wade into the water up to their waists to catch them.

Mr. Kedward afterwards stated that the proceedings were like a pantomime. "It was at first intended to take away a field of oats," he said, "but it was so wet that the idea had to be abandoned."

EX-GENERAL TENDS BAR

Won Honors on Field of Battle—Now Battles Hard Times

Wolverhampton. — Few men can have experienced such extremes of fortune as have befallen William Carter, Rose and Crown Cottages, Penn, who, after a distinguished war career with the South Staffordshire Regiment, during which he won the D.S.O. and M.C. and rose to be acting brigadier-general, is now an artisan and barman.

He was very cheerful and very philosophical about it when seen in his modest home in a low-lying district, where floods at times drive him and his wife and five children to the upper rooms.

"Of course I have had great regrets," said Mr. Carter, "but it is nobody's fault."

LONE POLICEMAN GUARDS NUDISTS AT CONVENTION

Sunbathers to Seek Place on Councils—Ask Exclusive Beaches

WANT STATE AID

London.—Nudist sympathisers on local councils—ministry of health recognition of nudist claims—a nudist company, with nudist shareholders, to buy isolated plots all over Britain for sun bathing—and exclusive nudist bathing beaches at every big resort.

These are a few of the things the 200 nudists who met at their conferences in London decided must be brought about as soon as possible.

In the garden of a large house in Friern Park, Finchley, these men and women, representing fifteen nudist societies, with a total membership of 2,000, spent two days stripped to the buff considering agendas, passing resolutions, proposing motions.

The sum of their decisions is that nudism has now "arrived"; it is powerful enough to make demands to local authorities and to call for government sanction for its principles and assistance to carry them out: nude sun bathing is to be made a country-wide practice next year.

The conference was the sensation of the neighbornood. People watched the nudists arrive on Saturday — in their clothes — as though they were strange animals.

"Peepers" Numerous

A police sergeant spent several hours outside the house. Groups of cyclists from all over London rode up to peer at the high wooden screens round the garden.

It did not require long for the guests to get up and complete their toilet. All that the men had to do was to shave and the women to comb their hair.

Indoors the drawing room and lounge were thronged with unclothed men and women drinking coffee, eating sandwiches and sitting on sofas before a pleasant fire.

At 3.45 p.m. the general meeting started. Men and women between the ages of sixteen and 60 sat on tarpaulin sheets round a table at which, nude, sat the chairman and secretary of the National Sun and Air Association.

Although 40 representatives of British and foreign newspapers visited this conference, only five of them had the courage to take their clothes off. Press photographers were allowed to take pictures.

FURNITURE IS STOLEN DAY BEFORE WEDDING

Curate and Bride Are Victims Of Robbers

Woking.—To be deprived of their furniture on the eve of their wedding is the unhappy experience of the Rev. Gordon Blacktop, newly appointed curate of Christ church and St. Paul's, and his bride.

Most of the furniture had been moved in and the young couple spent the week-end arranging it. On the day before the wedding, when Mr. Blacktop and Mr. G. Loveland, a local decorator, visited the house they found a window broken and most of the principal articles of furniture gone. The couple left for their honeymoon.

Inquiries at houses nearby showed that neighbors were unaware of anything unusual having taken place, but a charwoman on her way to work at 7 a.m. reported that she saw a van drawn up outside the house.

She was able to give the police a description of the vehicle and they are hopeful of tracing it.

PLACED FOOD NEARBY FOR "IRON AGE" BABY

Excavations Reveal Skeleton of 2,000 Years Ago

Dorchester. — The skeleton of a child who died some two thousand years ago lies on its side in a small pit on the summit of that vast prehistoric fortification, known as Maiden Castle, on the outskirts of Dorchester.

It has just been uncovered by excavators working in charge of Dr. Mortimer Wheeler of the London Museum.

As it lies now so it was buried after its short life of two or three years—its knees up to its chest, its hands clasping its thighs. An earthenware pot, which had contained food for its journey after death, was close by.

Mai Dun (or Strong Hill), as the ancient Celts called Maiden Castle, was a camp in the stone age; but this baby belonged to people of the later iron age, the people whose threefold line of mighty ditches and ramparts was found by the Romans encircling an oval of 120 acres.

FINE AMY MOLLISON AFTER CAR GRAZED

"Obstinate" Man Wouldn't Swing Over When She Tooted Horn

London.—Mrs. Amy Mollison, the aviatrix, was fined forty shillings at Bow St. police court for failing to stop her motor car after an accident.

Summonses against her for driving a motor car dangerously and without care and attention and for failing to report to the police an accident on Victoria embankment, were dismissed by Mr. Dummett.

Mrs. Mollison arrived at the court with her husband, Jim Mollison. She was defended by Laurence Vine.

W. L. Sanders, prosecuting, said that Frank Sarson Histed, a merchant, was driving eastward along the Victoria embankment at about thirty miles an hour.

As he approached the junction of Savoy St., there were some lorries on the near side of the road. He heard continued hooting behind him, but was not able to turn inwards because of the lorries.

Mrs. Mollison then overtook him on his offside and cut in front of him. Their cars grazed each other. The wing and hub cap of Mr. Histed's car were slightly damaged.

Mrs. Mollison did not stop, but a policeman recognised her as she passed. Mr. Histed followed her car and asked her if she realised that her car had come into collision with his. She replied, "Serves you right for not letting me pass. It is people like you that cause accidents."

Mrs. Mollison, in evidence, said that she thought Mr. Histed would have given way when she tooted but he did not give even an inch. She considered that she was the injured party, and for that reason did not stop.

The magistrate said that to some extent both sides were to blame. He thought Mr. Histed was one of those "obstinate gentlemen who were hidebound by what they considered the right thing to do," and were not prepared to give way to anybody.

TOW HUGE BATTLESHIP WITH KEEL UPPERMOST

Crew Works Eight Months to Bring German Cruiser to Surface

Stromness, Orkney.—Eight months of arduous salvage work at Scapa Flow was brought to a triumphant conclusion recently, when the scuttled German battle-cruiser Bayern was towed keel uppermost and stern first to Lyness.

The 28,000-ton warship, which was brought to the surface, will now be prepared for the long tow to the shipbreakers' yards on the Firth of Forth.

The salvage crew had several disappointments with the Bayern. A few weeks ago they succeeded in getting the hull awash, but were forced to allow her to slip to the bed of the sea again.

It is stated that there is now no danger of the vessel sinking. About twelve feet of the keel is above water, with the seven giant air-locks used in connection with the compressed air method of wreck-raising, projecting high into the air.

Small fish, for which flocks of wild geese repeatedly dived, were swimming in the hollows of the sea-cocks.

CLERIC LEAVES GOLF TO TIE NUPTIAL KNOT

Deal.—Miss May Rose and Mr. Alfred Campbell arrived at St. Andrew's church here to be married.

The curate, however, refused to carry out the ceremony as Mr. Campbell had not the certificate of banns published from his parish church of St. Leonard's.

Sadly, the bride went home; the church emptied. But Mr. Campbell's motto is, "Never give up." With his best man he began a hunt for the Rev. E. D. Bowser, rector of St. Leonard's.

The couple searched high and low. At last they found the rector studiously surveying the line of a putt on the Royal Cinque Ports golf links!

The predicament was explained. Mr. Bowser forgot his putt. Tumbling into a car, clubs and all, he hurried with the anxious groom back to St. Andrew's church.

The best man, playing his part, raced to fetch the bride and bridesmaids. And, two hours late, the marriage was performed.

PROBE VICTORY OF HORSE BELIEVED TO BE "RINGER"

Hold Prize Money When Owner Disappears After Race

STABLE IS EMPTY

Paris.—A powerful 'ringer" gang, with connections all over France, is said to have been operating on French race courses for a long period with the connivance of certain owners, jockeys and officials.

An official inquiry is being held by the French Turf Commissioners into allegations that well-known horses have been substituted for outsiders in races run on various courses in France.

The first clue to the gang's activities came to light at a race meeting near Paris when an outsider, after beating the field too obviously and easily in an important trotting race —at long odds—vanished before his identity could be checked.

Further mysteries then came to light. Two jockeys had turned up to mount the horse; two men had been seen feverishly backing the outsider.

The owner is alleged to have jumped into a taxicab immediately after the departure of his horse, and left with the two men seen placing bets.

The race course committee ordered two inspectors and a veterinary surgeon to proceed to the horse's stables. It was found that the address given by the owner of the outsider was non-existent, but eventually the stable where the horse was kept was discovered.

A lad in charge refused to allow the inspectors and surgeon to see the horse in the absence of his employer.

The officials returned the following morning but found the stable empty. The horse had already been entrained for the Riviera.

The local police searched for the horse . . . but it had again disappeared.

This time its whereabouts are completely unknown.

GERMANS APPLAUD BRITISH CYCLIST'S WIN

Woman Contestant Proves as Fast as Men

Garmisch Partenkirchen. — Great Britain's B team won the silver vase and Germany the international trophy in the international six days' reliability trial for motorcycles.

In the silver vase event the British team was first and Ireland's B team second.

Miss Marjorie Cottle, the intrepid British woman competitor, who was riding a B.S.A., secured a gold medal for completing the strenuous test without a single penalization.

In the speed contest Miss Cottle, on her small machine, was as fast as many of the "crack" men riders of nine nations. She received an ovation from the huge German crowd.

POOR POTATO GROUND YIELDS $50,000 GOLD

Hard-Working Brothers Sell Land for $250,000

Ballarat, Australia.—Originally a potato patch, a piece of land has just been sold for $250,000.

Three years ago two brothers worked it as part of their farm from daylight to dawn for small return. One morning, after heavy rain, one of them found that part of the crop had been washed off the hillside, exposing a gold-bearing reef. Since then the reef has yielded nearly $50,000 worth of gold.

CEYLON TO RECEIVE PURE GOLD THRONE

Return Famous Relic After 120 Years

Colombo.—When the cruiser Sussex calls here the Duke of Gloucester will present a throne of pure gold, set with precious stones, as the King's gift to Ceylon.

The throne will be returning to Ceylon after being kept at Windsor Castle for nearly 120 years. It is a relic of one of the most bloodthirsty tyrants who ever reigned—even in Asia.

In 1815 members of the Ceylon royal family begged the British authorities to dethrone the king.

This monarch, in order to strike terror into rebellious nobles, had the bodies of men he had put to death piled before his throne. Then he summoned the nobles into his presence.

British Museum experts have packed the golden throne, which will be handed over to the duke.

It will in future be the throne of the British governor in the legislative chamber of Ceylon.

CROONING CLERIC RESIGNS

Yelverton.—The "crooning vicar," Rev. Edward J. Pizey, vicar of Walkhampton, near here, has resigned his living "for financial reasons."

Mr. Pizey has sung several times for the B.B.C. and earned his title of "crooning vicar" because he once assisted a local dance band by singing the refrain of "Lazy Bones" through a megaphone.

"I have no private means," Mr. Pizey said, "and the vicarage here is too large for me to maintain. I want to find a living which will enable me to live instead of starve. "I am 63 and I cannot carry on."

TRAIN GOES 70 M.P.H.

Sydney.—In a trial run between Sydney and Newcastle, a distance of 104 miles, made with the object of reducing the time for the service, a train consisting of eight carriages ran up to a speed of over 70 miles per hour.

AWAKE TO FIND TENT ON EDGE OF GLACIER

Intense Cold of High Altitude Freezes Breath of Explorers

Srinagar, Kasmir. — Two young British army officers made a brave but unsuccessful attempt to climb the 23,500-foot Himalayan summit of Nun-Kun.

At 19,190 feet, after they had been impeded for days by impenetrable mists and a heavy snowfall, half their coolies were sent back to the base camp.

The next morning the mist cleared, and the climbers awoke to find that their tent had been pitched on the edge of a glacier a few feet from a shelf, which fell away steeply for 6,000 feet.

At 20,500 feet the climbers found their way blocked by an enormous unscalable ice wall, and a detour was necessary. Soft snow on the ice prevented them from taking the remainder of the insufficiently equipped coolies any higher, and the climbers forged ahead alone on skis. Anxiety at the non-return of the coolies with food supplies forced them to turn back at 22,000 feet.

For nine days they lived in a tiny tent out of touch with their base camp and unable to sleep much owing to the intense cold. Their breath froze, so that when they turned over at night their faces were cut by the ice on their pillows.

At 20,000 feet Mr. Harrison had a narrow escape from falling into a deep and narrow crevasse, which was covered by snow. He was saved by his skis.

PUT TAX ON NEWSPAPERS

Salt Lake City, Utah—A newspaper, in the opinion of the Utah state tax commission, is a tangible personal property, not a service to the subscriber or buyer. Hence, all retailers in the state must collect the state two per cent. sales tax on all sales of papers. Carriers will be held liable for collection and payment of the tax.

MIMIC AERIAL INVASIONS SHOW DEFENCE INADEQUATE

140 Out of 176 War 'Planes Reach Objective Past Guns

VISIBILITY POOR

Whole districts of Paris would have been destroyed and thousands of lives lost if the mimic war which brought 176 Blue "enemy" warplanes over the great civil and military aerodromes had been the real thing.

The service of umpires who watched the fighting in "neutral" 'planes said that, despite the fact that all the anti-aircraft batteries had been mobilized in the defence of Paris, they estimated that only one "enemy" 'plane could be counted as having been brought down.

In all, 140 aeroplanes out of a total of 176 Blue 'planes reaches their objective at Le Bourget, and theoretically the rockets they fired and the lights they fired represented some 70 tons of explosives and incendiary shells.

On the whole it must be said that bad visibility and banks of low-flying clouds were of greater help to the enemy than the defence.

In some cases the defence squadrons, though they had dozens of 250 m.p.h. Dewoitine chasers looking for the enemy, were unable to sight him, and were hopelessly left behind when they tried to pursue the bombers on their eastward way home.

It was a realistic proof of the truth that there is no adequate defence against enemy air raids.

LOCK BRINGS TOWN BOOM

Saverton, Mo. — Formerly just a mere whistling post of the Burlington railroad, this village has lately developed into a hustling town. Construction of lock 22 on the Mississippi river south of here has put about 600 persons to work and many of the employees and their families have set up residence in Saverton.

BRING TOURIST TO TOP OF 11,303-FT. GLACIER

Foot Frozen While Prisoner in Crevasse

Vevey. — Guy Labour, a young Parisian tourist, was recovered alive after spending eight days in the crevasse of the Grands-Charmoz glacier (11,303 feet) in the Mont Blanc range.

During the icy imprisonment 60 feet below the surface, Labour heard several caravans above, but none responded to his shouts. He kept from starving to death by consuming a mixture of chocolate, raisins and candles.

MAN BROKE INTO PRISON

Returns to Locate Films He Had Taken During Incarceration

London. — Carl Poulsen served eleven years in Horsens Tugthus, the Dartmoor of Denmark, and was released. He broke in again.

Poulsen was writing a book on his experiences. Secretly he took photographs in prison to illustrate his book. Another prisoner hid the camera and the films in a yard so that Pousen could collect them.

Poulsen wrote a letter to this prisoner in invisible ink. It was detected, and the camera and films were found. The letter also disclosed plans for a man's escape from the prison.

Poulsen arrived at dead of night. Warders, armed with searchlights, were waiting. But they did not catch Poulsen. He is now believed to be hiding in the prison.

FREE STATE AGRARIAN WAR FINDS LANDOWNERS AGAINST DE VALERA

PLANT SMALL HOLDERS

(By P. J. Quinn, Central Press Canadian Correspondent)

DUBLIN, Sept. 27.—There are about 80,000 farmers in the Irish Free State whose indignation against the agrarian policy of the government has no parallel since the days of the Irish "Land War" against landlordism about 50 years ago.

They represent the capitalistic section of the farmers. They are only a small minority, for there are 678,500 occupiers of land in the Free State. Capitalistic farming is doomed in this country if the self-sufficiency policy of the present government is continued.

The capitalistic farmers are, therefore, fighting for their lives. They are creating all the trouble concerning cattle sales, non-payment of land annuities and rates. The majority of them have no money to pay, but there are large numbers who have reserves. They are fomenting trouble for the government in order to preserve, if they can, the type of farming to which they have been accustomed.

The 80,000 capitalistic farmers and their ancestors have acted for generations as the clearing houses of the Irish livestock trade, the largest business of its kind in the world. They purchased young stock from the small holders, fed it until it matured, and sold it to Britain.

That system is to a certain extent passing because of the economic war and the policy of Britain to build up her own agriculture. The large farmers say, however, that if the economic war, under which they have to pay a duty of $30 per head on their cattle in order to get them into Britain, could be ended, all would be well. They are determined to fight the policy of President de Valera every inch of the way in the hope of winning back their former market of Britain.

Where the 80,000 capitalistic farmers have flourished, mostly in the midlands, De Valera wants to plant about 1,000,000 small holders. He proposes taking large portions of the large farms and dividing them among what are known as the "congests"—that is, men who now farm anything from one acre to 20. This process is about to begin under an act passed last year. It will be a remarkable experiment. There are about 200,000 "congests." De Valera hopes to set machinery in motion which will deal with about 5,000 a year. Experts say the scheme will fail, but DeValera says he will build up a new system with people "living close to the land" rather than a minority "living off" the land.

C.N.R. REVENUE HAS DECREASE

Decline in September of $941,755 Because of Operating Cost Increase.

PENSIONS A FACTOR.

MONTREAL, Sept. 27 (C.P.).—Net revenues for August of $65,276 were reported to-day by the Canadian National Railways. Operating revenues were up $156,662 above August, 1933, to $13,532,418, but operating expenses, which in the month under review included pensions, increased $1,097,417 to $13,467,142. The result was a decrease of $941,755 in net revenue as against the same month last year.

Net revenues for the first eight months of 1934 showed an increase of $6,283,746. This year revenues were $8,132,261, and in the eight months last year there was a deficit of $1,151,485. Gross operating revenues advanced $12,868,317 to $107,022,440, while operating expenses were up $6,604,471 to $101,890,179.

COUNTRIES ON STERLING RELIEVE UNEMPLOYMENT

GENEVA, Sept. 27.—(A.;P.)—Efforts to relieve unemployment were most successful during the past year in countries connected with "the sterling standard," least effective in countries still on the gold standard, the League of Nations economy survey for 1933-34 stated in the issue appearing to-day.

During the past summer there was a general hope of restoration for more stable economic conditions based upon the growth of International economic cooperation, the publication stated. Uncertainty regarding monetary exchanges gives a doubtful tone to the international outlook, however, the report said.

Speaking of world trade the survey observed, "the general impression i sone of 'incomplete re-organization'." With regard to unemployment, it was stated that conditions were at their worst in Belgium, France and Poland.

Western bronchos do not make good horses for the plow alongside Ontario horses, nor can they be subdued into submission by severe treatment. This was the judgment of Magistrate Jordan in a police court session this week. Messrs. Morris and John Munro, farmers, and a hired man named McGee, were charged with cruelty to horses. A five-year-old Western broncho was hitched to a plow with an experienced horse. The animal, it was alleged, was cruelly treated in an effort to subdue it. Magistrate Jordan allowed suspended sentence.

Magistrate Langley of Peterborough, whose jurisdiction as senior magistrate includes Lindsay, was in town on Tuesday. He called on County Crown Attorney Anderson, Magistrate Jordan and Chief of Police Lawler.

Capitalist Minority Seek Retention Of Large Estates

Below is shown a quaint little rural village on Inishinny Island, Donegal, Ireland, one of thousands of such villages throughout the country. Many of the villagers in these typically agricultural settlements have never been more than a few miles from the place of their birth. They live in contentment, satisfied to till their few acres in the same manner that their fathers did for generations. The stormy political history of Ireland fails to touch these secluded spots. Eamonn de Valera, present premier of the Free State (left), has been the stormy petrel in the ballot battles and his bitterest opponent is probably former-Premier William T. Cosgrave (right), friend of England.

STEER EVADES SHIPMENT SAVES FARMER MONEY

OTTAWA, Sept. 2 (CP)—One Saskatchewan farmer has a steer which objected to being sold for low prices. The story is told by a couple of livestock men from the Prairies in Ottawa in connection with plans to improve livestock marketing methods.

A farmer shipped two good steers to the Winnipeg market. After paying charges he received 5 cents for them. His neighbor had three steers he was about to sell but one broke away and held up the shipment. After the owner heard about the price the first farmer got, he concluded the steer was wise, and kept the animals.

Montrealer Blames All His Troubles on Love of Liquor.

DENIES ASSAULT COUNT.

KINGSTON, Ont., Sept. 27 (CP).—In county police court at noon today before Magistrate J. H. Farrell, Leo Gauvreau, aged 26, who gave Montreal as his home, was sentenced to a term of two years in Kingston Penitentiary for theft of an automobile, the property of Malcolm Rogers, of Rockport, Ont.

Gauvreau has served terms in both Kingston Penitentiary and also in St. Vincent De Paul Penitentiary.

Crown Attorney T. R. Rigney had the record of accused which he produced to court. Gauvreau was also charged with using violence in theft of car.

It was alleged he had assaulted Rogers but this charge he stoutly denied, and after hearing evidence, the magistrate stated that he could not convict him on this. The accused blamed all his trouble on his love for liquor.

Gauvreau, who had been identified with camp No. 42 at Barriefield, was placed under arrest at Brockville Sunday night by Traffic Officer A. K. Ferguson of that district following an accident in which the car Gauvreau had stolen figured. The accused admitted taking the car, but from the time of his arrest, denied the charge of having used any violence on Rogers.

Bennett Renews Discussion in Paris on New Trade Treaty.

HEALTH IMPROVES.

(By George Hambleton, Canadian Press Staff Writer).

PARIS, Sept. 27. (C. P. Cable)—Exchange of Canadian wheat for French wines through reciprocal favorable tariff treatment was the main theme of conversations between Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada and Lucien Lamoureaux, French Minister of Commerce, to-day.

Premier Bennett, who arrived here fully recovered from the indisposition that kept him indoors for some time at Geneva, was spending practically the entire day in negotiations to extend the present Franco-Canadian trade treaty. He initiated these conversations some weeks ago while en route to Geneva.

When the Franco-Canadian trade treaty was concluded France sought additional concessions for French wines, but these were not possible owing to the Ottawa agreements On the other hand France, with a surplus of 73,000,000 bushels, is now exporting soft wheat. But she always needs hard wheat for mixing purposes, and it is this market which the Canadian negotiators hope to develop.

Announcement Near.

It was said during the former meetings that conclusions of a supplemental agreement was near and that it might be announced before Premier Bennett leaves Paris, but should the agreement need confirmation by Order-in-Council, it is quite likely that official announcement will be deferred until the question is submitted to the Cabinet at Ottawa.

Four ambassadors, three members of the French Cabinet, and three former French Ministers will be among the guests at the dinner being given to-night in honor of Premier Bennett by Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian Minister in Paris.

The ambassadors are Jesse Isidore Strauss of the United States, Tomas Le Breton, Argentine; Alfred Chlapowski, Poland, and Juan De Rivas, Spain. The Ministers are Pierre-Etienne Flandin, Minister of Public Works, who recently visited Canada for the Jacques Cartier celebrations; François Pietri, Minister of Marine, and M. Lamoureux.

Premier Bennett expected to leave for London on Saturday, and may return to Canada at the end of next week.

German Troops Stage Realistic Battle Scene

Over smoke-swept "battlefield," these members of the German reichswehr (regular army) are advancing with full packs and drawn bayonets toward their objective—the little white farm house. Men are falling in dramatic fashion to add realism to the scene as they perform the mimic battle in Nuremberg stadium with Chancellor Adolf Hitler as the main spectator. The battle was carried out with the precision of well-drilled field troops.

YOUTH PREPARES HIS OWN POISON LAUGHS AT EFFORTS TO SAVE HIM

Predicts Time of Death, Tells Startled Doctors There is No Antidote.

LITTLE HOPE HELD.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. Sept. 27.—(AP). A youth who says he is John L. Bauer, 21, of Pittsburgh, Pa., sits at the Cambridge Relief Hospital laughing at the attempts of physicians to save his life — he wants to die.

He is a research chemist, he says and a former student at Carnegie Tech.

Bauer walked into the Relief Hospital last night He calmly announced he had taken a poison for which there is no antidote and told hospital attendants he would die within 18 hours.

"You are wasting your time" he told physicians as they pumped his stomach out.

"I prepared the poison myself. There is no antidote known to science. I am in no pain. I swallowed a dose at 5.30 o'clock Wednesday night and I shall die at some time between 8.30 oclock this morning and 1.30 this afternoon."

Hospital authorities were at first skeptical. They thought it might be a hoax or a stunt. They believed it possible Bauer was the victim of a mental aberration.

Then, as Bauer calmly described the method by which he prepared the poison, they became alarmed.

Dr. Peter Cernada of the Relief Hospital staff said the poison described by Bauer would have the effect of turning the stomach into a jelly-like substance. He added there was little he could do

Bauer went to the hospital last night. He slept fitfully for a time during the early morning, constantly smoking while awake and chiding physicians over their efforts to rid him of the poison.

Ontario Barn Fire Loss Shows Decline

TORONTO, Sept. 27. — (CP) — Striking decrease in Ontario's loss from barn fires so far this year, a drop from $1,041,570 to $746,735, today found E. P. Heaton, Ontario fire marshal, with no explanation of the difference in figures between the first eight months of 1933 and the same period of the present year. There were 506 such fires from January to September in 1933 and only 360 this year.

Dwellings destroyed in eight months of 1933 numbered 8,023 with a loss of $2,091,375 compared with 8,210 this year and a loss of $2,-062,538.

Total fire losses in the province for the first eight months of the present year showed a decrease. Losses in 1934 were $7,711,037 and in 1933 the total reached $7,878,347.

Mercer, was badly gashed in the head and right leg when a police dog attacked him, and last night Geoffrey Wynn, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. A. R. His face will be scarred for life, it was stated, as the wound had to be clamped together.

Petes are Defeated in First Game by Grads 6-4

LOSERS SEEM TO BE BETTER TEAM AS FAULTY INNING CAUSES DEFEAT

Failure to Hit in Pinches and Bad Breaks Combine Against Petes.

UPPER IS BLASTED.

The Petes lost the first game of their O.B.A.A. semi-final series, 6 to 4, to G. & W. Grads in Ulster Stadium yesterday before about a thousand fans. One big frame, the second in which five runs were scored, cost Knotty Lee's team the fixture. Failure to hit with runners on and some bad breaks, coupled with Archie Deyell's blow-up in the bad second stanza, lost a tough one for the fast-stepping locals. It was a fine ball game the last seven innings.

The visiting squad got three big markers in the first inning while Toronto got one. But the Grads reached Deyell in the second and continued to hit Kitchen that frame to tally five. The only score the rest of the contest was when the Petes got a run in the seventh. The losers looked the better team in all but that one bad canto.

Deyell is Shaky

Archie Deyell started on the Lee hilltop and was shaky in the first, but he was nicked for only one run. However, in the second, he allowed a hit and two walks with no one out, and Knotty Lee pulled him in favor of Russ Kitchen. The latter got two out but was touched then for four hits in a row. He steadied away from then on and hurled shutout ball, allowing no runs and just three hits the last six innings, while fanning five. Art Upper started for the Grads but had trouble in the first and was blasted out in the second. Moon McMullen took up the task and was good the rest of the game, giving just four hits as he struck out eight. Both sides backed their pitchers up good most of the way.

Konopka led the Petes at bat with three singles in four trips. Calladine got a scratch double to right, while Murray, Foley, Whatley, Burton and Ash hit singles. For Toronto, Sniderman was the main hitter with two singles in four times up.

The Petes' infield turned in a smart defensive game, with Konopka, Batten and Ash having a flock of chances among them. Ash was exceptionally good. Eisen, Stokes and Sone starred for the winners, the latter featuring with an overhead catch in centre field. They pulled off two double-plays to hold the Petes in check.

Pile Up Runs

The visitors set to work to pile up three runs in the first frame. Konopka led off with a single and took second when Murray was safe on an error. Both advanced on Calalidine's walk. Big scored on Foley's infield hit and Murray tallied when Whatley singled. Burton lined into the shortshop's hand and Calladine was doubled off third. Foley scored when Ash singled one to left, but Clinker was out stealing second. The Grads got one back in their half when Eisen walked, took second on a wild pitch, third on an out and home on Sniderman's single.

Deyell walked and Konopka singled in the second but they died on base. In Grads' half, five runs scored. Stokes singled and Deyell walked Jones and Sone to load the bases. Kitchen started hurling and let Stokes in on a wild pitch. Upper flied out and Eisen fanned, but Glen, Stronach, Sniderman and Harper all singled before the side was out and the score was 6-3 for Toronto.

Singles by Burton in the third and Konopka in the fourth came to naught for the Petes, while two hits by Grads in their third failed to produce a run. The losers went out in order in the fifth as did Toronto, and a hit batsman for the Petes in the sixth with a hit for the homsters in their end did no damage. The Lee gang got a run in the seventh. Konopka walked, moved up on Murray's single and scored on Calladine's hit. The bases were full when Foley was hit by a pitched ball. Whatley's grounder forced Murray at the plate for the second out — Kitchen having grounded out to start the inning—and Burton's roller to third retired the side. Neither team threatened the rest of the way.

GIANTS RETAIN LEAD AS CARDS SUFFER DEFEAT

New York Loses to Phillies But Pirates Shut Out St. Louis.

DEAN LOSES DUEL.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer).

The National League pennant issue was put squarely up to the Cardinals to-day as they opened their final four-game series against the last-place Reds while the Giants began a two-day layoff before completing their season against Brooklyn Saturday.

Both leaders cracked unexpectedly yesterday and as a result the Cards still were a game behind and had just enough extra games on their schedule to make up that difference. They play four and New York only two unless the weather interferes with the program.

At the stage where one defeat may wreck the pennant hopes of either club, it looked as if the Giants had "blown" their chance yesterday when a passed ball by Gus Mancuso gave the Phillies their second straight from the league leaders. But they hadn't reckoned with Waite Hoyt, the Pirate veteran. Hoyt shut out the Cards 3-0, giving them only two hits, and the rivals were back where they started.

Mancuso Homers Twice

Before his costly mistake Mancuso had driven home four runs with a pair of homers and an outfield fly to overcome the handicap of ineffective flinging by Hal Schumacher and Carl Hubbell.

Hoyt had all the better of the Cards' young ace, Paul Dean, in an elbowing duel. Jack Rothrock was the only St. Louis player to hit him while Dean gave up a run on two walks and a single in the third and two more on Arky Vaughan's circuit swat in the sixth.

After the two upsets the possibility of the first pennant tie in league history loomed even larger as both the Giants and Cards have been highly successful this year against their finishing opponents. Despite Brooklyn's efforts to make Bill Terry regret last winter's famous wise crack, when he asked if the Dodgers still were in the league, Brooklyn has won only six games out of 20 from the Giants. The Cards have won 12 and lost six against Cincinnati.

Directors' Decision.

So long as their totals in the "lost" column remain the same, the teams can be regarded as playing on even terms, heading directly for a post-season series to decide the title. The possibility already is so close that League President John A. Heydler has begun to poll the board of directors concerning the schedule in such a case. Their decision is expected to be announced late today.

In comparison to the Giant-Cardinal race, other major league games paled to insignificance, but Detroit's champion Tigers gave a convincing demonstration of power as they walloped the White Sox twice, 12-10 and 10-6. They belted out 26 hits, including a homer by Hank Greenberg, before darkness halted the nightcap in the eighth.

The Dodgers cut Boston's fourth-place margin over Pittsburgh to a half game by trimming the Braves 3-1 behind Johnny Babich. The Yanks, with Rookie Charley Devens pitching the full route, defeated the Athletics in 11 frames 4-3, and Willie Raulin's five-hit hurling carried the Indians to a 6-2 decision over the Browns.

Cincinnati and Chicago in the National League, and Washington and Boston in the American, had open dates.

Among Other Things Schoolboy Rowe Plans to Get Wed and Pitch Opener

DETROIT, Mich., Sept. 27—A young fellow with nothing more exciting than a wedding and world series opener right ahead of him yesterday took time out from a busy program to tell why Detroit Tigers are going to take the world's baseball championship from New York Giants—or St. Louis Cardinals.

Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe, 22-year-old pitching sensation from Eldorado, Ark., admits "these sure are busy days for me." Right after the series, in which he will probably pitch the first game for Detroit, he and Miss Edna Skinner plan to be married. And what with looking over furniture and furnishings and trying to keep his mind on baseball, Rowe says, "There isn't much spare time on my hands."

But is he nervous?

"No, I don't get nervous," he said.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

Waite Hoyt, Pirates—Held Cardinals to two hits.

George Davis, Phillies—Connected with four hits in defeat of Giants.

Bank Greenberg, Tigers — Connected with six hits, to drive in nine runs in doubleheader.

PETES MUST WIN HERE SATURDAY

Team is Confident That They Can Defeat Grads and Take Series.

GREAT BATTLE.

The second game of the O.B.A.A. senior semi-final series is in Peterborough, the Petes and the G. & W. Grads of Toronto tangling at three this Saturday in Riverside Park. After the locals' 6-4 defeat in Toronto yesterday in the first game, the Petes will have to cop this fixture here to even it up and force a third game. It should be a hectic number between two smart, well-matched outfits, and the biggest baseball crowd of years is expected to see this battle.

Knotty Lee's team should have won yesterday, and they are confident of taking Saturday's game. They were outlucked and failed to hit in the pinches, besides getting some wobbly hurling in the second—when five runs were scored—which cost them a close and exciting contest. While the Grads are undoubtedly good, having won the T.A.B.A. title this year, the local crew look just as good if not a little better. They will likely settle away with that fighting spirit that won them the Central League championship from Belleville, and balance the series. At any rate, it promises to be the most thrilling ball game seen here this summer.

KEENE MOVES UP IN FINALS

Defeat Westclox 17-15 in a Free-hitting Battle to Secure Game Edge.

MANY PITCHERS.

Keene Girls got the jump on their hustling rivals the Westclox last night at the Ashburnham Bowl, when they copped the third game of the three out of five series, 17 to 15, to give them two wins in three starts, in an entertaining battle that was featured by heavy clouting, loose fielding and a few sparkling plays. The fourth game will be played at Keene on Friday at 4.45, and if the Keenesters can win this tilt they are champs of the Ladies' City and District Softball Loop.

The winners used three pitchers, starting Marilyn McCarthy, who lasted until the fourth when Jean Munro, went in, only to be replaced by Marilyn again in the sixth. The latter hurler was yanked in the eighth in favor of her older sister Mary who finished the tussle. Mary Hall started for the Westclox and went nicely until the third when she allowed three hits and these with three errors in succession by the infield sent her to the bench. Mildred finished the game pitching heady ball, but was given very ragged support by her teammates.

The mainstays of both teams in the infield had off nights, Helen Nelson at short for Keene and Marie Ferguson for Westclox both had a flock of miscues while Grace Hawkes at second for Westclox and L. McCarthy the opposing third sacker, also failed to live up to their reputations. Grace McCarthy at centre and Dot Gainor behind the bat, both played sparkling ball for the winners. Gladys Mortimer, Barb Blade and Dot Merrett all connected for doubles for the Clockers while Audrey Crary hammered out a homer in the third with the bases loaded. Lois McCarthy and Dot Cocks hit triples for Keene.

SIX OF CHAMPS ARE TO RETIRE

Famous Edmonton Grads Basketball Team to be Lacking Their Stars.

COACH CONFIDENT.

EDMONTON, Sept. 27 (C.P.).—Six of Edmonton's famed commercial grads queen's of Canadian basketball for 13 consecutive years, to-day hung up their togs for the last time.

Three of them veterans of many a campaign in Canada, the United States and overseas, the sextette decided for various reasons their retirement from active service with the Grads was due.

Elsie Bennie, a former captain, Gladys Fry and Babe Belanger were the three veterans to retire, while along with them went Edith Stone, Jessie Innes and Evelyn Coulson, all with more than two years' service.

Announcing retirement of the girls, Coach Percy Page said they would be missed, but that they would be replaced. "Grads will be in there when the 1935 Canadian finals roll around," he said. He will find many a budding star in his farm team, gradettes, where every one of the retiring girls was recruited. Five members of last year's team will form the foundation for the 1935 outfit.

Misses Bennie and Fry played for nine consecutive seasons. Miss Belanger and Miss Innes retired because of indifferent health, while Miss Coulson and Miss Stone were unable to secure the necessary time from business for practices and trips to outside points during the playoff season.

VANNEST HURLS FOUR-HIT BALL BUT COGS' HITTING PUNCH ABSENT

After Faulty Start Teams Play Smartly and Remain Deadlocked.

CONTINUE SERIES AWAY.

With the score tied 4-4 at the end of the ninth innings, darkness forced a full stop to the Cognawaga-Milton O.B.A.A. intermediate B semi-final game at the Exhibition Grounds last evening. Following a faulty start both teams straightened away to play heads-up ball and neither club could shove a run across after the fifth frame. As twilight fell over the diamond, Umpire Shiner Johnston went into a huddle with himself at the conclusion of regulation playing time and decided it was impossible to continue the contest.

A conference between the two teams and O.B.A.A. officials, William Kay and William Prindible, was held, and it was decided that the next game will be transferred to Milton. It will be played on Friday and if the Milton diamond is not available, in Oakville. This game will start at 1.30 and if Cogs win it, the teams will turn right around and play a second contest to decide the series. Milton won the first game 8-7.

Vannest in Form

Percy Vannest hurled yesterday's game for Cogs and the veteran of many a local diamond battle displayed all his old time stuff. Although starting rather shakily, he improved as the game progressed and held Milton hitless during the last five innings. He allowed but four hits, two of them were very scratchy, and whiffed eight batters on strikes.

The hurling Cogs were tendered by Vannest's stout right arm and the team's own hitting should have won the game comfortably. The homesters collected a total of 11 hits, getting a brace of three in each of three innings, but, although they could get runners on the pathways, they could not successfully make their hitting ability count.

Errors Costly

Errors of ommission and commission assisted Milton materially in scoring all four of their runs, and Cogs got out to a very bad start by practically giving the visitors three counters in the first innings. The other run in the fifth was also a downright present due to two errors.

Although Milton proved to a smart-fielding squad at most times, turning in two fast double plays to kill Cogs' chances of pushing more runs across, the pitching given them by London and K. Clement was very ordinary. London was hammered from the box in the fifth, and Clement finished the entertainment.

Rogers Leads Hitters

"Cack" Rogers led the Cogs' hitters with three singles in four appearances, while Vannest helped the cause with two. Rooke and Moore each had doubles. "Shocky" Mein, although he is chalked with one misplay, was the fielding star for Cogs, and Crary handled a couple of hot ones nicely.

W. Clement, in right for Milton, did some sensational fly-chasing. He stabbed Rooke's liner with one hand in the fourth to double Crary off second. The visitors' infield went smartly through the whole piece.

With one down in the first, Miltons hopes went up when C. Anderson got a life on Mein's bad throw. Toletzka singled and A. Clement walked. C. Anderson scored on Little's rap to Vannest. Brush singled scoring Toletzka. Brush started to steal second, and, when Padgett delayed the return of Rogers' short throw, Clement scored.

Cogs got one back in their half without a hit. A hit by pitcher, walk and error filling the bases with none out. But Padgett was caught between third and home, but Crary made home on London's error.

After three hits without a run in the second, Cogs broke out in another rash in the fourth and chased two counters in, with the assistance of an error in left field. Three more hits in the fifth accounted for another run.

BRILLIANT PLAY MARKS ADVANCE OF GOLF CHAMP

With Two Overwhelming Triumphs Miss Mackenzie Disposes of Two Opponents.

INTO SEMI-FINALS.

By Edwin S. Johnson
(Canadian Press Staff Writer).

SCARBORO GOLF CLUB, Toronto, Sept. 27 (C.P.).—"Heavy lies the head that wears a crown," wrote the wise bard of Avon some centuries ago. If he had any intention of embracing the queens of golf or "gowff" as it was known in his time, he fell a bit short of the mark at least so far as it concerns the wearer of Canada's close diadem, Miss Ada Mackenzie, of Toronto.

Confident and carefree, Miss Mackenzie had smiled her way into the semi-finals of the second ranking golf event in the Dominion, brushing aside with bold and business-like precision those who have crossed her path to her sixth term on the throne.

Winner of the medal in the qualifying round, the Toronto star continued her successful march yesterday with two overwhelming triumphs with sparkling play such as the classic has seldom witnessed. She first brought about the downfall of Miss Kitty Gordon, another Torontonian, by a score of 8 and 7, and followed it up by eliminating Ottawa's only contender, Miss Dorothy Harris, 7 and 6.

Not Troubled.

If she was troubled by the prospect of meeting Mrs. R. W. Gouinlock, Toronto, in the semi-final today, she failed to betray a semblance of concern.

"To-day is another day, but so long as I'm getting results, there is no need to worry," was the way the defending title holder put it.

And while this pair is waging a battle of survival, two other stars, Mrs. C. B. Ford, former champion of Vancouver, and Mrs. F. J. Mulqueen, the third Torontonian in the semi-final brackets, will fight it out for the right to advance. All are noted as keen match players, who have been tested under the fire of championship ordeal, and with Miss Mackenzie weathered still opposition in two gruelling rounds yesterday.

Continuing her steady play, Mrs. Ford accounted for Mrs. E. Jackson, Victoria, B.C., in the morning by a 6 and 5 score, and came with a belated rush to eliminate Mrs. E. W. Whittington, Toronto, by a 3 and 2 margin in the quarter final.

Strenuous Task.

Miss Mulqeen had a more strenuous task but in her progress brought about the elimination of Miss Margery Kirkham, a former holder of the title from Montreal, with a clean-cut 5 and 4 victory. In the afternoon match, however, she was carried to the 18th green before the challenge of Mrs. T. G. Agar, Toronto, was halted.

Dipping into her bag of tricks for timely spurts of brilliance, Mrs. Gouinlock first brushed aside Mrs. H. Sedgwick, another Toronto player, and then breezed through to a sound win over Mrs. C. B. Shuttleworth with a 4 and 3 count in the third round to defeat the last remaining Hamilton aspirant.

TONY CANZONERI EARNS DECISION

GIVE WEIGHT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 27 (U.P.).—Little Tony Canzoneri, former holder of three world titles, last night smashed his way back into the big-time fight picture by winning a close ten-round decision over Harry Dublinsky of Chicago, in their third or "rubber" meeting at Ebbets Field.

A crowd of about 17,000 jamming the ball park saw Canzoneri just squeeze out a verdict over the cold-eyed Chicago welter by virtue of a long lead piled up in the first four rounds. In these rounds he feinted, jabbed and hooked, but refused to be pulled into the infighting that spelled his defeat in their second fight here several weeks ago.

In a sense it was a hollow victory for the battered Canzoneri whose busy fists have held three world's titles in a career extending over a decade. At the final bell he was spitting great mouthfuls of blood. His face was the texture of raw meat while Dublinsky, far less marked, was seemingly still full of the fight that just fell short of victory.

Gave Away 5½ Pounds.

Tony at 134¾ gave away 5½ pounds to the lanky Chicagoan. Remembering well the drubbing that followed his initial effort to slug with Dublinsky, Canzoneri spent the first four rounds feinting his adversary out of position and tagging him with a looping left and an occasional sharp right.

The first phase of the Canzoneri attack had Dublinsky completely mystified. In the opening round he looked definitely as Tony bounded off the ropes to score repeatedly. In the second he did a little better, running Tony with a brief body flurry as the round ended.

The Petes lost a heartbreaker in Toronto yesterday. They should have won this first game of their Ontario semi-final series from the G. & W. Grads. They were the better team, we thought, but between tough breaks and their own inability to come through at the right time—well, the result was a 6-4 nod for the Grads. Our pitching went haywire in the second and Toronto got five of their six markers. Otherwise, we had 'em skinned prop erly and right in their own backyard. The majority of the thousand or so fans were rooting for the Petes, whether because they thought we were out-lucked or because they were sore at Grads for their raw deal to Kruschens, we can't say.

* * * * * *

As far as the second inning goes, here's the dope. Archie Deyell fell heir to his old weakness of letting a runner on first bother him. He was going along okay till a guy hit safely to start the second. This kept the big righthander so worried he couldn't find the plate and he walked the next two, filling the sacks with none out. As he looked to be getting no better fast, Knotty Lee yanked him for Kitchen. Russ was trying too hard, and after he got two out, four hits in a row were gained off him. It looked very black for the Petes then, but doggone if Kitchen and his buddies didn't settle down and blank Toronto the rest of the way.

* * * * * *

The Petes had jumped on Art Upper hard for three runs in the first inning, but of course this melted away in the second. They hammered Upper out of the box and finally got a run in the seventh off McMullen. This latter heaver isn't a world beater but he held the Petes pretty good. When they did get runners on, they couldn't push 'em home. They had three on, one in, and just one out in the seventh, but could do nothing more about it. Two double-plays, a couple of pieces of shaky defensive play by them and some lucky fielding by the Grads in pinches—that's what we mean when we say they were also out-lucked. Oh, well, Saturday is another day. They meet in the second game here Saturday.

* * * * * *

What are the Grads like? Well, they have a nice club, with four or five good hitters and most of them smart fielders. Their ace heaver was Upper, and he didn't last long. Moon McMullen is pretty fair, but shouldn't beat the Petes again. Moffatt is their big bet for the second game, and we don't think he rates as high around Toronto as the other two. They'll give any man's team a battle, but when the Petes are going right—and surely they will for this fixture—they look somewhat better. If they lose, why they're through for the season, that's all.

* * * * * *

The hitting of Konopka was a feature for the locals. He got three neat singles in four official times up. The whole gang did some very good fielding. They had three errors, but only Whatley's high throw to third could be blamed on the player. Murray was tagging out a runner on a steal at second when the runner kicked the ball out of his hand, and Foley's throw to the plate—for the other error—was okay but the runner blocked the catcher's vision and it went to the screen. Ash went good again on first. Yeah, they ought to win the next one, and the third tussle, too.

* * * * * *

Those Cogs of ours and Milton are having themselves quite a time in the intermediate O.B.A.A. semi-finals. Milton took a ten-inning decision at home last week and then the two teams came here yesterday and fought to a 4-all draw in nine frames. Percy Vannest pitched a swell game to hold the visitors to four hits and fan eight, but his teammates failed to hit timely in the first half. The last half saw a smart encounter. We didn't see the game but understand it was plenty exciting the final four or five innings. Milton has a neat fielding team, but we think the Cogs are better balanced all around and ought to win the series.

* * * * * *

Next game is in Milton Friday afternoon—or Oakville, nearby, if the Milton grounds aren't available. The Milton team draws huge crowds ,and as expenses for these long trips run into plenty of shekels, Cogs agreed to go there for the next tilt on a split-gate guarantee. If Cogs win, they'l immediately turn out and play the deciding game of the series right there the same day. Manager Dorsey Davis thinks his team will go just as well on foreign territory—and we don't see why they should not.

* * * * * *

Once again the gal softballers battled to a close decision at the Bowl in their third playoff game, Keene beating Westclox, 17 15. As the score indicates, it was a heavy-hitting tussle with the local squad using two hurlers in a vain attempt to turn back the Keenesters. Must have been an exciting setto, from all accounts. This gives Keene two wins out of three in the five-game series, and the fourth will be in Keene at 4.45 Friday. One more win for the villagers gives them the title, while Westclox can balance the series by copping Friday's fracas.

STRATFORD WINS FROM NIAGARA IN SENIOR GAME

Behind Lefty Goldsmith, Southampton Defeats Windsor in Finals.

CHATHAM EARNS WIN.

Stratford's pennant-rushing Nationals were a step nearer the senior Ontario amateur baseball title to-day. Moving along with the senior race, lower leagues were also another niche higher in their declaration of respective champions.

Offsetting a comedy of errors afield, Nationals batted vigorously to win the first game of their semi-final round against Niagara Falls yesterday. Unable to take advantage of their opposition's eight errors, Cataracts only showed batting punch in one inning and it was not enough.

Stratford jumped into a three-run lead in the second inning on a walk, two hits and an error and it stood until the fifth when the Falls put together three hits, three errors and a walk for four runs. Nationals regained the lead with a brace of tallies in the eighth and added one more in the final frame.

Southampton's great Lefty Goldsmith made few pitching mistakes and produced nearly enough offensive power by himself as the fishermen downed Windsor Walkersides, 5-3, in the first game of the intermediate 'A' semi-finals. Goldsmith allowed but three hits, struck out 13, walked one and added to this with two doubles and a single, good for two runs. Windsor put on a late ninth-inning rally to avert a shut-out.

Chatham colored all-stars took the lead in their intermediate 'B' playoffs against Terriers by making two straight with an 11-7 victory.

Meaford and Penetang played to a tie, 10 innings of good baseball ending with a 3-3 score. Penetang tied the game in the sixth with a three-run assault on pitcher Phillips.

The junior situation was all even as Toronto Hillcrests and Owen Sound Crescents tied up their semi-final rounds. Hillcrest beat Belleville Crystalacs, 8-4, to make their series one game each and Owen Sound did the same thing with a 12-0 shutout over Brantford Alerts.

Canadian Athletes Sail For Australia

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 27 (CP).—The pick of Canada's schoolboy track and field stars, winners in the trials to represent the Dominion in the coming Victoria centenary at Melbourne, Australia, to-day were aboard the S.S. Makura en route south. The party was headed by Dr. A. S. Lamb of McGill University, and sailed yesterday.

While reluctant to make any forecast on the Canadians' chances in the athletic competition, Dr. Lamb indicated he thought his boys would make a good showing.

During the 24-day trip to Sydney, the athletes will condition themselves on the after deck of the steamer, as it is not equipped with a gymnasium. The party arrived in the morning and made a hurried sight-seeing trip of San Francisco.

Welsh Team Chosen For English Match

CARDIFF, Wales, Sept. 27 (CP Cable).—The Welsh soccer eleven to meet England here on Saturday, in the first international match of the season, was chosen to-day as follows:

John (Preston), goal; Lawrence (Swansea, and Jones (Leicester), backs; Murphy (West Bromwich), Griffith (Middlesbrough), and Richards (Wolves), half backs; Phillips (Wolves), O'Callaghan (Spurs), Williams (Newcastle), Mills(Leicester) and Willie Evans (Spurs), forwards.

Preparing For World Series

Extra help was added to the office staff of the Detroit American league club as the Tigers marched toward a pennant, and thousands of requests for World Series seats poured in. A few bales of the applications are pictured as clerks prepared to fill them.

TIGERS' INFIELD IS RATED BETTER THAN CARDS OR GIANTS BY GOULD

Batting Average of .325 and Provided Most Teams' Winning Rallies.

WAY ABOVE GIANTS.

(By Alan Gould, A.P. Sports Editor.)

NEW YORK, September 27 (A.P.).—The Detroit infield quartette of Greenberg, Gehringer, Rogell and Owen may not be able to give a mellow touch to "Sweet Adeline" under the clubhouse shower, but they can play harmonious tunes with their bats and put up an iron-bound defence against anything the baseball enemy has to offer.

They are four of the main reasons why the Tigers are well equipped to tackle either the Giants or the Cardinals in the forthcoming World Series. Like a quartette of Grenadiers they have stood shoulder to shoulder all season breaking up opposing attacks and in turn providing most of the ammunition for Detroit's winning rallies.

The best proof of this remarkably durable infield's power is its aggregate batting average of .325. It's sufficient evidence to entitle these Tigers to an all-around edge over either the giant combination of Terry, Critz, Ryan, and Jackson of the Cardinal cast of Collins, Frisch, Durocher, and Martin.

Margin Over Cards.

The Detroit quartette's margin over the Cardinals in hitting is around 30 points per man and nearer 50 points over the Giants. The clinching evidence is that the Tiger infielders have driven over 425 runs this season as compared to less than 300 by the Cardinal quartette and less than 250 by the Giant inner workers.

Defensively the comparisons are pretty close to being a Mexican standoff. On the one side, Terry and Critz have a slight margin over rival combinations in defensive skill although there may be some dispute as to this. On the other, the fielding marks of Rogell and Owen are a bit more impressive than those of either possible opposing pair, but here again the difference is scarcely noticeable on the diamond.

Columbus Will Be Leafs' Opponents

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 27. (AP). Columbus Red Birds to-day were flaunting their second straight American Association pennant. They clinched the honors last night by trouncing the Minneapolis Millers, 7-3, for the fourth Bird victory against three losses.

There was no relaxation in the Redbird camp, however, as preparations were underway for the Little World Series against Toronto Maple Leafs starting tomorrow.

The A.A. champions boast one of the best-balanced minor league clubs in the history of the sport and, while no Redbird would flatly predict a series triumph against the classy International league champions led by the savage hitting Ike Boone, it was the general impression the Birds confidently expect to retain the world minor league title.

SILVER SLIPPERS

Chapter 50

In a week Joan was to marry him! She would go through with it now, although more and more she shrank from it. Drew was unstable, she could not deceive herself, yet it was too late now to draw back. She knew the exact moment when her doubts had crystallized—that moment with Giles Armiger in Paris when he had told her that he loved her.

Dinner that night was served in the refectory, a long room, lighted only by a few candles and the afterglow framed by its arched windows. It was toward the end of the dinner that one of the brothers announced that a gentleman wished to speak to Mr. Hallam.

Drew rose, "Did he give his name?"

He had not. He was waiting in the little office.

Drew went out. After his departure, Rose and Nancy and Mrs. Carter kept up, as usual, a sprightly conversation. Joan was quiet. She had a sense of the strangeness of the moment. She sat opposite one of the arched windows and looked straight into the heart of the setting sun. With its gold and crimson it seemed a gateway into a shining future. She wondered if she and Drew would go through that gate and find their Paradise. Surely there would be no flaming sword to bar them out.

They lingered long over their coffee, but Drew did not return. At last Joan rose from the table and went alone into the garden. She sat again on the rim of the fountain, and trailed her fingers in the quiet pool. The doves had flown to the belfry and settled themselves for the night. A few faint stars shone overhead but in the sky was lingering the rose and gold and green of the afterglow.

Joan heard a step on the cloistered porch and turned expecting Drew. But it was not Drew. It was the brother to whom she had spoken in the afternoon and he handed her a little parcel, "It was left for you."

She asked, "Who left it?"

"The gentleman who came to see Mr. Hallam."

The brown-clad brother went away and Joan opened the parcel. Within she found a tiny, carved ship, gay with purple and crimson and gold. There was no card. No clue by which she might trace the giver.

The night came on, and the moon rose. Joan still waited, thinking Drew would join her. She wondered what was keeping him. She wondered, too, about the man who had sent the boat. Why had he come, and what business would he have with Drew?

The little reception room of the monastery was a bare place, with high windows which framed at the moment oblongs of rose-lighted sky. Giles was standing at one of the windows, and turned as Drew entered.

For a few moments they faced each other in silence, then Drew said: "You wished to see me?"

"Yes. Shall we be interrupted here? I should like to speak to you alone."

"We can go outside."

Drew led the way to a gate which was opened by one of the brown-clad brothers. Beyond the gate was a little grove where seats had been set about for such wayfarers as wished to rest and look at the view. Through a cleared space in the dark cedars was a vista of the peaks of the mountain range, bathed now in the mists of evening, and sweeping back toward the sunset like the waves of a glorious sea.

Standing by a bench, with his hand on the back of it, Giles came at once to the subject in hand. "I am afraid you will not like what I have to say. But I must say it. I want you to release Joan Dudley from her promise to marry you."

Drew's laugh was insolent: "Are you mad?"

"No. I have been hearing things about you in Paris, Hallam. Things I am sure Joan doesn't know."

"Why should she know them? My past is my own. My future is Joan's. You are wasting your time to talk about it, Armiger." Drew was holding on to his temper, but his face was flushed.

"Your past is not your own, unless the woman you are to marry is willing to forgive it. The things I have heard, Joan Dudley would never forgive."

Drew's voice had a fierce note: "Of what, specifically, are you accusing me?"

"Of a gambling record that is not, to say the least—pretty—and as for your affairs—with women—", Giles stopped there, significantly.

Drew took a step forward, "You dare say this to me?" he demanded, furiously.

"I dare say anything that will help to save Joan. I am her friend. I am more than that. I love her . . ."

"I refuse to discuss her with you," sharply. "If you love her that is none of my affair. She loves me. In a week she will be my wife."

"She will not be your wife in a week."

"What do you mean?"

"She shall not marry you, if I can help it. Either you must tell her of your past, or I shall do it."

Drew, flaming, lifted his arm, menacing. But Giles did not move. "I know, you'd like to knock me down. In the old days we would have settled the whole thing on a field of honor. In modern times we are less spectacular. We might fight it out with our fists, but I see no reason for that. I see only one thing, that if Joan marries you, she must do it with her eyes open . . ."

"Do you think if you told her, she would believe you?"

"I think she would . . ."

Drew threw back at him an accusation: "You want her for yourself."

"God knows that I do," said Giles with earnestness, "but if I can never have her, I shall still do my best to keep her from you."

For a moment there was silence. The wind had risen and the trees about them creaked and rustled. The tops of the mountains were bathed in pearl, the scene was spectral, almost sinister.

When Drew spoke finally, he was sullen: "If I promise to tell her will that satisfy you?"

"Yes. But I must have, of course, some assurance that she knows everything."

"What assurance?"

"If she breaks the engagement, there must be an immediate announcement in the daily press. If she does not break it, I shall write to her, giving her all the facts, and the proofs—"

Drew's laugh was not pleasant. "I might checkmate you, Armiger. You wouldn't like to see your little friend humiliated. If she throws me over, I'll run away with—Rose Carter."

Giles gave a sharp exclamation. "You cad . . ."

It was then that Drew struck him. In another moment they were struggling under the trees. They were well-matched. Giles had youth on his side, but he was slight beside Drew's bulk. They were both mad with anger, primitive . . . They breathed heavily, and their scuffling feet scattered the leaves. This way and that—back and forth . . . a pair of brutes . . .

Suddenly, with extraordinary strength, Giles flung Drew off. "Oh, we are—beasts," he said, "and she is so high above us."

He stood there with hanging head. Drew whipped a handkerchief out of his pocket and held it to his face. "You've given me an ugly scratch," he said, "how am I going to explain it?"

"That," said Giles, very pale, "is the least I have to think about. It is Joan's happiness, Joan's future, which weighs on my heart."

"I'll make a bargain with you," Drew said, out of a short silence, "if I follow your preposterous program—and if she gives me up, you've got to keep off the whole thing for a couple of years . . ."

"Keep off?"

"Promise not to ask her to marry you until then. I'm not going to have the whole world saying she jilted me for you . . ."

"Why should I promise?"

"Because, if you don't, I swear I'll marry Rose at once. Then they could say I jilted Joan."

Again silence, then Giles said, "I promise. For two years I'll keep away from her."

"On your word of honor?"

"I've said it," sharply.

Hallam gave a short laugh, "Of course your word is your bond. But you needn't think I've lost her yet. She loves me . . . and I can show her new worlds. You would limit her to narrow things . . . your old sea-town, your island . . . what would she know of the joy of living?"

For a moment Giles did not speak, then he said with quickened breath, "Such a life as she and I would live together is beyond your knowing, Hallam."

They walked back to the gate. "You think you've won," Drew said, "but you needn't think she isn't going to suffer. She cares for me a lot."

"Better to suffer now, than in the years to come," was Giles' response.

The two men parted at the gate, and Giles made his way to his car which was parked in the road which led back of the monastery. The driver had heard nothing of the struggle in the grove. And it was too dark for him to see the somewhat disheveled aspect of his passenger.

As Drew went in through the gate, the lantern shone on his face. The lay-brother spoke with solicitude. "You are hurt?"

"I stumbled," Drew lied, "and a branch struck me."

While this may prove to be a very lively and interesting day, according to the lunar aspects, yet there are many adverse conditions to be wisely and tactfully manipulated. Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of certain prospects for gain through speculative enterprises or other "gambles", providing they are on guard against fraud, trickery and misrepresentation. With discretion, wise counsel, conservatism with funds and the assistance of friends there may be many advantages and some increase of fortune.

Wants Action

WINDSOR, Sept. 27.—(CP)—William Lewis, 27, of Hamilton, is much concerned about his wedding scheduled to be held in Niagara Falls, Oct. 5, he declared in police court to-day. That was why he changed plans for trial on an auto theft charge.

Arrested Sept. 3 along with James Morand, of Detroit, Lewis at first asked for trial by judge and jury. Preliminary steps seemed too slow so now he asks that the magistrate decide the case. He will be heard next Monday.

Morand to-day pleaded guilty to the theft charge and maybe this will help Lewis keep the appointment at the altar.

One Is Arrested In Sport Fracas

TORONTO, Sept. 27. — (C. P.) — Harry Stone, 32, was arrested here to-day by Detective Russell Dodds on an aggravated assault charge arising out of an attack on Umpire Clare Hoose, Toronto ball player, during a game Monday night in which Hoose was seriously injured about the head.

Hoose was reported as making favorable progress in hospital to-day. At first he was thought to have suffered a fractured skull. He will leave the hospital this week.

When struck, Hoose was attempting to banish irate fans from the ball field after he had called a close play at home plate. This prevented one of the team from tying the score in the eighth inning.

URGE IMPERIAL PARLEY IN 1935

British Gov't Pressed to Take Advantage of King's Jubilee Celebrations.

EMPIRE EXPORTS UP.

LONDON, Sept. 27 (CP Cable)—The British Chamber of Commerce to-day unanimously passed a resolution urging the government to take opportunity of the King's Silver Jubilee celebrations next year, when leaders from the Dominions will be in London, to call another Imperial Economic Conference.

This conference could review the trade position in the light of the Imperial agreements signed at the Imperial Economic Conference in Ottawa in 1932, it was pointed out.

Suggestions that another economic conference be held while the Dominion heads are gathered in London have been made frequently.

Figures published to-day showed that Britain's exports to the Empire had topped her exports to foreign countries this year for the first time in history. Only a few days ago Ottawa reported that an increase of Canadian trade with the rest of the Empire more than accounted for her total increase of trade over last year.

In the first eight months of the year the exports to Empire countries increased by more than $60,000,000 over last year, or 14.2 per cent. Exports to foreign countries increased by $13,750,000, or 2.9 per cent.

The net effect was to bring the Empire exports $9,315,000 higher than exports to foreign countries.

Urge Bear Bounty To Preserve Moose

TORONTO, Sept. 27 (C.P.) — A bounty on bear similar to the one awarded for killing of wolves was urged here to-day by M. U. Bates, well-known authority, to preserve moose in the district north of Sudbury.

"If immediate action is not taken to curtail the increase of bear, moose will soon go the way of deer and become very few," he said.

He didn't believe good dogs were a serious menace to deer, he told a meeting of hunters, "but these half-bred dogs will kill a deer easily."

Two Alligators at Filtration Plant Are Growing Rapidly—3 Feet Long

"What are they going to do with them when they grow up?"

With visions of two man-eating monsters of the future, this seems to be the question uppermost in the minds of the curious who go to Peterborough Filtration plant to stare at the two alligators which are captives there. The reptiles are each about a yard long now and growing rapidly.

Ross Dobbin, Utilities' manager, who brought the alligators from Florida in the spring of 1932, has no answer for the question. "We are not worrying yet," he states. "They may die before they get too large, for the Canadian climate is a bit chilly for alligators."

The reptiles measured about 12 inches when they first arrived. In summer they are kept in a miniature pond sunk in the Filtration plant lawn and in winter they are moved indoors. George Trotter, a plant employee, has voluntarily taken over the care of the specimens. His principal duty is to toss them once each week a feed of a couple of pounds of raw beef each. The meat is provided by employees at their own expense.

The alligators have proved an unfailing attraction to Peterborough people. On almost any week-day evening and invariably on Sunday, a group of spectators is to be found grouped about the tank. The beasts are shy, however, and many visitors are disappointed for quite often nothing more than a snout poked up through the wooden shade platform can be seen. If the visitor is lucky he will arrive at a time when one of the creatures is sunning himself on the concrete ledge which the pond affords.

Mounties Turn Ardent Disarmament Fans After Run In Fog Shows Navy Testing Guns

SYDNEY, N.S., Sept. 27 (C.P.).—Two score seamen and Royal Canadian Mounted Police became ardent advocates of disarmament today after they had grouped about in the fog off the Cape Breton coast in search of a vessel in distress, only to find that fears had been aroused by two Canadian destroyers having target practice.

They manned four vessels that put to sea last night after New Waterford, Glace Bay and Dominion reported distress flares seen off the coast had been followed by a series of explosions.

Belief was expressed that a tragedy had occurred. The Dominion Steel and Coal Corporation tug Cruiser, cutter Una, and another vessel sped seaward from Sydney and the police took another craft out from Glace Bay.

Early this morning they returned to port with the news that H.M.C.S. Saguenay and H.M.C.S. Champlain, far from their base at Halifax, had been holding a target practice after dark.

BUTTER CLUB HEARS OFFICER OF HEALTH

Protection of Milk and Dairy Products Stressed by Speaker.

The protection of milk and dairy products from contamination in the different steps of handling and processing before they reach the consumer was discussed by Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health, in an address to the Kawartha Butter Club last night. A meeting of eighteen members was held in the Department of Agriculture offices.

Dr. Fraser declared that milk, of all edible commodities, is one of the most susceptible to germ contamination. Absolutely pure milk is an impossibility, he said. He expressed a conviction that pasteurization is a guarantee of at least a safe standard of purity.

The speaker outlined briefly the principal avenues by which milk is contaminated during its handling and discussed safeguards for preventing the contamination. The subject of his talk was "Safe Milk".

The group in attendance included the principal butter makers of Peterborough city and district. In the regular club cream and butter grading competition possession of club cup went for the coming month to Fergus Healey of Canada Packers. In second and third places were C. R. Kennedy of Silverwood's Peterborough Dairy and William Dunlop of Lindsay. Arthur Davies, dairy inspector for Peterborough district, supervised the contest.

F. J. Parish of the United Farmers' Co-operative Creamery in Toronto and a member of the Toronto Butter Club, was a guest at the meeting. He spoke of the successes of the junior dairy judging competitions at the Canadian National Exhibition this year and mentioned the success in those competitions of two juniors from this district, Howard Hamilton, Lakefield and Fred Rutherford, Havelock, both had victories to their credit.

The next meeting of the club will be held October 10 in Lindsay.

Magistrate's Court

When Peter Zerbon, a Ukrainian, appeared in answer to a charge of intoxication this morning and claimed that he was unable to understand the charge as read to him by the Magistrate, the services of an interpreter were sought.

William Swistelnikoff acted as intermediary between the magistrate and the defendant, and the court was treated to a hearty laugh when after the interpreter had read over the sentence to the man in the dock he translated the reply as being, 'I haven't any money".

"that's just too bad," was the dry comment from the bench "He will have to serve 15 days in default."

WELD ALL POLICE AUTHORITIES, MAKE IT ILLEGAL TO PAY RANSOM IS ROEBUCK'S KIDNAPPING CURE

WIPE MENACE OUT.

NEW YORK, Sept. 26 (CP) — Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General for Ontario, to-day laid before law enforcement and crime prevention authorities of the United State, a plan designed to eradicate the growing menace of kidnapping for ransom.

The law's reply to challenges from kidnappers, he declared, should be "certainty of apprehension, and make the business unprofitable." This would be accomplished by making it illegal to pay a ransom and by welding all police authorities into a mobile unit which could be stretched out in any direction at sudden notice.

Mr. Roebuck, speaking at The New York Herald-Tribunes conference on current problems of 1934, emphasized his opposition to what he called centralization of police authority "and the reorganization of our civil officials on the basis of a standing army." But what he thought was required was "Generalship; and generalship necessitates unified control."

Perfect Police Machinery

First of the methods to fight kidnapping "involves the perfecting to the maximum of human ability our machinery for detection and capture. Certainty of capture should be our goal. And to this end the entire police force of the nation, if not of the continent, should move in perfect unison organized as one man with every resource coordinated."

He also told of his preparations to submit to the Legislature a proposal which would "entrust the executive with power to supervise the bank accounts and other resources of relatives, friends and other persons while they are subject to the pressure of such illegal demands, and by so doing, thus forcibly prevent payment of ransom."

Mr. Roebuck agreed such measures might prove a hardship to relatives of a kidnapped victim but he expressed the conviction that if plotters knew in advance a ransom could not be paid and such payment would be prevented by law authorities, "the relative would not have been kidnapped."

Hardships Justified.

His own experiences gained from the recent abduction of John S. Labatt, London, Ont., millionaire, were related by Mr. Roebuck, who said he thought the consequent hardship to relatives in individual cases "is justified by the general welfare of the State. It is not new that the State should ask individuals to bear hardship for the common good."

Assurance authorities would be able to prevent payment of ransom by relatives ready to meet the demands of kidnappers, was given by the speaker, who reverted to the Labatt abduction.

"It is well worthy of note that, hampered in many ways as have been the Ontario police in the recent and notable crime of this character," he said, "the kidnappers have nevertheless been singularly unsuccessful. Had the bandits held their victim 24 hours longer we would have rounded up the entire gang.

"It was fear of detection which forced them to release their victim. Since that time we have exhausted every police resource in successfully preventing the payment of the money. We have trailed the kidnapped man and allhis relatives and camped upon the doorstep of his bank. We have forcibly prevented payment while our Investigation Department pursued with relentless energy every clue which might reveal the identity of the criminals.

Labatt Case a Washout.

"Had these modern buccaneers been supplied with financial resources as the result of a successful coup, it is quite obvious that the likelihood of a getaway would have been considerably increased. As a result of police activity, however, we believe we have not only made the crime a washout financially, but we have also reason to expect that we have solved as well the problem of the identity of the perpetrator.

"The solution of the problem is the improvement of police methods by the greater organization of resources and the unification of command and second by the passing of such legislation as will make practically impossible the payment of the ransom for which the crime is perpetrated. By these methods, and by these methods only, this modern and highly objectionable offence may, I believe, be met and wiped out."

CUT THIS OUT

EXCELLENT RECIPE FOR CATARRH, CATARRHAL DEAFNESS AND HEAD NOISES.

If you know of some one who is troubled with Catarrhal Deafness, head noises, or ordinary catarrh, cut out this formula and hand it to them and you may have been the means of saving some poor sufferer perhaps from total deafness. Scientists for a long time past have recognized that catarrh is a constitutional disease, and necessarily requires constitutional treatment.

Sprays, inhalers, and nose douches are liable to irritate the delicate air passages and force the disease into the middle ear, which frequently means total deafness, or else the disease may be driven down the air passages towards the lungs, which is equally as dangerous. The following formula which is used extensively is a constitutional treatment and should prove especially efficacious to sufferers.

Secure from your druggist 1 ounce of Parmint (Double strength). Take this home and add to it ¼ pint hot water and a little granulated sugar; stir until dissolved. Take one tablespoonful four times a day. This will often bring quick relief from distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and hearing improve as the inflammation in the sustachian tubes is reduced. Parmint used in this way acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system and has a tonic action that helps to obtain the desired results. The preparation is easy to make, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Every person who has catarrh or head noises or is hard of hearing should give this treatment a trial.

WANTS TO HELP STRICKEN PARTS

Surrey's High Sheriff Wants Better Districts to Assist Poorer Ones.

ADOPT AREAS

JARROW, England, Sept. 26 (CP)—Proposals whereby prosperous counties should adopt parts of distressed areas to help in their commercial revival have been outlined by Sir John Jarvis, High Sheriff of Surrey. He has written to Jarrow and other centres, asking how far the depression has affected the former leading industries.

In an interview Sir John explained his scheme as follows:

"I am High Sheriff of Surrey, which is a prosperous county compared with some of those northern areas that have become unemployment "plague" spots. It has occurred to me that there is no reason why we should not help our distressed friends up there.

"Promiscuous charity is to be avoided at all costs, for this does not solve the problem. I want the money that is raised to be paid out in the form of wages. At the moment, however, nothing definite has been evolved, but I shall have some definite announcement to make in the near future.

"I propose that Surrey should adopt one area to create employment, and if this is a success I shall call the other High Sheriffs together and ask them to co-operate in a similar manner.

"I believe that individual effort which is not concentrated on charity can achieve far more than has been achieved in the past. With this end in view I am consulting all my friends who may have valuable suggestions to make, and I am meeting several members of the Labor party.

"I hope we shall be able to show the government what an immense amount of good can be done." Sir John, whose home is near Godalming, is deputy-chairman of the Argus Printing Co., Ltd., and is interested in a number of bus companies.

Growing Too Much Like Orphans' Homes, Minister Says of Shelters.

WARDS KEPT TOO LONG.

Claims Foster Homes Should be Found or Youngsters Boarded Out.

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—(CP)—Reduction in the number of children's shelters in Ontario was forecast today by Hon. David Croll, Minister of Public Welfare who is studying departmental and independent surveys of the situation.

Speaking of reorganization of the Children's Aid Society branch, the minister said he had made no decision on the survey reports yet.

"But one thing I have decided is the shelters are becoming too much like orphans' homes," he said. "Children go in there when quite young and are kept there in many cases until they are well up in their 'teens."

"The proper idea of a shelter is that they are only for emergency cases. Either foster homes should be found for them or they should be boarded out. They should not become institutions in which the children remain. I also have decided there are too many shelters in the province."

COLIN INKSTER PASSES IN WEST

IN HIS 93RD YEAR.

WINNIPEG, Sept. 28 (C.P.). — A former President of the Manitoba Legislative Council, and Minister of Agriculture in 1874, Colin Inkster, died here to-day in his 93rd year.

A week ago Mr. Inkster was overcome by smoke when his shooting lodge burned, and he was carried unconscious from the flaming cabin by two companions. He contracted bronchial trouble, and the sturdy constitution that had withstood the rugged climate of Manitoba from the early trading post days of Fort Carry was unable to throw off the ailment.

For 52 years he was Sheriff of Manitoba and until within a few months of his death the tall, bronzed man was a familiar figure on North Winnipeg streets as he took his daily walks. Until he was 90 years of age, the old pioneer spent a certain portion of his morning exercising with a skipping rope at his Seven Oaks home.

There, within sight of the Seven Oaks monument to Governor Robert Semple and his followers who fell in the Seven Oaks massacre, Mr. Inkster did his chores about his home until the fall duck-shooting season started.

Veteran of the Hunt.

Mr. Inkster was a veteran of the old prairie buffalo hunts and never lost his love for the chase. Each fall found him in the Selkirk marshes for the duck-shooting season.

A devout churchman, the former Sheriff was Warden of St. John's Anglican Cathedral for 50 years and attended service regularly up until the time of his death.

His maternal grandfather came to the Red River with Lord Selkirk's hardy band of colonists. Colin Inkster received his early education at St John's College, Anglican Boys' School. As a youth he helped his father on their farm and later engaged in freighting goods in the old Red River carts from St. Paul, Minn.

The former Sheriff is survived by two daughters, Sybil and Myra, at home, and two sons, Colin, of Lake Winnipeg, Man., and Richard, of Hatzic, B.C.

Sold!

....NEW YORK, September 28 (C. P.). — Calvin Aronson explained to Magistrate Greenspan his version of how his car happened to be in front of a fire hydrant — another motorist had pushed it there.

He had not explained this to a policeman, the salesman said, because he was saving his words for a learned and just judge.

"What do you sell?" inquired the judge.

"Baloney."

A suspended sentence was the outcome, with a warning not to try salesmanship on the court.

FRAME-UP CASE AIRED IN COURT

London Merchant Claims Mrs. Taylor Invited Him to Her Home.

COST HIM $200.

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 28.—(C.P.)—Frank Taylor, Jr., his wife Rose, and his mother, Mrs. Mae Turnbull, were committed to-day to stand trial at the Fall Assizes of the Ontario Supreme Court on charges of attempted extortion and theft by conversion.

LONDON, Ont., September 28 (C. P.). — Details of how he was allegedly framed and paid $200 to escape threatened prosecution for indecent assault, were told to City Magistrate T. W. Scandrett in the court this morning by a prominent London business man— designated as "Mr. D."

The merchant was the only witness called at a preliminary hearing of blackmail charges against Frank Taylor, Jr., his wife Rose, and his mother, Mrs. Mae Turnbull. Each faces two charges, one of attempted extortion and the other of theft by conversion.

Counsel for the accused trio will move for their acquittal, when the court resumes at two o'clock this afternoon. He will argue that the Crown has not produced sufficient evidence to put them upon their trial. Magistrate Scandrett will be called upon to decide.

Ready on Other Cases.

Acting Crown Attorney Norman Newton stated that he was prepared to proceed with other charges against the three accused this afternoon. These involve the allegations of "Mr. A" another local business man, who claims to have been mulcted of over $10,000 through the alleged blackmail activities of Mr. and Mrs. Taylor and Mrs. Turnbull. Frank Taylor, Sr., first husband of Mrs. Turnbull, has already been committed for jury trial on a charge that he obtained $1,000 from "Mr. A" in an allegedly similar frame-up.

E. L. Haines, fiery young Toronto lawyer, subjected "Mr. D" to a rigorous cross-examiantion after he had told his story of how he was allegedly inveigled into Mrs. Taylor's home at 26 Major street, on the afternoon of April 15, 1932, and was, he said, compromised by the woman. He claimed to have paid Frank Taylor $200 when the three of them threatened to have him charged with indecent assault upon finding him alone with Mrs. Taylor in the house.

"Mr. D," a married man, was the first and only witness in the box,

Three Extra Police Are Sent to Gogoma

SUDBURY, Ont., Sept. 28—Three Provincial constables have been sent from Sudbury district headquarters staff to Gogama, where over 100 employees of the Northern Development Branch have been on strike since Monday morning.

"There has been no violence and we do not anticipate any, but the men are being sent in case they are needed," stated Inspector A. H. Palmer this morning.

The constables are George Grasick, E. J. Cleland and J. Burgess. They will join Constable T. S. Crawford, who is permanently at Gogama.

The strikers are all employed on a relief road project, for which they are being paid only the amount of relief to which they are entitled, and for which they must work at 25 cents an hour. They demand 26 days work a month at $2 a day.

BASING DEFENSE UPON INSANITY FOR HAUPTMANN

Hint Given By Prisoner's Counsel He Plans Psychiatrist's Examination.

MOTHER'S HOME SEARCHED

German Police Aid U. S. Detective While Woman is Absent

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP) — A plan to have Bruno Richard Hauptmann, indicted as the extortioner of the $50,000 Lindbergh kidnap ransom payment, examined by a psychiatrist was announced to-day by his counsel.

The lawyer, James M. Fawcett, made his announcement when he arrived at the Bronx County Courthouse to confer with District Attorney Samuel J. Foley, but he declined to give his reasons for the move.

"I am going to have my own psychiatrist see Hauptmann," Fawcett said. He added that his family physician would examine the prisoner at the same time in his cell in the Bronx County Jail either today or tomorrow, and that he would be guided by his own personal physician in the choice of the psychiatrist.

"Does this mean that you are going to offer a defence based on insanity or a mental condition?" Fawcett was asked.

"You can draw your own conclusion," he replied, as he hurried into the District Attorney's offices.

Planning Extradition

A visit by Assistant Attorney General Joseph Lanigan of New Jersey, to the District Attorney's office gave rise to belief that it might have to do with preparation of final steps to extradite the prisoner to New Jersey, the state in which the Lindbergh baby was kidnapped and killed.

Foley announced Lanigan's presence in the Bronx, but declined to discuss the purpose of his visit.

However, the District Attorney made it clear that if New Jersey did ask for removal, "We will be only too willing to co-operate."

"We will surrender the prisoner even in advance of trial here," Foley said. "We are working in perfect accord with Jersey," and to add emphasis he said, "and that is literal."

The Bronx District Attorney let it be known to-day that he had been placed in entire charge of the investigation in and around New York City, and said he never before had seen so many men working on a single case as those placed "under my charge by all three agencies." The agencies are the Bureau Investigation of the Department of Justice, New Jersey State Police, and New York City officials.

The subject of an early trial for Hauptmann on the extortion indictment in the Bronx was expected to be one of the subjects discussed with Fawcett by Foley. The District Attorney reiterated to-day that he desired an early trial and that the case will "be heard on a date that will suit the best interests of justice."

Hauptmann, meanwhile, remained in his cell at the Bronx County Jail to-day, and Foley indicated he would not be taken out during the day.

Fawcett said to-day that the

A Mechanic

PITTSBURGT, Pa., Sept. 28 (CP)—Arrested for sharing in the proceeds from a stolen child's bank which contained 35 cents, a 13-year-old youth explained to the police:

"I'm no bank robber; I'm a mechanic and I just charged for my labor."

He said two other boys stole the bank from the home of Edgar James, and they asked him to open it.

"But I split the money equally between them after charging for my labor. I gave them each a penny; my fee was 33 cents."

Police held the "mechanic" for Juvenile Court.

HEPBURN, NIXON BECOME CHIEFS

Six Nations Name Premier Roe-Ne-Ren-Ne "The People Are Following Him.

TRIBES' 67TH FAIR.

OHSWEKEN, Ont., Sept. 28.—(CP). Throbbing drums to-day hailed to this Brant county Indian Reserve centre members of the Six Nations Indian confederacy for a ceremony in which chieftainship was bestowed on two leaders of Ontarios government.

Representatives of the Mohawks, Cayugas, Tuscororas, Oneidas, Senecas, Delawares and Onondagas, swarmed here, many of them wearing picturesque ceremonial dress of their forefathers, to honor Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn and Hon. Harry Nixon, provincial treasurer.

Premier Hepburn, ill in bed at his St. Thomas farm home, was represented by Mrs. Hepburn who received as his proxy the title of Chief Roe-Ne-Ren-Ne, meaning, "The people are following him," while Mr. Nixon assumed the feather head-dress of the ancient tribes and the title of Chief Sa-Da-Ga-Re-Hes, "Tree of Equal Strength."

Mr. Nixon's title originated with the formation of the old confederacy of the Six Nations, North America's oldest permanent alliance. It indicates that all chiefs are equals.

Pick Own Tribes Later

Some day Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Nixon will choose which tribe of the Six Nations they will enter in accordance with a prerogative under century-old Indians custom.

To-day's ceremony, held in conjunction with the Six Nations' 67th annual fair, was attended by songs and dances whose origin is lost in the days before the coming of the white man, observances that have been nhanded down by word of mouth for generation after generation.

Tall chiefs, bedecked in rawhide costumes and bristling with feathers, moved through the ancient dances to the beat of one-sided drums, bearing down upon the earth in the manner peculiar to American Indians.

The fair which attracted thousands of visitors from many parts of the country was marked by a luncheon in Ohsweken hall attended by Mrs. Hepburn, Mr. Nixon and minister of the Ontario government.

Provincial Income Tax Rumor Denied

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP) —A report published in Friday's issue of The Toronto Mail and Empire to the effect that the Ontario Government was casting about for new sources of revenue and many set up a provincial income tax at the next session of Legislature, was described by Premier M. F. Hepburn as another effort on the Toronto newspaper to start something without foundation.

"It is just another Mail and Empire rumor," Premier Hepburn declared when questioned by the Canadian Press. "To my knowledge such a thing has never even been mentioned by a member of the Government. As head of the Government, I know nothing about it."

"I would like to have it made known to the public that, to my knowledge, the setting up of a provincial income tax has never even been considered."

CREDIT BALANCE OF 61 CENTS IN TRUST ACCOUNT

Bankers Give Evidence as to Accounts of J. A. O'Brien.

NOTE FOR $275 DUE.

F. H. Johnston Testifies of Being Assured of Security of Account.

(See Pages 2 for Thursday Afternoon and Evening's Evidence.

A credit balance of sixty-one cents in the trust account of the Sarah Menzies estate was reported by C. P. Borland, manager of the Peterborough branch of the Bank of Toronto, who was the first witness called this morning in the trial of Jos. A. O'Brien on a charge of converting funds of the estate to his own use.

The account was in four figures at the turn of the year. On January 4, Mr. Borland said, the credit balance was $2,460.35. The next day $700 was withdrawn, and by January 8 the account had been reduced to $731. On August 4 the last $9 was handed over the counter, leaving the decimal balance in residual cents.

Mr. Borland corroborated evidence of an earlier witness to the effect that Mr. O'Brien had stopped payment of a cheque for $931 to one of the Bradfields in Saskatchewan. The accused explained in a letter that he seemed to have paid too much to some of the Menzies heirs.

A cheque for $694.94 was given by Mr. O'Brien to Maria Weyer last January. It was presented to the bank for payment on January 24, but was marked N.S.F. Two days later $200 was deposited in the account, which then amounted to $706.81, and the cheque was cashed on January 26.

Note for $275 Due

On December 4 last Mr. O'Brien had a note for $275 maturing at the bank, Mr. Borland said. The entries showed that the accused credited his general account with $150 from the trust account and put through a note for $126. This liability had been reduced from

SUSPECT POISON IN BOX OF CANDY

Analyst Testing Contents of Gift Sent Attorney Newton's Sons.

BLACKMAIL REPRISAL?

TORONTO, September 28 (C.P.). —Provincial Police here have received a box of candy, possibly poisoned, which was sent to the two young sons of Crown Attorney Norman F. Newton, whose recent action against alleged blackmailers has brought him several threats of reprisals.

The candy has been given to Professor Joslyn Rogers, provincial analyst, for examination. Inspector John Miller, of the Criminal Investigation Department, said it would be several days before results of the analysis would be known.

"Finding poison is a slow business," he said, "particularly if you don't know what poison you are looking for. Professor Rogers will have to submit the candy to a dozen different tests before he can state authoritatively if any of, it is poisoned. It is unlikely it all would be."

FORT SMITH, Ark., September 28 (C.P.). — Mabel Stanley is ready to concede honors in the ancient gypsy art of fortune telling to Municipal Judge James A. Gallaher.

Asked to testify, she said:

"I would like to tell the fortune of a good-looking Judge like you. You have two children ...I..."

"Wrong," theJudge interrupted. "Now let me tell your fortune. You are going to pay a $25 fine."

NO MAGIC CURES FOR WORLD ILLS

Honest Work, Detailed Planning Necessary Says Ramsay MacDonald.

WINDS UP HOLIDAY.

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Sept. 28. — (C.P. Cable).—His three months' vacation over, Prime Minister J. Ramsay Macdonald of Great Britain sails to-day with his daughter, Ishbel, aboard the liner Nova Scotia returning to England to resume his duties as head of the National Government.

Declaring that he was greatly improved in health after his sojourn in Maritime Canada and Newfoundland, Premier Macdonald last night with renweed vigor, made his first public utterance since arriving in Canada in July.

There were "no quack remedies and no magic cures" for the present economic problems besetting the world, the distinguished Parliamentarian told his audience. Honest work and detailed planning were required in government and administrators must have behind them well-instructed opinion with good judgment.

"Such is the idea guiding us at home," he continued, "and we are beginning to reap our reward."

Cause For Pride.

Britain's national leader, in his message to the people of British North America, said that it should make all members of the Commonwealth proud of what their Ministers were doing to assure recovery and of the "honor and influence which are in consequence being given to the British Commonwealth throughout the world."

He was returning, he said, "to help on that work," but he could not go without "expressing our appreciation of the kindly and understanding way you have helped us to make the best of our stay."

Now that he felt he personally knew the people of these seagirt countries in the new world, he would watch their development with interest.

"As I go back, I shall remember your coves with rugged cliffs and little villages at their ends, your fine rivers and glistening lakes, your forests and clearings, your graceful hills so swift to climb and giving such inspiring views...from my place in Downing Street I shall watch for and welcome every bit of news relating to your welfare and prosperity."

"My friends," Premier Macdonald concluded, "my daughter and I thank you with all our hearts for your care and kindness and bid you good-bye."

NEW LIQUOR LAW IS DESCRIBED AS MOST INIQUITOUS

Peterborough Presbytery of United Church Condemns Sale of Beer.

CENSURES GAMBLING.

Growing Tendency Toward Petty Thieving and Law-breaking Noticed.

Complete condemnation of the sale of beer and wine in hotels as "one of the most iniquitous and disgusting means of dispensing alcohol ever introduced by a legislative body of this Province" was voiced by the Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church as it met in session at George Street United Church yesterday.

Resolution Passed

The Presbytery's resolution on the subject follows:

"We are again faced with the old enemy, Intemperance, in the freer sale of beer and wine in hotels and restaurants. The beverage room is still in its infant stage but already it has proved itself one of the most iniquitous and disgusting means of dispensing alcohol introduced by a legislative body of this Province.

"Drunken men are on the streets again to the annoyance of the public and the traffic on the highway is greatly endangered by an increase of drunken drivers. Men and women may drink openly and unafraid and they appear eager to make a display of the new freedom now permitted them.

"There is something disgusting and depressing in sight of drinkers of both sexes gathered around beer-slopped tables and consuming all the beer they can hold. Already, in some towns, the drinking by men on relief is a problem with which the council is confronted."

Not Asked for by People

"What is to be done? Can the people of this Province remain silent when the family life is threatened with the monster, Strong Drink? The people of Ontario did not ask for it and, in fact, they protested strongly against it and appealed to the governing body through a post card campaign to permit matters to remain as they were. However, two governments have insisted that the Province must have it and today we are paying a tremendous price for a traffic so sorely displeasing to us.

"What do we offer constructively

ROEBUCK HINTS AT NIGHT COURT

Says Toronto May be First City in Canada to Have One.

HANDLE SMALL STUFF.

TORONTO, Sept. 28 (C.P.) — Toronto may become the first city in Canada to establish a night police court.

Intimation such a court may be established here was made by Hon. Arthur Roebuck, Attorney-General, who returned to-day from New York. Mr. Roebuck had been taken by a police official to the night court there, and was impressed with its necessity.

"I was impressed because it cleans up all that small stuff that clutters up the court," he added. "Besides that, it prevents persons from being forced to spend the night in the cells on minor charges, and it means that a man who is a witness doesn't lose his day's pay by having to get off work to testify."

He said he thought the Ontario Capital would be the only city in the province which might establish such a court.

The Attorney-General also took the opportunity to comment on the decision of Judge Daniel O'Connell in refusing to admit statements obtained by Provincial Police in the case of Fred Hastings and Frank Wood, charged with conspiring to kidnap John S. McLean of Canada Packers Limited.

He spoke of a prisoner being at the mercy of questioning police officers before appearance in court, and said excessive questioning of an accused by police is just as much third degree methods as the use of the old-fashioned hose pipe.

NEW ARREST IS EXPECTED KIDNAP CASE

Nature Of Seizure To Surprise Everyone, Says "Jafsie."

SEEK HUNCHED MAN AND LATIN WOMAN.

"Missing" John Maurer Is Found, Questioned, Freed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Dr. J. F. Condon, the "Jafsie" of the Lindbergh kidnap-killing case, says "there will be an important arrest shortly."

"The nature of this arrest will surprise everybody," Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's ransom emissary predicted last night.

His declaration closely followed statements by Department of Justice officials that they are seeking a "stoop-shouldered man" and a woman of Latin appearance in connection with the abduction of 20-month-old Charles Lindbergh, Jr., two and one-half years ago.

The stoop-shouldered man is the one who, masking his face with a handkerchief, peered into Lindbergh's automobile while the aviator awaited Dr. Condon's return from the ransom rendezvous. It was over a nearby cemetery wall that "Jafsie" passed $50,000 for the safe return of a baby whose battered body already had been abandoned in a woods. Only one suspect is under arrest, Richard Bruno Hauptmann.

Extortion Key Topic

The investigation centres today on an attempt to prove that Hauptmann, indicted in New York yesterday for extortion of the ransom, also kidnapped the baby from its nursery near Hopewell, N.J.

Arthur Koehler—the forestry expert who looked at the wood in the kidnapper's ladder and traced it from forest to lumber yard — will bend over his microscope again in an effort to complete the track to Hauptmann's hands.

By the grain in the wood Koehler traced it to a certain forest, from there to the lumber mill, thence to a dealer in the Bronx. Now he will work from the other direction. Taking Hauptmann's tools he will seek to determine whether they were used to construct the ladder.

A nick in a chisel, a dent in a hammer, a bent tooth in a saw, these will give affirmative or negative testimony under the expert's microscope.

Hauptmann, a German carpenter, formerly worked in the lumber yard and bought wood there for various jobs in the neighborhood.

$4,565.62 IS SUM SHORT COURT TOLD

Continue Hearing Against J. A. O'Brien For Converting.

$5,000 AVAILABLE.

Gordon And O'Brien Never Partners, Witness Declares.

The trial of Joseph A. O'Brien on a charge of having fraudulently converted to his own use $4,565.62 of the funds of the estate of the late Sarah Menzies, of which he was administrator, was continued yesterday afternoon and evening until nearly eleven o'clock before Judge A. T. Boles, of Simcoe.

G. A. Urquhart, K.C., of Toronto, special crown prosecutor, conducted the examination of the witnesses called by the crown, and T. J. Carley of Hall and Carley is defense counsel. It is expected that the hearing of evidence will be concluded to-day.

From a previous action in the local Surrogate Court it was adduced that the receipts from the estate totalled $9,042.62 with disbursements of $4,476.90, and it was stated that the administrator had been directed to pay the remaining $4,565.62 to the Bank of Commerce, as representatives of the court.

Several witnesses were examined yesterday afternoon regarding the mental condition of Thomas Bradfield, one of the heirs of Sarah Menzies, who with the other heirs signed a deed of sale of a Stewart street property in August, 1933.

G. N. Gordon, K.C., was on the stand when the trial resumed after the mid-day adjournment yesterday.

Were Not Partners.

In cross-examination Mr. Gordon said that Mr. O'Brien had not been a law partner of his, but had been engaged on salary.

DOMINION OFFERS LATEST REFUNDING LOAN UPON MONDAY

Amount Of Issue Will Be Strictly Limited To $250,000,000.

OTTAWA, Sept. 28. (CP).—The new Domininon refunding loan of $250,000,000 will be offered for public subscription on Monday.

Reports are the issue will be in four manurities, two, five, eight and 15 years. These issues, it is reported, will bear interest respectively at two, 2½, three and 3½ percent.

The terms and series, however, will not be announced for two or three days. Prospectuses will be placed before the general public on Monday morning.

The loan has been under preparation for some weeks. As a matter of fact, they have been complete for some time awaiting only a favorable opportunity to go on the market.

VOTE IN RENFREW OPPOSED TO BEER

Is First Of Dry Municipalities To Test Issues—17 Other Plebiscites Coming.

RENFREW, Ont., Sept. 28. (CP). Firs' of 18 dry municipalities to vote on the question of permitting sale of beer in taverns, Renfrew to-day was definitely in the dry column. The citizens yesterday voted by a 63 majority against establishing taverns in the municipality.

The vote to continue as a dry area was 1,390 against 1,246 for the wets. To bring beer parlors into a municipality there must be three-fifths of the total vote in the wet column.

Unlike Renfrew and the other municipalities which were originally dry districts, Edwardsburg township has obtained permission to vote on whether it will leave the beer ranks and abolish the taverns. Date for the voting has not yet been set.

Other municipalities which will hold plebiscites are; Cardinal, Oct. 9; Essex, Oct. 10; Chapleau, Oct. 10; Maxville, Oct. 15; South Grimsby, Oct. 17; Almonte, Oct. 17; Beamsville, Oct. 5; Blenheim, Oct. 30; Rodney, Oct. 30; Tilbury West Nov. 14. Seven others—Harrow, Southampton, Strathroy, Madison, Bruce Mines, Bagot and Blythfield—have not had their dates for voting set so far.

CROPS FAIL FIFTH YEAR ON PRAIRIES

Despite High Yield In Many Sections, Thousands Of Farmers Will Reap Hardly Enough For Seed.

DROUGHT, HOPPERS DRIFT, PLAY HAVOC

(By Sam G. Ross, C.P. Staff Writer)

WINNIPEG, September 28 (C.P.). —Western Canada's increased agricultural wealth, bountiful to the fortunate, went slipping by to-day for several thousand tillers of the soil in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. For many of them it was the fifth lean year in succession.

Higher prices for wheat and coarse grains compared with a year ago meant little—sometimes nothing — for these wheatmen of the drought areas. In a year when the West is looking ahead to encouraging signs of better markets and higher prices, the lot of these unlucky ones was a dark spot. Some of them will thresh slim crops from parched fields to sell for a few dollars. Directly and indirectly, aid will come to them during the winter from their more fortunate fellow-farmers.

First grasshoppers blithely ate the growing grain. Rain was lacking. A hot sun and high wind did the rest, in some cases not even leaving enough for grasshoppers. Months without rain killed the crops. Pastures dried up and cattle suffered. High winds added another blight—soil drifting.

Throughout the whole of Southern Saskatchewan and into central areas the plague of drought left its mark. Saskatchewan's normal wheat crop of 225,000,000 bushels was cut to a little over 100,000 000 bushels. Seven thousand farmers in Alberta were affected and 3,151 farmers in 13 municipalities in Southwestern Manitoba felt its effects.

Majority Stick

Although many families packed their belongings and trekked north to new land, the great majority clung to their homes. The stark mark of deserted homesteads was kept to the lowest possible figure. Cattle were moved out, and for cattle remaining feed was shipped in. Surplus cattle were being processed to bring some revenue to the farmers affected.

Optimism of the farmers were checked but not extinguished. Farm organizations were moving to obtain a complete survey of the Prairies with a view to designating what areas could be used for ranch-

PATRONAGE DEALS SAID TO BE CAUSE

Harold J. Kirby, Eglinton, Reported To Have Written Out Resignation From Legislature—Party Henchmen Said To Have Torn Up Letter.

MEMBER DENIES HE INTENDS TO QUIT.

TORONTO, Sept. 28. — Harold J. Kirby, Liberal member-elect for Eglinton riding, yesterday is reported to have climaxed long-standing differences with party headquarters over the question of political patronage by writing out his resignation from the legislature.

The bombshell exploded on the ninth floor of the King Edward Hotel yesterday afternoon. Several prominent Liberals attempted to dissuade Kirby from carrying out his intention, one of them even going so far as to tear up the typewritten resignation. Another copy was later typed and dispatched to Hon. Harry Nixon, Acting Premier, according to reports.

Mr. Kirby denied that he had handed in his resignation. Seen in his hotel room, the member-elect for Eglinton riding, while admitting that he was "fed up" with his party, denied that he had any intention of quitting the provincial arena.

Federal Seat Rumored

Asked to confirm or deny a report that he had an understanding with Rt. Hon. Mackenzie King, Federal Liberal leader, concerning a nomination for the Federal riding of Temiskaming, Mr. Kirby said: "I don't know what you are talking about."

"Do you intend to resign your seat in the Ontario Legislature?" he was asked.

"I have no answer to make," replied Mr. Kirby. "I don't think we've had a fair deal from the patronage standpoint," he added. "I won't qualify that statement. That is what I think."

Prominent members in the Liberal Party were alarmed at what is regarded as tantamount to open insurrection in the ranks of Premier Hepburn's followers. Ever since the election on June 19 it is understood that the member-elect for Eglinton has been at loggerheads with party headquarters over the matter of political appointments. The failure of the Government to throw numerous appointments towards party workers is said to have incensed Kirby.

Party Officials Called In.

Harry Johnson, secretary of the Ontario Liberal Association, made a hurried trip to the hotel suite on being informed that Kirby was determined to quit. According to reports, he was met at the door by a prominent party worker who handed him the torn copy of the resignation. The next few hours were spent endeavoring to make Kirby change his mind, but it is understood he was adamant and finally despatched another resignation to Acting-Premier Nixon at Queen's Park.

Point-blank denials from the Toronto member-elect failed to harmonize with the fact of "something doing" in the hotel suite. Telephones rang frequently and visitors were ushered in and ushered out throughout the day and night.

NURSE'S THREE NASTY FALLS

When Crippled With Rheumatism

CAN NOW DANCE AND SKIP

"Three months ago," writes a nurse, "I was an absolute cripple from rheumatism. In fact, it was so bad that if I got on a couch or bed to rest I could not get up again without two people to help me, and my feet had to be lifted up for me to get on a chair. Also I had three very nasty falls when walking out alone. My left leg from the waist down seemed to go dead. In the end, I had to walk with someone, and at the same time use a cane.

"I used to spend hours weeping in my room because I could not work, and at the last I couldn't even do my own hair. A friend visited me one day, and said, 'Oh! nurse, do try Kruschen.' I sent for a bottle at once, and the result is amazing. I can do things now that I couldn't do three months ago. I love dancing, and it upset me very much not to be able to go with my friends to parties, etc. Now I can walk, dance, skip and really enjoy life."—Nurse M.

Two of the ingredients of Kruschen Salts have the power of dissolving uric acid crystals. Other ingredients assist Nature to expel these dissolved crystals through the natural channel. In addition, there are still other salts in Kruschen which prevent food fermentation in the intestines, and thereby check the further accumulation not only of uric acid but of other body poisons which undermine the health.

The remarkable effectiveness of Kruschen in cases of rheumatism and similar complaints, has created for it a world-wide sale. Kruschen is taken by the people of 119 different countries. In none of those countries is there anything else quite like it—nothing else that gives the same results.

Cheese Boards

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Sept. 28. — Cheese offered for grading at Campbellford last week were as follows: Brickley 12; Stanwood 27; Brae 23; Crow Bay 31; Burnley 35; Spring Valley 15; Rylstone 43; Woodlands 17; Trent Bridge 39; Prince of Wales 35; Kimberley 38; Beaver 30; New Model 17; I.X.L. 17; Norham 49; Roseneath 23; Trent Valley 37; Seymour West 20; Total 500. Cheese sold on Belleville Board on Saturday last at 9 11-16 cents.

A method of canning cheese has been developed and introduced recently by the bureau of Dairy Industry, U. S. Department of Agriculture with their method the curd from the press is sealed to the tin container in which it is to be sold and normal ripening is made possible by a valve in the container which permits the escape of gasses that result from ripening and prevents the entrance of air. Cheddar cheese ripened in this way has all the excellent characteristics of that made in the old way.

$4,565.62 IS SUM SHORT COURT TOLD

Mr. Carley—Since you parted company you have not been on good terms?

"Fairly good terms."

"But not on friendly terms?"

"No."

Mr. Gordon said he had issued a number of writs against the accused in connection with Menzies' estate matters. Several of them were in behalf of William, Thomas and Fred Bradfield.

The court occasion when Mr. O'Brien was reported to be in a hospital at Guelph was mentioned by Mr. Carley, and Mr. Gordon said he did not believe that explanation.

Mr. Carley—You insisted in going on in Mr. O'Brien's absence?

"Yes, we wanted to examine the books."

"Harold Davis was subpoenaed to bring Mr. O'Brien's books and cheque book to court?"

"Yes."

"And you took Mr. O'Brien's file to your own office?"

"I found them in my papers and sent them to Mr. O'Brien's office before I got an impertinent letter from Davis. The file was returned the first thing next morning."

Mr. Gordon said Judge Ruddy was appointed judge in the Surrogate Court in this county by an order-in-Council. This information was received from the Attorney-General's Department. The request by Judge Ruddy to Judge McGibbon, of Lindsay, to act as Surrogate Court judge was drawn by Mr. Gordon and signed by Judge Ruddy.

Mr. Gordon said he thought Mr. O'Brien was going to try to evade his liability if he could.

"Judge Ruddy asked me to draw it because Judge McGibbon would be here on a certain date. I think I handed it personally to Judge McGibbon," Mr. Gordon said.

On that occasion and by the authority deputed in Judge Ruddy's request, Judge McGibbon ordered the accused to pay into court the money shown to be due the estate by Mr. O'Brien. The final order was made on July 30.

Mr. Carley questioned the witness about a statement that he had seen an entry in the administrator's pass book with the Bank of Toronto showing the sum of $5,650.00 and recognized it as Mr. O'Brien's hand writing.

Said $5,000 Available.

Mr. Gordon said Mr. O'Brien had "waved" the book before him and Judge Huycke at a hearing shortly before the death of the judge, and declared that he had a balance of $5,000 in the trust account.

"I was so much surprised I wanted to see the record," Mr. Gordon continued. "It was at the close of the proceedings that day. The book was shown to me and Judge Huycke in the presence of Miss Moore, the court stenographer I did not go into it at that time because I expected the judge would see the pass book again, but it disappeared and has not appeared in court again since then. The entry was in a different writing to the other entries."

Mr. Carley—and you were so familiar with his writing that you could identify the figures?

Mr. Gordon—Yes, he writes stiff, square figures.

Mr. Gordon said that both Judge Huycke and Judge McGibbon had stated that Mr O'Brien's accounting of estate monies was all wrong and that it was not a true and proper accounting.

Payment of a cheque issued by Mr. O'Brien to Wm. Bradfield, one of the Menzies heirs, had been held up at the bank because there were no funds to meet it.

Mr. Carley—Did you issue a writ between the time the cheque was issued and the day it was presented at the bank?

Mr. Gordon—No. The cheque was issued toward the end of March. I took it to the bank and made a demand for payment, but there was no money to meet it. The writ was not issued until April 7.

Witness said an action had been entered against Mr. O'Brien's bondsmen for principal and interest. It has not yet been disposed of.

Toledo Witness.

Dr. W. Kaiser, assistant superintendent of the Ohio State Hospital for the Insane at Toledo, said Thomas Bradfield was admitted in 1932 affected by senile psychosis.

"He was under my care until December, 1933, and was insane during all that time. I don't think he recognized me from one day to the other. He never knew the day of the week or the month of the year. In my opinion he was incompetent to transact business, and incapable of understanding a deed or the release of all rights as an executor."

Dr. M. P. Smith, of the Toledo hospital staff, asserted that Mr. Bradfield was 72 years old with mentality so impaired that he was incapable of transacting business.

Roy C. Dague, attorney, Toledo, O., was prepared to submit the court order by which Mr. Bradfield was committed to the hospital, but Mr. Carley's objection was upheld by Judge Boles.

W. F. Huycke and Miss Mabel Moore, court stenographer, gave detail evidence.

Former Evidence Read.

Mr. Urquhart closed the afternoon session of the court by reading extensively from Miss Moore's transcript of the evidence before the late Judge Huycke in the examination of Mr O'Brien in the Surrogate Court on May 5. Only five days later Judge Huycke died. The court was dealing with Menzies' estate matters for which Mr. O'Brien was called to account. The substance of Mr. Urquhart's long quotation was indicated in Judge Huycke's comment that a better accounting would have to be made by the accused. His Honor had remarked that in many cases an administrator found that his first draft report was inadequate and incomplete.

Harold Davis, law student with Mr. O'Brien, said he did not know what had become of the Bank of Toronto pass book. His recollection was to the effect that Menzies' estate monies were not recorded in that book.

The Night Session.

Mrs. Edith Simpson, at one time stenographer in Mr. O'Brien's office, testified last night that she had commented to the accused about the amount of a $500 cheque drawn on the Menzies' trust account. She said that it seemed large, and had mentioned it to Mr. O'Brien. He said it was all right. The cheque was dated August 12, 1933, was endorsed by Mr. O'Brien, and was payable out of the estate funds. It was drawn at the time of the Toledo trip.

Witness said she had remarked several times to Mr. O'Brien that the trust account was getting low. His reply was, "Don't worry. I'll look after that." Mrs. Simpson's services with Mr. O'Brien ended November 30, 1933.

To Mr. Carley, witness said she did not know anything about Mr. O'Brien's accounts in Bank of Nova Scotia and Toronto Savings & Loan Company.

Generally, trust monies handled by Mr. O'Brien were deposited with the Bank of Toronto.

Provincial Constable D. Silvester told of fruitless search of the office of the Menzies heirs, had been held up at the bank because there were no funds to meet it.

Mr. Carley—Did you issue a writ between the time the cheque was issued and the day it was presented at the bank?

Generally, trust monies handled by Mr. O'Brien were deposited with the Bank of Toronto.

Provincial Constable D. Silvester told of fruitless search of the office of the accused for the Bank of Toronto pass book and a journal. To Mr. Carley he said he had been advised about the journal by the crown attorney. Mr. Davis told him he had never seen a book of that description in Mr. O'Brien's office. The first search was made on August 13 last when the accused was already four days in jail.

"I saw Mr. O'Brien at the jail. He told me where the book should be."

Constable Silvester said he had received every assistance in his search of the office.

Stenographer Called.

Miss Genevieve O'Brien, former bookkeeper and stenographer for the accused, said she had power of attorney from Mr. O'Brien after November 30 last until she left his employ.

Miss O'Brien testified that on February 15, 1934, she drew a cheque for $913.12 at Mr. O'Brien's direction and sent it to Fred. Bradfield in Saskatchewan. It was not marked before being sent. Funds were insufficient at the bank to pay this cheque.

After the cheque was returned another cheque for the same amount, $913.12, was drawn in favor of William J. Bradfield, who also lived in Saskatchewan.

Payment was stopped at the bank by Mr O'Brien.

"I didn't want to send the letter to the bank because I didn't think Mr. O'Brien was giving the right reason for stopping payment. He said it was because he had paid out too much to some of the heirs. I thought—"

Mr. Carley interposed an objection to further evidence on that point and was supported by Judge Boles.

Miss O'Brien declined to sign the second cheque.

"I had power of attorney and signed most of the cheques. I took that cheque to Mr. O'Brien and said he would have to sign it. I knew there were not enough funds in the bank. He signed it and it was sent to Mr. Bradfield."

Witness said that in two financial statements sent to Menzies' heirs the estate receipts were shown at $9,042.60, but the disbursements were not the same in the two reports. This variance was later explained as a probable detail of bookkeeping.

Referring to cheques issued in the summer of 1933, one of which was for $500, Miss O'Brien said that this money was to pay the expenses of Mr. O'Brien's trip to Toledo. Other cheques were for $108, $30, $10 and so on.

Witness said she had a fairly accurate knowledge of the part of the trust account in the bank that belonged to clients and the remainder that was due to Mr. O'Brien. Some of his money was in the form of commissions from funds for which he was trustee. There was also the O'Brien estate funds, some of which was his own. From time to time he would transfer his own money to his personal account.

The $5,050 Entry.

Referring to an incident in May of this year immediately after the Surrogate Court hearing on May 5, Miss O'Brien said she noticed an entry in the bank pass book which showed a larger amount of money than Mr. O'Brien had in the bank.

"I'd say it was $5,000 or more," Miss O'Brien estimated.

"Part of the entry was in Mr. O'Brien's writing," witness slowly answered Mr. Urquhart.

"I spoke to him about that entry. . . . I told him he made nice figures."

After another pause, witness said, "He told me to go to hell. I told him he had written them. He said nothing more, but went into his own office."

Cross-examined by Mr. Carley, witness identified releases given by some of the beneficiaries showing that they had received all the estate money to which they were entitled. Some of them were James Weyer, Mary Ellen Wade, Anastasia Weyer, Sophia T. Kelly. There were also vouchers of payments to T. H. Brooks and Rebecca Brooks.

Miss O'Brien said she had no idea how much money Mr. O'Brien had in an account with the Toronto Savings & Loan Company, also with the Bank of Nova Scotia, and another in Stratford. She said most of the account work was left to her and previously to Mrs. Edith Simpson.

"Since you were left with the responsibility of the bookkeeping you were doing it properly and honestly according to the knowledge you had?" Mr. Carley asked.

Miss O'Brien—Yes.

"But you knew nothing about any arrangements Mr. O'Brien may have had with beneficiaries of the estate?"

"No, sir."

"And you wouldn't know whether he had other funds or not, even as much as $5,000?"

Mr. Urquhart objected that this was carrying conjecture too far.

Witness admitted that there might have been considerable other funds in Mr. O'Brien's personal accounts which were unknown to her. She also said she made no allowance in the financial statement for costs to Mr. O'Brien in connection with the trip to Toledo.

INDIA'S CHILDREN TAKE TO HIGHWAYS

Bombay Alarmed At Position Of Country's Many Juvenile Vagrants.

BOMBAY, Sept. 28.—(CP)— The Times of India takes up editorially the cause of the destitute children in the country, take in charge only too often by 'mavalis' or vagrant men. "There are in India a large number of destitute children, who wander about the country, and, having no permanent home, tend to gravitate to the cities," says the article. "Then there are children who lack wise parental control, or who are themselves so difficult and uncontrolled that, though they belong to respectable families, they deliberately seek the excitement and adventure to be gained from consorting with bad companions.

"Then again there are children who are driven by poverty into drifting about the bazaars and teashops. To all such children—and unfortunately in this great city there are hundreds of them — the existence of the mavali constitutes a serious menace. Once he gets children into his power, he makes use of them in many ways for his own ends. There seems no form of vice the mavali does not inculcate in the children with whom he comes in contact."

A government committee of inquiry into the care of destitute children and youthful offenders has been investigated.

NEW ARREST IS EXPECTED

Four pieces of Fonieroso pine, wood similar to that in the ladder, were removed from the Hauptmann garage yesterday. They were taken to New Jersey state police headquarters at Trenton for examination by Koehler, who came from Madison, Wis.

Garage Demolished

No garage remains. Police carpenters demolished it in a search for clues and more ransom money. The searchers have recovered $14,590. Only the skeleton of Hauptman's four-room apartment remains, but the landlady has a promise all will be restored.

Investigators found an athletic shoe which was taken to Trenton for comparison with footprints found at the kidnapping scene. They also confiscated a pair of high-topped, spiked woodsman's shoes.

The landlady's daughter, Mrs. Laura Urvant of Reading, Pa., said Hauptmann installed an elaborate electric alarm system in the garage two years ago. It was there that most of the recovered ransom was found, buried.

Maurer Freed

"We found Maurer, questioned him 30 seconds and established that he had absolutely no connection with the case whatever," said Assistant District Attorney Breslin.

Maurer, the prosecutor said, had been away on business. His wife became alarmed and asked a search for him. She said he knew associates of Hauptmann and investigators were put on his trail. It was a mysterious "John" who took the $50,000 from Dr. Condon.

Samuel J. Foley, District Attorney of the Bronx, indicated that the 10 persons interrogated yesterday virtually cleared the slate of prospective witnesses.

Among them was Miss Anita Lutzenberg, 35, blonde, buxom and vivacious. She arrived at the District Attorney's office at 9.30 a.m. and did not go home until 7.30 last night. She told of meeting Hauptmann during the summer of 1932, while his wife was in Europe, and showed pictures of themselves and others in happy poses at Hunters Island, where they bathed.

Hauptmann limped and was accompanied by a close-mouthed friend known to her only as John, she said.

New Jersey state police expressed more interest in tracing about $25,000 of the ransom money which was paid in $20 gold certificates. Most of the money thus far recovered has been in $10 and $5 bills.

Toronto Live stock Review

TORONTO, Sept. 28 (CP).—Toronto livestock market failed to show one day of really active trading this week. Receipts on all grades were somewhat lighter than for last week, with cattle receipts down 1,200 head. There were no price changes of any account during the week, except on hogs, which were down 50 cents cwt. by Thursday.

In addition to the fresh receipts, there were 600 head of stale cattle left from last week. After a moderately dull trade, some 400 head were still unsold at yesterday's close. The calf receipts were all cleaned up at steady prices for all grades. Lambs were active throughout the week at steady prices. Sheep remained unchanged from last week's close.

Weighty steers of common to medium quality sold at $3.00 to $5.00, while buyers quoted up to $5.50 for choice heavy steers, although none were offered. Butcher cattle sold mostly between $3.00 and $4.00 with extreme tops at $4.25. Boners brought $1.50 to $2.00. Good butcher cows sold at $2.25 to $2.50 with canners at $1.00. Butcher bulls sold at $2.25 to $2.50 and bolognas were slow at $1.75 to $2.00.

Fed calves continued active at $6.50 to $7.25 for choice with plain quality downward to $4.50. Store cattle trade was again active at the opening with good stockers bringing $2.75 to $3.10. Common stocker trade was slow at $2.00 to $2.50 with some still unsold at the close. Milkers and springers had also slumped by the close, tops going at $40.00 to $45.00.

Choice veal calves sold mostly at $7.00 with a dozen tops at $7.50. Heavy, fat calves sold at $3.00 to $4.50 with some westerners included. Thins eastern grass calves brought $2.00 to $3.00 cwt. The drop in hog prices was expected to weaken the calf market shortly.

Hog receipts were lighter than last week, prices dropping accordingly. Monday and Tuesday saw a drop of 50 cents, the market holding steady at the reduction for the remainder of the week. Bacons sold at $7.00 f.o.b., at $7.35 off trucks and at $7.75 weighed off cars. Packers were quoting 50 cents lower again for week-end loadings.

Lambs were active at steady prices. Good ewes and wethers sold at $5.75 for the majority with small lots of picked lambs up to $6.00 cwt. Culls, bucks and heavies were generally at a discount of $1.00 cwt.

Sheep were unchanged at last week's close at $2.50 to $3.00 for good light ewes, at $2.00 to $2.50 for heavies and at $1.00 to $1.50 for culls.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were:

This week: Cattle, 4,856; calves, 2,286; hogs, 3,759; sheep and lambs, 6,224.

Last week: Cattle, 6,113; calves, 2,568; hogs, 4,130; sheep and lambs, 6,464.

1934 to date: Cattle, 194,911; calves, 86,649; hogs, 165,010; sheep and lambs, 133,150.

This week, 1933: Cattle, 8,183; calves, 2,600; hogs, 4,988; sheep and lambs, 8,668.

Complicated

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Sept. 28 (CP)—Investigating an automobile accident, State police found very much of an interstate affair.

They reported the driver, Tony Stevens, is a resident of Illinois; his car bore Georgia license plates; it pulled a trailer with Minnesota plates; Stevens had a Michigan operator's license; the cow killed was a Jersey, and it met its fate on a Pennsylvania highway.

THE NEW RESIDENCE RULE.

The Ontario relief regulations hae been tightened up by an Order-in-Council which requires a person to be resident in a municipality for a year before being eligible for relief and making the municipalities from which relief applicants move after September 1 of this year liable for the cost of assistance for twelve months.

The object of this change is, of course, to put an end to the practice that has developed among some municipalities of getting rid of some of their needy citizens by encouraging or aiding them to move to some centre where adequate relief funds are provided.

There is reason to believe that there has been a good deal of that kind of thing going on in Ontario, and that those municipalities which have felt it their duty to make proper provision for the care of the unemployment have been victimized by this dumping practice.

The new regulation was therefore probably necessary, and yet there is danger of it working out as a hardship in the case of certain members of the unemployed class who would have difficulty in claiming any place in particular as their residence, men who in the hope of finding better working conditions have done considerable moving about, and yet have been unsuccessful in locating steady work, in spite of an honest effort to do so.

The application of the year's residence rule to this class will make conditions harder than ever for men who have not been satisfied to sit down somewhere and accept relief, but have been making a genuine attempt to find means of supporting themselves.

MORE MONEY TO SPEND.

It is generally agreed that Canadian farmers, as the result of better grain prices, will have a considerably larger sum of money to spend this year than last, although it is impossible at this stage to get close to the actual amount of increase.

One estimate declares that the revenue from wheat alone would be $51,000,000 more than last year, while the prices of oats, flax, barley and rye are materially higher than a year ago.

How important these advances are is seen in the announcement from the Bank of Nova Scotia that its index of the purchasing power of a bushel of wheat at Winnipeg ($1.00 representing its average purchasing power from 1921 to 1932) has risen from 86.9, the June average, to 96.9 in July.

Thus in the short space of four months the purchasing power of the bushel of wheat rose from 27 per cent. below average to only four per cent. below average.

More money for the farmers to spend should mean more business for Canadian stores, more orders for Canadian manufacturers, more revenue for Canadian railways and more jobs for Canadian workers.

The outlook is brighter than at any time since the depression "cracked down" upon the world, and granted that weather conditions do not react unfavorably, the increasing purchasing power of the Canadian farmer should mean a marked improvement in general conditions.

THEY REFUSED TO HELP.

The fracas on Sunday last in which Traffic Officer Hornick was assaulted by three men whose association with the militia should have taught them to respect law and order was a most deplorable affair, and those who were accused in Police Court were not the only persons to come out of the affair with tarnished reputations.

The cowardly conduct of the motorists who passed the scene of the struggle between the officer and his assailants, and who ignored the plea of both Mr. and Mrs. Hornick for assistance, cannot be too strongly condemned.

Instead of coming to the aid of a man endeavoring to cope with three or four attackers, these gallant motorists contented themselves with stopping their cars and viewing the fight as if it were a Sunday spectacle arranged especially for their benefit.

Fortunately there were other persons in the neighborhood who had a different conception of their duty as citizens, and who rendered valuable aid to the hard-pressed traffic officer; they deserve general thanks for recognizing that when officers of the law are struggling against odds it is the responsibility of all good Canadians to bring what aid they are capable of.

And even if an officer had not been involved in this episode, it is to be imagined that the sight of one man being assaulted by three or four would have caused any fair-minded passer-by to interfere.

REGISTERING REVOLVERS.

It should be a matter of general knowledge by this time that by reason of an amendment to the Canadian Criminal Code passed at the last session of Parliament all pistols and revolvers owned in this country must be registered before January 18, either with the Royal Canadian Mounted Police or with other officers designated by the attorney-generals of the various provinces.

The penalty prescribed under this section of the Code is a fine of $50 or ten days' imprisonment, or both, so that it will be wise for all Canadians who own these weapons to make sure that they are legally listed before the time limit expires.

It is hoped that by this legislation that there will be a much greater control of the revolver problem, and that it will be made more difficult for those who wish to carry guns for illegal purposes to obtain possession of these weapons.

It is a law that might well have been passed years ago and all good citizens will co-operate with the authorities in making the measure effective.

There is no necessity, except in a few exceptional cases, for people in this country buying or carrying revolvers for it is quite true, as the Vancouver Sun remarks, the illusion that possession of a gun means personal safety is long out of date.

A general compliance with the order to register revolvers before the end of the present year will be in the interest of the whole country.

THE LIMITATIONS OF SELF HELP.

Although individual aggressiveness has saved the world in times past from complete regimentation, contends Bertrand Russell, prominent Britisher in the current issue of Esquire, the time has come when we must look to public ownership of such great sources of economic power as railways and mines.

"The Americans and the British," writes Russell, "have prided themselves on self-reliance, and on their ability to combine individual liberty with the preservation of public order. There is no denying that this has been a most valuable quality, which has hitherto saved the world from becoming completely regimented; moreover, it has produced a certain number of men of superlative excellence.

"Lincoln is one of the supreme examples of the virtues which can be generated in a self-helping community. After Darwin had returned from his voyage in the 'Beagle,' he owed nothing to any public institution, which was fortunate, as, if he had had a post, he would certainly have been deprived of it for his unorthodox opinions. In many such ways, in the past, personal initiative served us well.

"There was, however, even during the nineteenth century, another side, perhaps more obvious in America than in England. In the beginning, the whole of the unsettled West was public property, belonging to the nation. If the nation had retained the rights of the landowner, every man, woman and child in America would now be prosperous; the rent of the land would supply, over and above the needs of the revenue, a handsome surplus which would make poverty non-existent.

"Then for a time, the rich men fought each other: there were Homeric battles between Vanderbilt and Jay Gould, each of whom thoroughly understood self-help. In these battles they bought judges and legislators and private armies; from week to weak laws were passed and repealed at their bidding. But in the end it was found cheaper to combine. This accelerated the process of consolidation, until the time came when about a hundred supreme self-helpers controlled almost all the resources of the United States. Thus the doctrine of individual initiative ended in the establishment of a small oligarchy more powerful than any previously known to history.

"Personal initiative is no longer the important thing except in a few matters. When people have reached the summit of Mount Everest and flown around the world without a stop, nothing will be left except to travel to the moon—and this will certainly be a matter for governments.

"I do not see any reason why we should be sorry that the sphere of self-help has become more restricted than it used to be. Co-operation is in every way a better ideal than rigid isolation in effort. Competition does not generate kindly feelings, whereas co-operation does tend to do so. Clearly much greater achievements are possible to large groups of men than to individuals, and these greater achievements will become easier as men acquire the habit of subordinating their personal idiosyncrasies to a collective purpose."

BETTING ON FUTURE.

Hoping for better times, Prime Minister Bennett is not expected to call a Dominion general election until the autumn of 1935, according to an article dealing with the Canadian political situation in the New York Times. It says:

"But that there will be no general election this year is now final and the likelihood is that it will not be held until the fall of 1935.

"In extending to its farthest limits the constitutional period allowed him, Premier Bennett is betting on the return of prosperity. Five months of bounding revenues augur for a surplus over ordinary expenditures after four years of deficits. Much can be made of that.

"By another year, too, the Government hopes to have demonstrated the efficiency of its Natural Products Marketing Act in aiding Canadian agriculture.

"It is freely admitted, except by political opponents, that Mr. Bennett's is a better and more active Government now than it was in the early years of its reign. It is probably Mr. Bennett's hope that his burst of final speed will not come too late to bear electoral fruit."

There are other things in prospect, too, which may or may not affect the general election result next year.

One big splendid thing is contemplated by the Bennett Government, and that is unemployment insurance. Certainly this will never be attacked as socialism gone rampant, because if the country had had it in the last four years millions would have been saved, and the unemployed would have had a much happier lot. The Government has this bill stored away in its bag of tricks.

As for the results of the Stevens enquiry, there is again something worth while which may be achieved, but it will require provincial co-operation, the prospect of which is not very reassuring at the moment.

Canada, so have several Prime Ministers said in the past, is a difficult country to govern. Never has it been more true than under the four years of Mr. Bennett. Even in war time, it was a comparatively pleasant job to what it has been since 1930.

But from all present appearances, the demagogues will come to bat next year and may have quite a big inning. They will have five years of hardship and stress to work on, and that is a lot when votes are considered.—St. Catharines Standard.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

Anyway you have to give Skipper Sopwith credit for one thing. He takes the entire blame of losing the America's Cup races on his own shoulders.

Evidently the first year is going to be the worst for persons on relief who change their place of residence.

Former Premier E. C. Drury is said to be in line for an Ontario Government appointment. After all they do come back sometimes.

The presence of a C.C.F. candidate in the Toronto East by-election elected Tommy Church, according to the Liberal viewpoint. On the other hand, Mr. Church declares the third party nominee cut into his majority. What's your guess?

Now that General Johnston has resigned his N.R.A. post, there is natural wonder as to who is going to do the cracking-down.

RAISING CHILDREN IN POVERTY

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: Are children an asset to the nation, is a question the average working man might well ask himself, or are the marriage vows, and the invoked blessings of our Divine Maker on the faithful union, a miserably pathetic farce, when one considers under what an appalling handicap one must strive to raise children to maturity, to be worthy citizens of this glorious country.

I say, appalling handicap, and I say it with an intensity of feeling only those similarly placed can truly realize.

The general public does not seem to be aware, perhaps, of how a man can manage to raise a family of five or six children on $12 a week; maybe they wonder; well, the plain, unvarnished fact is, he does not. Either he is using his savings in the form of insurance policies, mortgaging his home, etc., to add to to his wages to make ends meet, and then when all those savings are gone, he must go into debt, and yet carry on working with a good heart whilst he sees his wife and family being denied the common decencies of life.

The writer of this letter is not afraid of work, and used to say a few years ago, that as long as he had two good arms, and a heart to back them up, he would not be out of a job. He does not say that to-day. There are too many good men looking in vain for work. There is bitterness to-day, where it is a disgrace to our country to have ever let it have taken root, in the hearts and minds of our children. Have we no shame, no foresight? What are the coming generation going to be, when we are so lost in oblivion, blinded by the almighty dollar, that we hear not the cry of the little children for bread, or notice the desperate careworn look on the face of those mothers who strive vainly to bring their children up in the knowledge of the truth.

Thanking you in advance for your valuable space.

C. S. Harte-Maxwell.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHOOD

THE SAAR VALLEY PLEBISCITE.

On Sunday, August 26, Herr Hitler addressed 500,000 people; 200,000 were Germans from the Saar Valley. The occasion was the opening of an intensive campaign for the plebiscite to be held next January.

On the preceding Saturday the 200,000 journeyed from the Saar to Coblents. Many of the Saar Germans had to journey one hundred miles. The Saar lies on the North-East corner of France, and to the South-East of the German boundary. It is about 50 miles in length from West to East, and from North to South some 25 miles in width, the population one million. No other pilgrimage in the 100 years has in Europe equalled it in numbers and enthusiasm. One hundred and twenty trains carried the pilgrims. The trains followed at intervals of ten minutes. The music, the singing, the cheers, the enthusiasm waked up the people along the way. Many thousands gathered at the depots with demonstrations of fealty to the newly self-elected President of the Fatherland.

On Sunday he spoke for 45 minutes. He had to wait for a long time for the noisy demonstration to subside. He can be so unlike himself. His first words of greeting spoken, then came a statement that held the crowd spell-bound with thoughts that did not harmonize. He spoke of Christianity. There was no word of disparagement. He made denial that the German people were drifting away from Christianity. What we have done is to draw the line clearly between religion and the state. He assured that the State would protect religion if religion is not exploited for political purposes. He did mean that the State would not stand second. In his thinking the State is first. For him Nationalism is a religion. The Church demurs.

Hitler was aware that to remove the church opposition a massacre more horrible than that of two months ago would be necessary. He knew the church would never give the state first place. The Nazi have discovered that there is a church. They know that it stands in the way of state supremacy. And there it will stand, come what may. The church stands first, not because of any political ambition. But because religion is supreme in all human relations. The church renders to Hitler the things that are Hitler's, but to God the things that are God's. God alone has authority over the conscience. The church in Germany is the livest thing in Germany.

The rise of the Nazi was reviewed by Hitler. He said: Fifteen years ago I began my work with seven men. To-day thirty-eight millions are behind me. Does the world believe that they would stand by me if they were unhappy? I am convinced we also shall succeed in winning over the missing ten per cent.

What does it prove if in the Saar there are some who are not worthy to be called Germans? Among the twelve Apostles there was also a Judas, but in spite of him Christianity prevailed. In the same way, despite our truants, the Nazi movement will prevail. The happiest event of this year has been firing of the date of the Saar plebiscite.

To the people from the Saar he said: A blow at you is a blow at us. Insults to you are insults to us. Nothing can be done to you which is not done to us. While parties were quarreling you had one idea—the Saar must return to Germany.

When the hour comes we shall see in you nothing but Germans, to whom we have stretched out our hand, to welcome you into the Fatherland. We shall see no parties in you. We shall not see the past. We have set ourselves two tasks:

1. Reconciliation without regard to former party membership. Whoever professes, "I am a German", will find our arms open. He will not regret it.

2. Improvement of the economic foundation of the Saar. We will chain the Saar even more closely to the Fatherland.

For another reason we are happy about January 13. It is the day of the plebiscite. Happy, because the Saar question is the only one open between Germany and France. Once that question has been settled, then I hope on the other side, problems will be seen in their true light, and we shall be able to conclude a sincere peace with France.

After the solution of the Saar question there is no further reason why two such great nations should continue at feud with one another. Our mutual tasks are so great that instead of going to war with one another, we should co-operate in solving them.

You Saar people have a great mission to fulfil. When January the 13th comes and you register your votes, and on the 14th the bells ring of victory in the Saar, they will ring not only the return of the Saar, but also herald the coming of peace. Our next demonstration will be held in your territory, and then I shall be happy to speak to you, there also, as the German people's Chancellor and your own leader.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

SELKIRK, MANITOBA.

This thriving town which lies 25 miles to the north of Winnipeg, undoubtedly was named in honor of Lord Selkirk, leader of the Selkirk settlers, although local history is indistinct on that point. The fact remains, however, there is no plausible explanation of the origin of the name. Like Emerson, it once aspired to be the capital of Manitoba, but other influences prevailed. There are no exciting records showing when the first settlement was made, but there was a thriving town on the site prior to incorporation in 1882. Since its inception it has been the home of numerous fishing fleets, as it is situated where the combined Red and Assiniboine rivers empty into Lake Winnipeg.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

A LEGISLATIVE COUNCIL ABOLISHED.

On this date in 1893, the seventh Legislature of New Brunswick was dissolved and automatically the legislative council of that province was wiped out. On April 16, 1891, an act was passed at Fredericton abolishing the council and vesting all powers in the lieutenant governor and assembly, thereafter called the "Legislative Assembly" instead of the "House of Assembly".

Thus was eliminated the body which, established at the creation of the province in 1784, had wielded for many years more power than the elected chamber. Economy was the chief reason assigned by A. G. Blair when he sponsored the bill for the abolition of the first chamber; but its end came only as a finale to a long series of disputes in which the popular will had often been frustrated, and most New Brunswickers were glad of the reform. At the same time the establishment of Government House by the province ended. Since then the lieutenant governor has had no official residence at the capital, having only an office in the legislative building; but there are people in Fredericton who hope to live to see Government House re-established, and it may be made an issue in next year's provincial election.

New Brunswick's abolition of the council was followed by Prince Edward Island the following year, but there was a compromise, the legislature consisting of 15 council ors and 15 assemblymen all sitting in the one chamber. Nova Scotia had a long struggle before it got rid of its legislative council The reform was agitated for by W. S. Fielding and G. H. Murray in the 90's, but the council always declined to vote itself out, and it was not until May 31, 1928 that the council passed out of existence, and then only after the judicial committee of the Privy Council had decided that the Rhodes (Cons.) government could appoint councillors pledged to abolition. Quebec is now the only province with a legislative council. Manitoba was abolished in 1873; Ontario, Alberta and Saskatchewan never had a second chamber and in British Columbia the council was eliminated before the province entered the Dominion in 1871.

POET-WARRIOR HELD SHANGHAI IS RETURNING TO NATIVE LAND

BEEN IN EXILE.

By HARRY LEVIN
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 28. — Tall, awkward-looking General Tsai Ting-Kai, who gained international fame when his nineteenth route army of Chinese regulars stubbornly refused to retreat before the Japanese invaders at Shanghai in 1932, is sailing home, bringing to a close his "exile" trip around the world.

The effect of his return is enshrouded somewhat in doubt, for the "poet-warrior," as General Tsai was dubbed by enthusiastic war correspondents who watched him marshal the stubborn defence in Chapei and then direct the disciplined evacuation from the city, is "persona non grata" to the present ruler of China, General Chiang Kai-Shek.

The latter is from Nanking, provisional capital of the Dragon republic. General Tsai is from Canton. Since 1925, when the late Sun Yat-Sen emerged as China's "George Washington" to restore the country's traditional glory and drive out the bandit-warlords, Canton and Nanking have been rival cities for power virtual capitals of conflicting ruling groups.

Under General Chiang, China's policy has been to avoid offending Japan. To most Chinese such an official attitude has been unbearable and humiliating. When Japanese troops marched into Shanghai in 1932 to end the Chinese boycott against Nipponese goods, Nanking stood by indifferently.

Attitude Humiliating.

Up from Canton, however, came the sturdy regiments of the nineteenth route army, sprung from soil that had had little contact with the powerful Japs. Under General Tsai, the Canton soldiers marched into Chapei, Shanghai's native quarter. They made breastworks, dug trenches, brought up their feeble artillery and wrote in blood and heroism a Chinese saga. They were the first Chinese troops in the past 45 years which have met the Japanese on the field of battle without breaking their ranks in instant defeat.

When General Tsai continued to hold the sector despite the onslaught of 60,000 seasoned Japanese veterans, even Nanking and General Chiang had to do something. Reinforcements were ordered to the hard-pressed nineteenth, but in most cases they were too late. Military observers intimated that ammunition had been unbelievably slow in coming. From all parts of the world, Chinese immigrants sent millions of dollars homeland to back up the heroes of General Tsai.

When the nineteenth had to withdraw, General Tsai went south again to Canton. With other idealistic patriots who yearn for Chinese unification and expulsion of the hated Nipponese, he offered his military abilities to Nanking. A cold silence ensued.

Became Too Popular.

Thus, when the province of Fukien in the south decided to establish its independence from pro-Japanese Nanking, General Tsai and his nineteenth lined up with Nanking. But General Chiang had military aeroplanes, and these helped break the secession.

Shortly after the war, General Tsai was "invited" to take a trip around the world. For he was too popular for Nanking to dispose of, without precipitating a revolt.

"China must unite," he has declared, "and I will lay down my life to help drive the Japanese out."

And the lanky hero of 171 campaigns, who has listened to the shrieking of bullets for 20 years since he graduated from the Canton military academy, seems a likely candidate for the job of liberating the vast millions of China's oppressed.

He is 41, married, and the father of four children. His gentleness, friends attribute to his adoption of Confucian doctrines which the "poet-warrior" has studied for years.

RACING LEGISLATION.

TORONTO, Sept. 27.—(C.P.) — The Ontario Government will introduce legislation at the next session of the Legislature to provide for a Racing Commission to govern horse racing in this province. Hon Duncan Marshall, Minister of Agriculture, said to-day.

Prices were mainly unchanged on the Montreal produce and dairy markets yesterday.

Fresh No. 1 butter was quoted at 19¼c to 19¾c a pound in carlots or less, as compared with 19½c on Wednesday. Small lots to retailers were 20½c a pound for solids and 21½c for prints. Receipts totalled 1,002 boxes.

On the cheese market quotations tended slightly higher. Ontario colored brought 10¾c to 10½c a pound, against 10¾c straight, while Ontario white was 9¾c to 10¼c a pound, unchanged. Quebec white sold at 9½c to 9¾c a pound, and Quebec colored brought 9¾c to 9¼c a pound, each ¼c higher. Arrivals totalled 2,598 boxes.

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less were again quoted at 28c a dozen for A-large, 26c for A-medium, 21c for B, and 19½c for C. Receipts were 940 boxes.

New New Brunswick Mountain potatoes were 50c to 55c per 80-pound bag, and new Quebecs sold at 35c to 45c per 80-pound bag, old stock still commanding 20c to 25c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

With traders on tiptoe for President Roosevelt's talk last night, and his further talk on Sunday night, grain prices tended upward most of the time yesterday.

Advances in quotations were partly stimulated by cold weather, general over the corn belt, and giving promise of increasing feed demand. Furthermore, the fact was stressed that the time when flour demand normally becomes augmented is near at hand.

An absence of selling pressure, rather than any special urge to buy, was apparent, with wheat closing firm, ⅝c to 1⅛c above Wednesday's finish. December, new, $1.03⅝ to $1.04. Corn also ⅛c to ⅜c up; December, new, 78⅝c to 78½c. Oats unchanged to ⅝c lower, and provisions unchanged to 20c down.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, September 28. — Wheat prices responded poorly to strength at Liverpool, and closed unchanged to ¼c lower on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday.

Foreign interest was of little consequence, and other support was insufficient to make much impression on light hedging pressure. October wheat closed at 81¾c, December at 82½c, and May at 87¼c.

Values established fractional gains in early trade, but the advance was short-lived. Pit trade was the dullest in a week or more. Country deliveries totalled only 800,000 bushels on Wednesday.

Liverpool wheat closed ¼d to ½d higher, but Buenos Aires was off fractionally at noon.

Russia shipped no wheat during the past week, while estimated Argentine shipments for this week are 3,250,000 bushels, about the same as the week previous.

Cash and coarse grains idled with wheat.

WINDSOR, Ont., Sept. 28 (CP).—Visions of mystery, possibly murder, stirred police chief James D. Price and Sergeant James Hill of Sandwich Police Department, as they dug hurriedly in a bush on the outskirts of the town, where a peculiar odor existed.

Finally a trunk was bared and the mystery was solved for on the lid was inscribed "Old Turk. Died May 22, 1934", and the remains of a dog were disclosed.

Dr. L. J. Simpson, the minister, at present is making an educational survey in Northern Ontario, but it was learned that consideration had been given applications received and it was considered unlikely any appointment would be made from them.

TRADING IS DULL AND IRREGULAR

Nickels Are Firm But Industrials Generally Are Easy and Quiet.

McINTYRE HIGHER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP).—Mixed price changes prevailed in dull stock market dealings today. Metals were firm but industrials generally were easy. Rails ruled narrow. American Telephone and Case dipped about 1 each. U. S. Steel receded fractionally while General Motors and New York Central were steady. U. S. Smelting rose 4 points. The late tone was irregular. Transfers approximated 500,000 shares.

Stocks were dull and somewhat irregular under profit taking on the "good" news of the new margin rules which were about in line with expectations.

Aside from firmness in McIntyre, Canadian shares were narrow. Dome improved fractionally while Dominion Stores receded as much. International Nickel was about even. On the curb, Lake Shore was off a shade. Dominion Government bonds were steady. The Canadian dollar gained 1-16 of a cent at 102 .75 cents.

The metal shares came back rather substantially. Gains of fractions to more than 2 points were recorded by U. S. Smelting, American Smelting, Alaska Juneau, McIntyre, Porcupine and Cerro de Pasco. Vulcan Detinning was also active at an advance of 2. National Biscuit, American Telephone and Case yielded a point each. Others, moderately lower, included U. S. Steel common and preferred, Industrial Rayon, Celanese, Chrysler, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, General Motors, Schenley, Santa Fe, N. Y. Central, Consolidated Gas and Western Union.

God's Lake Gold Mines.

H. R. Drummond-Hay, Vice-president of God's Lake Gold Mines, in a telephone conversation last night with Toronto interests, stated that no decision has been made in regard to mill installation. Officials are understood to be considering plans for a 300-ton unit, against reports in the street yesterday that a 100-ton unit had been ordered.

Casey Summit Gold Mines.

Carl Erickson, Vice-president and General Manager of Maple Leaf Mines, in his latest report dealing with Casey Summit Gold Mines in the Patricia District of Ontario, states that the mill of 50 tons capacity is completed and is in process of being tuned up to capacity. Power at present is being furnished by steam but negotiations are under way for electric power from the Earl Falls development.

Read Authier Mines.

An action instituted some time ago at the instance of the Bourlamaque Inc., with head office in New York, against W. A. Reid and associates, in which action Read Authier Mines, Ltd., was also named as defendant, has been dismissed by the court for failure to comply with an order requiring the plaintiff, Bourlamaque, Inc., as a foreign corporation, to furnish security for costs of Read Authier Mines, Ltd. The litigation is thus settled.

Cadillac O'Brien.

Reports say that Cadillac O'Brien, operated by O'Brien Mines Ltd., have located an entirely new vein, largely sulphides, carrying high grade values at 500 feet. The vein width is up to 10 feet. This is a very important development.

LOSSES OCCUR IN BEVERAGES

Industrial Section at Toronto Back-tracks in Harmony With Wall Street.

OILS DECLINE.

TORONTO, Sept. 28 (CP).—The industrial section of the Toronto Exchange back-tracked today, moving in harmony with the New York list. The turnover was fair in the oils, the Brewing Corporation stocks, Nickel and Brazilian and some of the distillery shares, but the rest of the board was pretty bare of sales. Beverage, oil and food stocks displayed a preponderance of recessions over gains at the close.

Traders here were inclined to trail along with the New York market, which in turn appeared to be waiting to hear what President Roosevelt will have to say in his Sunday night speech.

Profit-taking appeared in the Brewing Corporation issues and the preferred, after touching 31 in the early trading, worked back more than two points to show a loss of a point or more. Recessions up to 3-8 also came out in the liquor stocks, including Walkers common, Distillers Seagrams and Industrial Alcohol.

Mr. Justice J. M. McEvoy and Mr. Justice J. A. Hope will try the petition of James Hawthorne against the election of T. T. Percy Lancaster in Peterborough. There the Judges will also deal with a cross petition of James Juby, Ernest S. Mitchell and Joseph Ernest Gregson, naming James Hawthorne as respondent.

WORK IS PROCEEDING ON GOLD RANGE MINES

Work on the property of Gold Range Mines Limited is proceeding very rapidly. A compressor and drills, and a further car load of equipment was shipped to the companys property at Schreiber, Ont., in the early part of this week, completing the mining plant.

H. R. M. Turner, the company's consulting engineer, is at present at the property supervising the installation of the machinery and the very intensive underground campaign now under way.

Armed With Air Rifles, Tomatoes, Bricks Carolina Lads Battle For City Supremacy

CHARLESTON, S. C., Sept. 28.—(AP)—Police today were faced with the dilemma of stopping a war.

The recurrent hostilities are between the battery big shots and the Hampton Hell Cats.

The former are encamped on one end of town and the latter on the other.

The ammunition?

Watermelons and air rifles, bricks and tomatoes, squashes and potatoes.

A citizen who attempted to stop the youngsters' battle single handed was wounded by five air rifle shots.

Another unfortunate citizen who happened to live in no man's land was bending over weeding his lawn when a stray BB shot mowed him down.

A young woman, also inadvertently in the line of fire, was sitting on her front porch waiting for her swain. A ripe tomato ricocheted off a post and ruined her Sunday best frock.

That's only to mention a few casualties.

There have been complaints to the police. But no one has suggested just how the armies might be effectively subdued—both at the same time, anyway.

HEAVY SELLING IN GOLD ISSUES

MARKET UNSETTLED.

TORONTO, Sept. 28 (CP).—Heavy selling of several issues in the gold group, including Hollinger, Central Patricia, B.R.X. and Gunnar Gold and Wright Hargreaves helped to unsettle the mining section of the Toronto Exchange today. All groups closed with losses predominating although the last hour witnessed a moderate firming of prices.

Selling of the gold shares on the New York Market also exercised a bearish influence on the Toronto list. Hollinger appeared to have a ready market around $20 and it held there throughout the day for a loss of 50 cents. Wright Hargreaves closed under the $9 mark on heavy turnover while Teck Hughes exhibited firmness and closed a few cents to the good. Bralorne, Lake Shore, and McIntyre closed lower by 25 to 75 cents each.

NEW LIQUOR LAW IS DESCRIBED AS MOST INIQITOUS

as a solution? We must still continue our campaign of education against the evils of intemperance and at the same time demand the right under the local option clause in the liquor law of voting ourselves free from this evil and never fail to express ourselves as being unalterably opposed to the traffic in any fashion whatsoever."

Gambling Evil

In the face of what was characterised as a rising tide in the spirit of gambling, the Presbytery re-affirmed its stand on gambling, censuring particularly the promotion of lotteries and draws in the church itself.

"By the term 'gambling' we include every attempt to make gain or profit from any source that introduces the element of chance," a resolution on the matter stated. "The spirit behind the gambling craze is dishonesty and a readiness to accept any prize whatsoever, regardless of the hardship and sacrifice that it may mean to someone else, which is not the spirit of fellowship and brotherhood as found in the teaching of Jesus."

The resolution condemned gambling as a demoralizing influence leading often to crime and suicide. In regard to lotteries in the churches it read; "The church of God cannot afford to trifle with this dangerous viper and, as a Presbytery, we urge a very decided stand on this question."

Increase in Crime

Turning toward crime, the body noted "a growing tendency toward petty thieving and law-breaking". "Children are being reared in an atmosphere tainted with daily newspaper reports of burglary, embezzlement, kidnapping and murder and these are having an effect which is anything but uplifting."

The body dealt with a complaint received from residents at Apsley and vicinity in regard to alleged bootlegging around the road camps. Decision to appoint a deputation for the placing of the matter before the "proper authority" was reached.

Rev. S. A. Kemp, Havelock, presbytery chairman, was in the chair. Plans were laid for a conference on world missions and a missionary exhibit to be held in George Street United Church from November 29 to December 4. All United Church pulpits in the district on December 2 will be filled by missionary speakers. Among notables to be in the city for the important occasion are the Very Reverend Dr. Richard Roberts of Toronto, moderator of the United Church in Canada, and Dr. J. H. Arnup, secretary of foreign missions for the United Church.

The committee responsible for the conference is headed by Rev. J. E. J. Millyard of Peterborough.

Jewish Congress To Study Olympics

NEW YORK, Sept. 28 (AP)—The United States Jewish Congress to-day addressed a request to the National Board of Governors of the United States Amateur Athletic Union calling upon it to review the situation in Germany with regard to the free participation of the Jews in the Olympics at its convention in December on the ground that the assurances given the American Olympic Committee are not in accordance with facts.

The congress further requested an opportunity be accorded for presentation publicly before the convention of "full and incontrovertible evidence to the effect that, irrespective of claims and professions of the Nazi Government, Jews in Germany are not free to engage in athletics and sports in such a way as would make it possible for them really and equally to compete with other candidates for the Olympic Games."

Acceptance of the German invitation to compete in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin was announced at a special meeting of the United States Olympic Committee yesterday.

CREDIT BALANCE

$350, the amount of the note in the previous September. On that occasion Mr. O'Brien deposited $50 in his general account, charging it to the trust account and gave a note for $300. On February 27 last the note was down to $60.

Referring to Mr. O'Brien's general account, Mr. Borland said it showed a present balance of three cents. On February 16 the balance was $2.65.

On October 20, 1933, a deposit of $110 was made in the general account, and on the same date $105 was drawn by Mr. O'Brien from the trust account. A cheque to A. M. Pidgeon was paid out of the trust account. Two chequest payable to the City of Stratford, mounting to $63.94, were drawn on the trust account. The stubs bore the word "taxes." In November the same account provided $322.86 for the treasurer of the City of Peterborough. A cheque for $400, signed by Genevieve O'Brien, stenographer, was payable from the trust account to Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan and was marked O'Brien Estate.

To Mr. Carley, witness said he did not know whether Mr. O'Brien had accounts with other banks.

A number of cheques for small sums drawn on the estate account indicated personal withdrawals by the accused.

Balance of 63 Cents

S. R. Morton, accountant of the Bank of Nova Scotia, testified that Mr. O'Brien opened a savings account in that bank on May 16, 1934, with a deposit of $1,700 and added $701.03 on May 23rd. On June 21st it was reduced to $40.90 and now shows a credit balance of 63 cents.

B. V. Moore, accountant with the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, stated that the accused had a savings account with that institution from 1918 to March 30, 1933, when it was closed.

Mrs. Edith Simpson, recalled this morning, identified a cheque for $350, dated August 2, 1933, on the estate fund, in favor of A. M. Pigeon. She said she had written the cheque and signed it at Mr. O'Brien's direction.

The $200 cheque to Rev. F. J. O'Sullivan was to pay for a church window. It was drawn on the W. O'Brien estate in Stratford, in which the accused and his sister were interested. At that time, witness said, funds of this estate were probably overdrawn.

Assured of Security.

F. H. Johnston identified his signature on the bond he signed securing Mr. O'Brien as administrator of the Menzies estate. Witness said he asked the accused last February why the estate had not been settled. "He told me that some of the heirs had made an arrangement with him to invest some of the estate money. In March he told me he had bonds sufficient to cover the balance of the estate and that they were in a safety deposit box. Next time I approached him was about the middle of May. Mr. O'Brien said he had a substantial bank account any way. I told him I thought he ought to clear up the estate affairs as soon as he could. He showed me a Bank of Toronto pass book. I noticed there was a good balance. I am not sure now whether it was three or five thousand dollars. I remember that I said I thought it was a debit, because the letter "D" was in the initial column. We had a heated argument about it. Mr. O'Brien said it represented a deposit.

He suggested that he'd call the bank and I listened on an extension line. He asked the voice at the other end, but that person did not return to the phone. We waited three minutes and hung up the phone.

Mr. O'Brien told me I had nothing to worry about, and that he would settle up the estate in due course."

Mr. Johnston said the next thing that happened was when he heard Mr. O'Brien was in a sanitarium in June.

Loan to A. M. Pigeon.

Alex. Pigeon testified that the $250 cheque made out to him by Mr. O'Brien was a personal loan from the accused. It was given without security.

BASING DEFENSE UPON INSANITY

first question Hauptmann had asked when he visited him in the jail for a conference was whether any of his relatives would come to his assistance. The attorney said he told the prisoner that a number of telephone calls had come to his law office, apparently from friends and relatives, but in each instance the caller did not give his full name. The lawyer said that in response to a question, Hauptmann said he was "being treated very kindly."

An unidentified man was picked up at Second Avenue and 86th Street, Manhattan, to-day by four Department of Justice agents who took him to the Bronx district attorney's office for questioning. The agents were careful to say that the man was not actually under arrest. But they would give no further information.

The place where the man was picked up is in the Yorkville district, where some of the Lindbergh ransom money has been passed at various times since the $50,000 was paid to a supposed representative of the kidnappers in the Bronx April 2, 1932.

Detective Arthur Johnson, ordered from Vienna to Germany by his New York City superiors to investigate European angles of the Hauptmann case, arrived in Kanenz, Germany to-day and searched the home of Hauptmann's mother, in her absence.

Johnson was guarded by a solid wall of Kamens police and was accompanied by plainclothesmen from Berlin and Dresden. He had a locksmith open the small apartment, Kabenz police said, and entered in search of clues that might lead to further evidence in the case. At the time Mrs. Haptmann was visiting another son in Dresden.

Had Spoon Hidden

NEW YORK, Sept. 28. (AP).—Sheriff John J. Hanley to-day disclosed that Bruno Richard Hauptmann had stolen a table spoon in the jail, broken it into four section, sharpened one and had hidden all four pieces in the jail.

ZELLERS IN PETERBOROUGH

RETAILERS TO THRIFTY CANADIANS

NEW STORE IS NOW READY TO OPEN DOORS TO PUBLIC

Zellers Are Ready to—c Local Labor Employed And Local Contractor Did The Job.

Real Transformation.

Zeller's Limited, newest acquisition to the city's mercantile and business life, make their initial bow to the shopping public of Peterborough and district to-morrow morning.

The new store, under management of D. J. Fitzgerald with its various sections offering a complete line of ladies' wear and everyday household requirements at specially attractive prices, opens its doors at nine o'clock in the morning, and the management extend a cordial invitation to the general public to attend.

While the general policy of the new concern is to offer quality merchandise at popular prices at all times, the opening day is to witness the offering of exceptional bargains, it is announced.

Before being taken over by Zeller's Limited recently, the premises had stood empty and deserted for many months creating an oppressive looking gap on the most advantageous corner in the entire business section at George and Simcoe streets.

A Transformation

With the bulk of the work being undertaken by local labor with the general contract in the able hands of the J. K. Sheehy Construction Company, the transformation is now complete.

Barricades surrounding the store during the course of alterations have been removed revealing one of the most attractive and up-to-date store fronts in the city. The interior of the store is no less pleasing.

Executed by Hobbs Manufacturing Company, Toronto, the front of the store is finished with an artistic vitrolite base, while the heavy plate glass is set into aluminite frames. Signs and awnings were supplied by J. J. Turner and Sons Limited, the former being finished in green and gold.

Throughout the store, the electrical installation was carried out by G. H. Watson and plumbing and heating by Fred Goodfellow. Especially brilliant lighting effects have been obtained for the show windows and for the interior of the store by the use of English hollowphane fixtures, which, it is claimed, have the effect of transforming darkness into virtual daylight, without undue glare.

Large Stock Room

While business is being confined to the ground floor, the basement is occupied by Zeller's Limited as a stock room, while offices are located on the second floor. In common with the rest of the premises the basement has been decorated with the same meticulous care that has been expended on the store itself, and shelving has been installed to accommodate the large stock of merchandise which this progressive organization carries.

In the store the walls are half-panelled in gumwood with walnut finish the remainder of the walls and ceiling being furnished with a spotless white surface of offering a pleasing contrast. Each of the numerous pillars in the store are similarly finished with the exception that they are also panelled with mirrors.

All the various lines of wearing apparel and household goods are on open display on tray-like counters, split up into sections. And each of the sections are so grouped under the firm's merchandising policy that inter-related goods may be found all grouped together. This is a plan devised to save the hurried shopper a needless recounting of her steps and to assist the sales staff in offering the maximum service.

Ladies' Wear Section

A section at the rear of the store covering an area of 22 by 50 feet, the boundaries of which are marked off by a thick pile carpet installed by Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Company, is set aside as the ladies' ready to wear department, where dresses, coats, millinery and accessories may be obtained. The department includes special fitting rooms where the customer may be assured of privacy.

Men's and boy's wear also finds a prominent place and children's things have been assembled in great variety.

The stock includes everyday household needs such as crockery, glassware, towels, sheets, blankets and smallwares.

Thomas Ritchie, construction manager and William F. Ryan, superintendent both of Zeller's Limited expressed gratification to find that the firms policy of having local contractors to execute the alterations, had worked out with complete satisfaction. The former remarked that at one time as many as 52 men had been engaged on the job.

All-Canadian

Zeller's Limited is an all-Canadian enterprise headed by President Walter P. Zeller, with vice-president Herbert A. Hills, who also occupies the position of operating manager and director.

In making the decision to open in business here, the company engaged as architects the firm of W. and W. R. Blackwell and awarded the general contract to the J. K. Sheehy Construction Company. The general contractor's staff, all local men, did the masonry, carpentry, lathing, plastering and painting and set up the store fixtures.

W. R. Turner did the galvanized iron work, while lumber was supplied by the Peterborough Lumber Company Limited and the McDonald Lumber Company. The latter firm supplied the panelling and trim and birch window backs, jointly with Peterborough Wood Products Company.

The contract for steel went to the Disher Steel Company, Toronto.

It was announced this morning that the new store would be officially opened by Mayor Roland Denne at nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Nichol discovered the blaze as flames were bursting through the second-story door and summoned district firemen. The loss was estimated at $300. The origin of the blaze has not been determined.

Continue Search For Ransom Money

In The Automotive World WEEK-BY-WEEK

Best August in 5 Years

Peaks of achievement that stand out above the general industrial upturn of the past months are discernible here and there in the automotive world. Chevrolet's record in August is one. Canadian production for home and foreign consumption, swelled by the demand both in the Dominion and abroad, helped Chevrolet's production for the month in Canadian and United States plants to reach the total of 74,437, which official statements assert is the biggest production in five years. Proportion of commercial vehicles, important as revealing extent of the trade revival, is high. In the first seven months of 1934, the registrations of Chevrolet commercial vehicles were more than double the same period of 1933.

Champion's Choice

Best known of Canada's importations from Australia is Oarsman Bob Pearce, world's champion of the single sculls. No trouble at all had Pearce in defending his world title against all comers on the Lake Ontario course of the Canadian National Exhibition a week or two ago. From his home in Hamilton, Ontario, Pearce drove over to the title contest in his own Chevrolet Six, and after he had rowed to victory again, he treated himself to a brand-new car. It was a Chevrolet again, of course, because Pearce can never forget the drive he made to the Olympic meet in California, with his precious racing shell strapped to the top of his Chevrolet Coupe, and how the thousands of miles from Canada and back again were accomplished with the maximum of comfort and dispatch.

Buys Before Announcement

Without any idea of what next year's Oldsmobile will be like, a Toronto motorist has already placed his order for one of the first of the 1935 models. Somewhat surprised was a Toronto Oldsmobile dealer when this customer, who is editor of a motor magazine definitely booked his order early in September. The customer's reason was that he wants one of the first to come off the line and is entirely satisfied from what he knows of the Olds he is driving and this year's Olds Sixes and Eights in general, that the 1935 editions will again be leaders in their price class. Factory executives at Oshawa say Oldsmobile deliveries have long been in excess of production capacity, and predict a record demand for these popular cars next year.

Co-operate in Pageant

Successful to a gratifying degree was the Tercentenary Celebration of the City of Three Rivers, and one of the high points was the parade of 25 allegorical floats depicting historic scenes and characters associate with the community on the St. Lawrence since the days of Cartier. Praise was bestowed, among others, upon the float entered by General Motors Products of Canada, Limited. It dramatized the discoverers of the Rockies, —La Verendrye and his ancestors. La Verendrye's home was at Three Rivers, and a monument to his achievement was unveiled on the old home site during the Tercentenary Celebration.

Not Speed Crazy

The young people of this country can hardly be called "speed crazy" to judge from the information obtained by General Motors Customer Research activity. "We form this opinion," says an official "from our analysis of owner re-actions, gathered during the past year through the mailing of questionnaires to car owners in all sections of the country. A breakdown of the data on an age basis makes it possible to compare the tastes and desires of youth with those of adults. Our analysis shows that the younger generation wants a top cruising speed only three and seven tenths miles per hour greater than that voted for by adults. It is interesting too, to note that the general subject of safety was stressed more frequently by youth than by the grown-ups, although the point was frequently made by both groups that an extra margin of speed and pick-up is essential to safety in coping with modern traffic conditions."

Best Looking Car

While many people have difficulty in putting their artistic preferences in word, the motor seems to have very definite convictions and he voices a strong leaning towards simplicity in design. That McLaughlin-Buicks are cast in a mold which is approved by the public is shown by the result of a car style survey recently conducted by General Motors research workers. McLaughlin-Buick style received more than three times as many votes as the average received by the other cars in the price class covered. Not only was this car favored from a standpoint of beauty but it was favored for its "enduring appeal" in keeping with the car's reputation for service and dependability.

Ruth Mildred Busa, 22-year-old telegrapher of Jersey City, who won $20,000 when her ticket on Tiberious took first prize in the Canadian Army and Navy Veterans' sweepstakes, is shown proudly displaying her check for the amount. Her mother purchased the ticket and presented it to her using the name "Sweetest Girl" for a signature. Miss Busa says she will not quit her job, but will take a short vacation in Canada with her mother, when they collect the cash.

BELIEVES PRAYER CURED BLINDNESS

Elderly Englishman, Seeing After Seven Years, Did Nothing But Pray.

LONDON, Sept. 28 (C.P.).—After seven years' blindness William Norman, 77 years of age, of Gamlingay, near Biggleswade, who had been told by specialists that his case was hopeless, is able to see again, the film that covered his eyes having gone. He attributes this to prayer. He says he did nothing in the matter but pray—"nothing, only praying ever y night that I might see," he declares.

One of the greatest joys of Norman is that he has been able for the first time to see his six-year-old granddaughter. Hitherto, where the window is, he has seen only a glimmer of light but he now sees across the road. The restored sight is in the right eye. Vision is not clear, however, and is confined to objects in a direct line and in good light.

He found his sight returning when the lights of a bus flashed through the window on his eyes. Next he saw a shadow as a grandson passed by the bedroom window. A little later he saw the window sashes.

Seeing children playing in the next garden he called them to him, and looked into their faces. As he did so, one said he could not see. They did not know. The old man kept his secret until the next day when he told his daughter, Mrs. Cope, that he could see what was on the table.

Direct trade between the United and the Irish Free State is increasing.

FREED YEARS AGO STILL IN PRISON

Young German Officer Who Killed Sweetheart Refuses To Take His Liberty.

MACALESTER, Okla., Sept. 28.—(CP)—How an aristocratic young German subaltern found happiness in the state penitentiary is the story of Conrad Maas, who eloped with a beautiful peasant girl and brought her to America in 1899, then slew her with an axe.

Maas pleaded insanity after the crime, but he was convicted of murder and sentenced to life imprisonment. In the penitentiary he took up painting and won wide recognition for his portraits of presidents of the United States and religious subjects.

Efforts were made to secure a parole for him, but, independent and proud, he said, "if the governor wants to see me, let him come here." When the parole was offered to him anyway he rejected it saying: "No one knows me now. My release from the penitentiary would only mean transfer to the poor-house. I prefer to stay here with my friends."

Maas' family have repeatedly sought his release, but his own independence has been their worst obstacle, and now, nearing 80, he still spends his days with palette and brush beneath a prison window.

HARRIMAN URGES RECIPROCAL TARIFF DEALINGS WITH CANADA

U. S. Chamber of Commerce President Impressed With Attitude in Dominion.

Suggests Action at Once.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 28 (AP)—Secretary of State Cordell Hull was urged to-day by Henry I. Harriman, president of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to open reciprocal tariff negotiations with Canada at the earliest possible moment.

Harriman, in a letter to Hull, said business men of both countries were in favor of working out a reciprocal trade agreement. He said a joint committee, maintained by American and Canadian Chambers, had recommended such a course.

"The widespread interest in both countries in restoring Canadian-American trade to its former levels" Harriman said, "has found its origin in no small part in the facilities now afforded for reciprocal trade negotiations."

"During a recent visit to Canada I was particularly impressed by the desire of Canadian business men to see such an official exchange of trade and tariff views take place, including in such exchange not only tariff levels but also the many administrative regulations.

"I appreciate that this matter has long had the consideration of the department of state. I am hopeful that the time may not be far distant when official announcement may be made that the task of exploring the possibility of a reciprocal agreement with Canada will be undertaken."

A FURTHER STEP on the Road to Recovery

A Statement by the Prime Minister of Canada

THE Dominion of Canada will offer for public subscription within the next few days the 1934 Refunding Loan. It is an undertaking of such significance to every citizen that I think it fitting to present this brief explanation of its close relation to the welfare and continued progress of our country.

The 1934 Loan is not an incidental effort. It is a part—and an essential part—of the great debt conversion programme in which Canada has been engaged since 1931, and by which we are refunding at maturity the large sums borrowed for wartime purposes. The national importance of this programme—and of the 1934 Loan as part of it—cannot be over emphasized. It is important from three aspects: 1—National Credit; 2—National Economy; 3—National Recovery. I shall deal with each of these in turn.

1. National Credit

National credit means to a nation what an honest reputation means to a man. Its maintenance is a primary essential and necessitates that each obligation be met, fully and promptly, as it comes due. Our debt conversion programme is then, in the first instance, our method of meeting our obligations and thus maintaining our credit.

By this programme Canada has already refunded $858,000,000 of maturing wartime debt, and completion of the 1934 Loan will bring the refunded total to over one billion dollars. As a result, Canada's credit stands notably high, both at home and in the great money markets of the world.

Striking evidence of our high credit standing was given within the last few months when Canada secured immediate over-subscription of a long-term loan in London at a price to yield the investor less than 3½% and, in New York, obtained a one-year Loan of $50,000,000 bearing interest at 2 per cent. And there is equally striking evidence at the present moment in the fact that every internal issue of Dominion of Canada Bonds now outstanding is selling today at substantially above its issue price. The twelve-year 4% Bonds of the 1933 Refunding Loan, issued at 96½, are now selling at 104 to yield approximately 3¾%.

2. National Economy

The debt conversion programme, in the second place, is providing substantial savings in public interest charges. The debt which we are refunding was incurred with interest rates at artificially high wartime peaks. Refunding is now being accomplished with interest rates throughout the world moving steadily downward toward more normal levels—an encouraging world movement which is essential to business recovery. By refunding under these conditions Canada has already obtained a reduction of the previous interest charges amounting to more than $9,000,000 per annum, and completion of the 1934 Loan will provide a further saving of over $5,000,000 per annum.

The annual saving of over $14,000,000 thus secured has a direct cash benefit to every tax-payer. This saving has much more than offset the interest charges on the debt which has been incurred to meet the extraordinary burden of unemployment relief. It has, to a considerable extent, offset the heavy burdens which the depression period has imposed with respect to railway and other current requirements. It will also pave the way to tax reductions with the return to better times.

3. National Recovery

The debt conversion which Canada has achieved since 1931, by thus maintaining national credit and securing national economy, has been a major factor in our progress toward business recovery.

A year ago, preliminary to the 1933 Refunding Loan, I took occasion to express the belief that Canada had passed the low point of depression and was definitely upon the road to recovery. Today, our progress toward recovery is a matter of established fact. Since the low point of February 1933, the trend of business has been moving steadily upward in an improvement so marked and so consistently sustained that we need no longer doubt its reality.

The facts of business recovery are written beyond dispute in our statistical records. The most significant indices relate to physical volume of business, industrial production, carloadings, electric power production, employment and prices. Here is the record in each case:

	PERCENTAGE INCREASE During Past Years	PERCENTAGE INCREASE Since Low Point of Depression February 1933
Physical volume of business	13.8%	42.8%
Industrial Production	15.7%	56.9%
Carloadings	10.3%	29.4%
Electric Power Production	12.4%	32.7%
Employment	14.7%	17.1%
Wholesale Prices	4.0%	13.7%
Farm Products Prices	7.7%	43.3%

*In the case of carloadings, employment and prices, the latest figures available are those for August; in other cases, those for July.

Our external trade figures are equally encouraging. During the first eight months of the present year, exports of Canadian products increased approximately $99,000,000, or 32.7% over the same period last year. The corresponding increase for imports has been slightly under $93,000,000, or 38.2%.

A Further Step

Anyone who reflects upon these three aspects of credit, economy and recovery will at once appreciate that the debt conversion programme is vitally important to every Canadian and that, consequently, the success of the 1934 Loan is the personal concern of every man and woman in the Dominion.

The 1934 Loan is a further step in a great national undertaking; its success means a further step on the road to recovery. I know that I need not stress the attractiveness of the Loan as the soundest possible investment, for that will be universally recognized. I do, however, earnestly call upon my fellow Canadians to support this Loan to the limit of their abilities as an opportunity to promote our national welfare. I know of no way in which the individual citizen can render greater service to himself and to his country.

ZELLERS OCCUPIES PREMISES THAT HAVE BEEN LONG VACANT

D. J. Fitzgerald, Store Manager, Says Everything Is Ready For Opening.

Most Attractive Place.

The shopping public are looking forward to the opening of Zellers to-morrow morning. Located in premises at the corner of George and Simcoe streets which had been vacant for a year the new store will add materially to the prestige of the city's shopping section.

Only a few finishing touches remain to be done before to-morrow, says D. J. Fitzgerald, store manager, and then the store will be shipshape for the attention of the public.

The new store has been designed for character and personality and is equipped with fixtures and store windows which are distinctively modern in treatment. All materials used in the construction and decoration of the store have been chosen from the standpoint of beauty and service; and Zellers bids fair to being one of the most attractive shopping centres in the city.

Among the outstanding divisions are the Fashion Sections, devoted to dresses, coats, millinary and accessories. Convenient fitting rooms have been provided for frequenters of the fashion sections.

Of especial interest are divisions in which are displayed everyday household needs, including crockery, glassware, towels, sheets, blankets and smallware items. Men's and boys' wear find a prominent place in the new store; and children's things have been assembled in unusual variety.

RURAL FAIR AT CAVAN DRAWS BIG ENTRY LIST

Mount Pleasant Wins Singing Contest—Six Sections Take Part In Parade.

R. Madill Best Speaker.

CAVAN, Sept. 28. (By Examiner Correspondent).—The annual rural school fair for North Cavan was held at Ida on Saturday afternoon, September 22 under the supervision of A. E. Summers, agricultural representative for Durham, and Colonel J. W. Odell, P.S.I.

There was a large attendance of pupils, teachers, parents and friends. A sport program including a variety of races for the pupils, was carried out before the noon hour.

Six schools lined up for parade—S.S. No. 2, Mount Pleasant, teacher, Mr. Bob Sutton; S.S. No. 3, Fairmount, teacher, Mr. Gerald Staples; S.S. No. 4, Beechwood, teacher, Miss Mary Sharpe; S.S. No. 5, Cavan, teacher, Mr. Reg. Sutton; S.S. No. 7, Matchett's, teacher, Miss Margaret Brown; S.S. No. 9, Cairo, teacher, Mr. J. A. Hill.

Special interest centered around the school chorus singing. This is the second year since the schools of Cavan have had the advantage of voice culture under the capable training of Mr. Martin Chenhall, Jr., of Peterborough. Mr. Chenhall led the pupils in a variety of songs which were a credit to the pupils and also to the supervisor of music. The judges were Messrs. S. Willis and J. Sedgewick of Peterborough. Mr. Willis, after an instructive address, gave the result as follows: 1st, Mount Pleasant; 2nd, Matchett's 3rd, Cairo; 4th Fairmount.

Each school had a suitable yell which was given with great vim in every case. The physical excercises which were led by Mr. Hill were taken simultaneously. The various attractive costumes and decorations of the pupils made a gay appearance during this feature of the program.

CAPTAIN'S CLEVER WORK SAVES SHIP GOING TO BOTTOM

LOSES DECK CARGO.

PORT COLBORNE, Sept. 28 (CP)—A repetition of the sinking of the John Boland was only averted by the clever work of Captain Robert Wilson of the Saskadoc, 416-foot freighter of the Paterson Steamship Company, yesterday. The large craft limped into Port Colborne shortly after midnight last night, listing badly to port and her deck almost awash.

For ten hours yesterday afternoon and evening, Captain Wilson battled a raging sea with the rudder of the craft jammed, carrying a large cargo of coal from Erie, Penn., to Hamilton. The vessel was ten miles off Long Point yesterday afternoon when the storm struck. At is height about one o'clock the rudder jammed and the craft, carrying a deck load of coal, overflowing from its open hatches, was thrown broadside to the sea which swept over it, pouring water into the craft.

At 2 o'clock the vessel had taken on a 25-degree list to port, and Capt. Wilson ordered the lifeboats made ready. He, however, fought to save the ship and managed to keep the vessel's port side away from the storm until he was able to guide the craft, after ten hours, in Port Colborne, 11 hours overdue.

Loses 100-Ton Cargo.

The huge deck load covered the entire 22 hatches, but aside from the loss of part of this cargo, about 100 tons, washed overboard, there was no damage.

The vessel tied up at the Canadian Furnace Company dock and sufficient of its cargo was unloaded to relieve the list and she cleared for Hamilton at 6.25 a.m. to-day with a large tonnage of water in her hold.

Captain Wilson stated that the crew worked frantically to free the jammed rudder sufficiently to steer a course and only succeeded after what seemed an eternity. The waves had washed completely over the hatches, he said, pouring water into them and causing the list.

The J. O. McKellar stood by the stricken vessel for a time yesterday but at Captain Wilson's signal proceeded on its way.

Steamship officials are giving Captain Wilson credit for a remarkable feat of seamanship in bringing the vessel and her crew of 21 safely to port under such conditions.

A somewhat similar mishap, two years ago, sent the J. J. Boland of Sarnia Steamships to the bottom of Lake Erie with four of her crew.

DISPLAY EXPERT HAS CONSIDERED BUYERS' COMFORT

William F. Ryan Of Zellers Has Supervised Merchandise Display.

Ready To Co-operate.

William F. Ryan, superintendent of Zellers, has spent considerable time in this city, supervising merchandise displays in the new store which will be opened tomorrow.

"The comfort of shoppers is important," is Mr. Ryan's opinion, "and one of the first aims of modern display-work is to place merchandise so that it will be easily accessible to customers. The relation of one type of merchandise to another is carefully considered, so that a customer may purchase related items within a small area and thus avoid the fatigue which generally results from shopping around over large distances of floor space.

"We have aimed in every detail to consider the comfort of shoppers, in our efforts to make shopping in Zellers thoroughly enjoyable and pleasant."

Mr. Ryan, who has been in direct contact for several weeks with local craftsmen, expressed his pleasure at their ready co-operation with Zeller executives.

ROSENEATH, Sept. 28 (Examiner Correspondence) — The United Sunday School observed rally day with the regular church service on Sunday morning and was fairly well attended. The president of the Sunday School, Andrew Brown took charge of the greater part of the service, following closely the theme, "Sunday School work around the world."

Careful preparation of program was arranged for, by Mrs. Reg. Crego and who was responsible in selecting and training the scholars for the pageant, those taking part were Miss Ruby Blodgett as leader welcomed very graciously the strangers, Olive Sherwin, British; Jean Carew, Australia; Noreen Adams, South America; Gwendolyn Vercoe, European; Fern Blodgett, a pupil from Palestine; Marjorie Carew, India; Verna Radley, China; Audrey Mounsey, pupil from Korea; Shirley Brisbin, Japan; Lavigne McMillan, Africa; each pupil did their part exceedingly and after singing, "In Christ there is no East nor West," they repeated the Mission Band prayer in unison.

FIELD DAY IS HELD AT LAKEFIELD H.S.

Harry Nichols Won The Cup Donated By Dr. Mackenzie.

LAKEFIELD, Sept. 28.—(Examiner Correspondence). — On Wednesday afternoon the High School field day was held, and while rain threatened early, the weather cleared and proved ideal.

There was a very fair attendance of parents and citizens, and while the entry list was not as large as the size of the school warrants, the young people made a good showing in the quality of performance, new records were made in some events, and some of the newcomers in the High School were outstanding, especially Mary Blewett and Donald Hurl.

The last number on the program was the premier event, the mile race for the cup donated by Dr. Mackenzie, won by Harry Nichols, who won it three years ago. Last year's winner was Douglas Smith.

The events on the program were selected by the executives of the boys' and girls' athletic associations and prepared under the direction of Mr. Barrett.

Following are the championship winners: Mary Blewett won the junior girls' championship, and there was a tie between Jean Kingdon and Assunta White for the senior girls' championship. The boys' championship will not be decided till the pole vault is competed.

KINSMEN PLAN BIG CARNIVAL FOR HALLOWE'EN

Two New Members Are Initiated Into Kinsmen Club.

40 CASES DEALT WITH.

Two new members were accepted to membership in the Kinsmen Club at the bi-monthly dinner meeting at Empress Hotel last evening, in the persons of Francis Trimble, assistant traffic manager, Bell Telephone Company, and Cyril Rice, organist and choirmaster at St. Andrew's United Church.

Alex L. Elliott, formally charged the new members with the obligations and privileges of membership and extended them a cordial welcome on behalf of the entire club.

President Alex Sollitt, who presided at the meeting, invited suggestions as to the form which the club's annual fall effort was to take, and it was decided that a big Hallowe'en Night carnival and dance would be promoted. It is probable that the event will be staged in the Armouries.

Details in connection with the event were left to a committee to be appointed at the next meeting of the executive.

Ralph Honey tendered a brief report of the club's Sunshine Committee activities, stating that as a part of its service work program, the club had completed forty cases at an average cost of $6 each in its eye preventive clinic. Ninety per cent of the cases treated were children under the age of 16 years, he said.

He remarked that Henry Toole, as chairman of the Sunshine Committee had a number of additional cases in hand.

An invitation from the Belle Club regarding an inter-club convention in the Quinte City on Saturday was read by the president, and two members expressed their intention of representing the local club.

Arrange Pennant Series If Needed

NEW YORK, September 28. (A.P.) — President John Heydler of the National League, yesterday announced plans for a three game series to decide the circuit's pennant race if the New York Giants and St. Louis Cardinals are tied at the end of the regular season on Sunday.

The first game, starting at 1.30 p.m., will be played in St. Louis, on Tuesday, October 2.

A special train will carry the two teams back to New York where the second game will be played Wednesday, starting as soon as possible. The third contest, if necessary, also, will be played at the polo grounds Thursday.

President Heydler said he also would request Commissioner K. M. Landis, for a day or two of rest before starting the world series in Detroit. If granted the series would start either Friday or Saturday, Oct. 5 or 6. The receipts of the play-off series will be split between the two contending clubs.

MOTHER'S HELPER CHOSEN TO REPRESENT "MISS ENGLAND"

Policeman's Daughter, 16, Charms Judges With Gentle Personality

WOULD BE MODEL

London.—A 16-year-old girl who helps her mother with the housework was chosen at Selfridges, Oxford St., W., as "Miss England."

She is Jane Lammas, the daughter of a policeman, and lives in Brandon Rd., Hall Green, Birmingham. She represented the Midlands in the contest for the "Miss England" trophy.

Her mother almost fainted when waiting behind the scenes at Selfridges, she heard the news. She had to be sent to her hotel to await her daughter.

Joan Francis, of Southsea ("Miss South Coast"), who is a Portsmouth shop assistant, was second, and Lilian McCready, of Newcastle ("Miss Northumbria"), was third.

The judges, many of them famous theatrical and film producers and dress designers, chose Jane first of all because she has a gentle personality and harmony of features.

They liked the charm in her big blue eyes, the laughing curve to her lips, her slim young figure, the perky way she holds her head of dark brown curls.

Has Mind of Own

For a girl of 16 Jane has very decided ideas. She left school at 14 and tried to be a mannequin. They sent her home, saying she was too young. She got a job in a gown shop and stayed only three weeks. The hours were too long.

Now she hopes—wearing a crown of beauty—she will be able to pick her job.

Within one minute of being announced the winner by Mr. Williams, of Selfridges, there was a man standing behind her with sheaves of contracts waiting for her to sign.

But a woman had beaten him to it. She already had Jane's signature on the dotted line.

She was Mrs. Collingwood, of the Miss England, 1934, organization, which is running the competition.

PENNIES OF PITY CADGED BY TRICKS

Underhand Methods of Some Make It Hard for the Honest Beggars

London.—Down - and - outers here have become divided into two camps. One is composed of the tricky mendicants who employ ingenious methods of invoking public sympathy. The others are men who will not stoop to such methods.

One of the down-and-outs, a "timber merchant," as the match sellers call themselves, gave away some of the secrets of the tricky ones.

"There is one ragged and dirty down-and-out who carries a piece of stale bread with him," he said. "When no one is looking he throws it a few feet into the churchyard at St. Martin-in-the-Fields. Then with a hungry look in his eye, he pretends he has seen the bread for the first time and reaches through the railings for it.

"Of course, he can't reach it. People passing by see this pathetic spectacle, speak to the man, and give him money for real food.

"Another man can be seen in the West End every afternoon with a child about six years old.

"Every now and then he stops, pulls out a piece of stale bread, breaks it carefully, and gives it to the child to eat. That never fails to attract sympathizers.

"The stale bread trick is also used by a man in Shaftesbury Ave. People stop and give him money when they see him sitting and eating it as though he hasn't had a bite for days.

"Lots of us won't lower ourselves to those tricks, but we suffer for it. I spent three hours in Piccadilly one afternoon and only got one penny."

INCLUDE MANY "SINS" IN "PUBLIC MISCHIEF"

If Police Officer Asked in for Tea, Charge Could Result

Liverpool.—A Liverpool man has been bound over for "effecting a public mischief" by telling the police that his motorcycle had been stolen, when, as a fact, he had thrown it into a pond because he wanted to get rid of it.

In 1932, the "public mischief" charge was brought into prominence when it was decided that those who made false statements were committing a common law misdemeanor for which they could be sent to prison with hard labor for two years.

They had been guilty of "effecting a public mischief."

There are hundreds of actions which can come within the category of this fashionable charge. It is the most elastic charge in the criminal code. It has never been legally defined.

The case in 1932 was that of a woman who told a bogus hold-up story to the police. There have been hundreds of similar charges since.

A number of men spread a story that a lion had escaped in Sussex. It was not true. They were charged with effecting a public mischief, and two were convicted.

A domestic servant told a highly romantic story of an assault, which she later confessed was false. Public mischief.

Another servant put 70 police officers on a false clue in a convict hunt. She received one month's hard labor on a public mischief charge.

Two men tried to procure the marriage of an alien; eighteen Fascists obstructed; the removal of cattle for tithe; a woman sent herself abusive anonymous letters; a student made a long statement about some "missing" articles as a "joke"—all were charged with effecting a public mischief.

Take a police officer off duty—you might ask him in for a cup of tea—and you would be effecting a public mischief.

MUTE GAINS SPEECH IN 'MIRACLE' CHURCH

Congregation Prays After Child Cries 'Daddy, Daddy'

Knock, Co. Mayo.—A little girl of two, dumb from birth, electrified her parents in the village church by crying out in a loud voice "Daddy! Daddy!"

The parents were pilgrims, for it is at this church that the Virgin Mary is reputed to have appeared 56 years ago.

The child laughed with delight, while the congregation went on its knees in thanksgiving for a "miracle cure." Mr. and Mrs. J. Convey of Swinford were the parents.

FENCE STOPS CYCLE "KIDNAPPING" YOUTH

Ride on Friend's Machine Almost Brought $1,100 Fine

Bristol.—There was a wicked glimpse in its mechanical eye as it stood against the curb. It was a motorcycle with a "do-come-and-try-me" expression about its shining paint work. . . . And it belonged to a friend.

So 19-year-old George Drake, a butcher's assistant, of Gloucester Rd., thought there could be no harm in just starting up the engine—but he reckoned without the machine.

No sooner had he pressed the kick-starter than he found himself kidnapped. The motorcycle swept gaily down the road, with a bewildered passenger clinging to the handlebars, and trying desperately to stop.

He could not—until he met a wooden fence which did the trick for him.

A crestfallen George Henry faced the magistrates and heard read out a list of the following alleged offences:

Driving a motorcycle dangerously; driving without due care and attention; taking away the machine without the owner's consent; having no driving license; no third party insurance policy in force, and failing to report an accident.

He was liable, the chairman told him, to a total penalty of £1,100—and his wages were less than £5 a week. He is to pay a minimum fine and costs. Also he is disqualified from obtaining a driving license for two years.

THINK NOISE DROVE WOMAN TO SUICIDE

Gifted Composer Sought Relief From Road-Drilling

Windsor (Berkshire).—A search for relief from the incessant throb of pneumatic drills is believed to lie behind the death of a cultured woman found hanging in a room at a hotel.

The woman, Miss K. Dorothy Fox, London, has been described by a friend as a gifted composer.

"She went to Windsor for relief from noise which, she said, had been driving her frantic," a friend stated. "She had been staying with a woman friend, a writer, in a country town. Road drills, outside the house, made life unbearable there, she told me. Both she and her friend could stand it no longer, and about a fortnight ago they left the house.

WELL, 80 FEET DEEP TRAPS TWO WOMEN

One Falls in Assisting Another —Saved After Clinging to Ledge

Axbridge.—Clinging desperately to a crumbling stone ledge, a woman fought for her life for an hour in deep water 80 feet down, at the bottom of a disused well.

Another woman came running to the top of the well. Eager to help, she leaned forward—and fell the 80 feet to the bottom.

Mrs. Emily Ollis, of West St., and her neighbor, Mrs. Hucker, were the central figures in this drama.

Mrs. Ollis, the wife of a farm laborer, was working in the kitchen of Trolawney House, when the stone covering of a centuries-old well gave way and she dropped down the shaft. Huge pieces of masonry fell with her.

Struggling in the water, Mrs. Ollis placed her fingers in a gap between two stones.

To this ledge she clung for an hour while Miss Dibble, tenant of the house, ran for help and men fetched ropes.

Mrs. Ollis was being slowly dragged to the surface by a rope when her neighbor, Mrs. Hucker, leaning forward to help, lost her balance and fell.

Ropes were again lowered, and she was rescued. Both women suffered from shock and bruises.

"I find it hard to believe that I am still alive," Mrs. Ollis said. "When I close my eyes I imagine myself back again in that awful darkness. My fingers were numb before I was rescued."

NECK ONCE BROKEN MAN STILL WORKS

Celebrates 51st Wedding Anniversary — Survives Many Accidents

London.—Thirteen years ago T. H. Mitchell broke his neck, and according to doctors he ought to have died.

Recently, however, at the age of 73, he went with his wife to Brighton to celebrate the fifty-first anniversary of their wedding.

Mr. Mitchell, who lives at Kilkie St., Fulham, S.W., is a decorator, and he has had a number of accidents while working. Yet, contrary to the expectations of doctors, he has always recovered after each accident. He still works at least eight hours a day.

He fractured his neck in three places when he fell from some scaffolding down a flight of stairs in Kensington in 1921. In 1914 he fell from a high ladder and fractured his ribs, an elbow, a collar-bone, and other bones.

Mrs. Mitchell is 76. They have had eight children—six sons and two daughters. A friend said: "Mr. Mitchell can do a good day's work or go out for a day's fun as if he were 20 years younger."

DIG UP SKELETON

"Haunted" Ground Reveals Human Bones

Scunthorpe.—Digging on a piece of ground at Ashby, which has the reputation of having once been "haunted," a workman struck his spade into a human skull. Further down he unearthed the complete skeleton of a human being. The skull was buried about two feet below the surface.

"OH, YOU'RE BITING MY FINGER!"

The little girl was in possession of the chocolates, but the boy-friend knew a thing or two and eventually got his share. All went well until he mistook the end of her finger for a sweet. The above picture is a sidelight of one of the village fairs which dot England at this time of the year.

PRO FOOTBALL PROVIDES WORK FOR 10,000 PERSONS

GOAL COSTS £500

That's how the money goes in Britain's greatest entertainment industry—football.

On August 25 the song of the turnstiles began for the new season.

Nearly a million fans set out by road and rail and on foot to watch their favorite clubs begin the great contest which may—or may not—lead to glory in the cup final or the league.

By that evening the turnstiles clicked to the merry tune of £60,000. Railway, omnibus, and coach tickets valued at £25,000 were punched.

League football is one of the major British industries, giving direct employment to about 10,000 people, and indirect work to many thousand others.

Pay Big Wages

The eighty-eight clubs which make up the league have grounds totalling in freehold value about £1,600,000. They employ 3,000 professional players whose weekly wages amount to £15,000.

The clubs' running costs total about £30,000 a week, or £1,380,000 a year, allowing for reduced costs in the summer. The average cost per goal scored is £500.

A first-class club costs about £1,000 a week to run. Such clubs spend £4,000 a year on travel, hotel expenses, and laundry. Printing, stationery, and posters cost £2,000 a year. Gatemen and police cost £2,000. Fees to doctors and surgeons for medical treatment of players total £400 a year.

Even such odds and ends as footballs and boots cost £160 each Saturday.

MAIL BAGS LAND AHEAD OF 'PLANE

Only Bottle Broke as Luggage Drops From Clouds

Croydon.—A Germain air liner was gliding into Croydon in rough weather when the door of the luggage hold flew open.

A policeman on point duty down below had the surprise of his life when two mailbags came out of the clouds and landed one on either side of him.

People seated in the grounds of a hotel not far away were no less surprised when a rucksack dropped with a thud on the lawn.

The liner reported her loss on reaching Croydon, and the mailbags and the rucksack were quickly traced.

In the rucksack, which belonged to an English tourist, were three bottles. They had fallen 900 feet. One was broken.

BICYCLIST, 77, DIES

Lincoln.—A journey of more than 1,000 miles by a cyclist aged 77 has been interrupted by his death outside the small Lincolnshire village of Barton-on-Humber. The veteran rider, Conrad Frederick Just, was found dead on a seat.

MORE THAN 2,000,000 EMBRACE SPIRITUALISM

Increase in Membership Since Great War Necessitates Larger Offices

London.—A striking example of the increasing interest in spiritualism and psychical research in the British Isles appeared in the prosaic guise of a "property wanted" advertisement.

The London Spiritualist Alliance, one of the oldest and most active of the organizations concerned with the study of psychic phenomena, advertised for a "large building centrally situated."

If suitable premises are forthcoming, the alliance propose to establish new headquarters, in place of the present large house which they now occupy in Queensberry Pl., S.W.

"Our need for larger and more central headquarters has become more and more acute during the past few years, owing to our growing membership," said Miss M. Phillimore, the alliance's secretary. "The question of the survival of human personality after bodily death has become of paramount interest to millions of people since the war. Before the war there were a few hundred thousand spiritualists, largely looked upon as cranks; now it is estimated that there are between two and three millions in the British Isles alone."

The alliance, which was formed in 1873, stands for a belief in survival after death.

FOUR-YEAR-OLD PLUCKY

Bradford.—James Kelly, aged 4, fell out of a train near Morecambe and passengers were surprised to see him get up and run after the train; but he was taken to hospital with face and leg injuries.

LEGALLY 'DEAD AND BURIED' MAN NOW DECLARED ALIVE

Child Rejoices As Probe Reveals Father Not Victim Of Crash

MISTAKEN IDENTITY

Preston.—A man lying seriously ill in Preston Infirmary was definitely identified by relatives as one who has been declared legally dead. His wife is buried at a Bradford cemetery in the same grave as a man who was thought to be alive.

This extraordinary position arises from a mistake in the identification of two of six victims of a motor car accident at Tarleton a week before, four of whom were killed.

Cr. H. Parker, the Preston coroner, has already certified that one of the dead is Harry Boocock, a cabinet - maker of Wilberforce St., Bradford, and the body identified as his was buried with that of Mrs. Boocock—another victim of the accident—at a double funeral.

It has now been established that Boocock is alive, and slowly recovering consciousness, although still critically ill with severe head and face injuries.

Buried as "Husband"

It had been supposed that this survivor was Ronald Mackillop of Harrison St., Bradford, whose wife was also among the killed.

A sister and sister-in-law of Mackillop, who visited the infirmary, were the first to suspect that a mistake had been made. On previous visits the man's face and head had been swathed in bandages.

His injuries, however, had healed sufficiently to make him recognizable, and the two women realized with a shock that the man was not their brother. The obvious conclusion was that the man buried with Mrs. Boocock was Mackillop.

It is understood that the coroner will have to take fresh evidence of identification and acquaint the Registrar-general of the error in the original evidence before Boocock is technically regarded as "alive."

To one person in particular the revelation that Boocock is alive has brought great joy. This is his 11-year-old son, Maurice, the other survivor of the crash, who for a week had been left in the tragic belief that he was both fatherless and motherless.

PRINCESS HAS PARTY

London.—Princess Margaret Rose celebrated her fourth birthday by a tea party, which was attended only by a few members of the family, at Glamis Castle.

She received many presents, and her mother, the Duchess of York, and her sister, Princess Elizabeth, helped her to open the parcels before the party.

SCRATCH PROVES FATAL

DIES IN CLIFF FALL

Bridlington.—A woman fell 200 feet to death in view of her husband through stooping on the lonely cliff top to pick some flowers.

TATTOOED RINGS

London.—Tattooed wedding rings for both husbands and wives are advocated by an organization to prevent deception by persons concealing the fact they are already married.

RELEASE SOON COMING FELON DIES ESCAPING

One Month to Go, Convict Drowns in Canal Leap

Glasgow.—Six convicts in a gang of 200 from Barlinnie prison dived fully clothed into the Monkhead canal in a spectacular dash for liberty. One failed to reach the further bank, and was drowned. He was due for release next month.

Fifty warders were called out. Six motor cars thundered across the canal bridge. Others raced along the roads surrounding the prison. Police in motor cars and motorcycles joined in the chase.

A cordon was formed. Two men were caught running away. Two others were captured on Letham Hill golf course. A third was "treed" near the canal bank, jumped into the canal—and surrendered.

The body of the sixth, James Macneilly of Garngadhill, was recovered from the canal four hours after the dash to escape.

TWO EXPLORERS LOST IN 'PREHISTORIC' LAND

Search Party to Fly Over Sulphur-Clouded Mystery Isle

Manchester.—Search by aeroplane, native bearers, and trained bush men is being organized with government aid for two young Englishmen who have disappeared in the "lost world" region of Lake Rudolf, Uganda.

The missing men are Dr. W. S. Dyson, of Manchester, medical officer and anthropologist, and W. H. D. Martin, surveyor, both members of the Rudolf Rift Valley expedition.

They set out in a frail collapsible canoe for the comparatively unknown South Island. They intended to be absent a week. There has been no word of them since.

V. E. Fuchs, of St. John's College, Cambridge, leader of the expedition, who is at the base camp, became alarmed by their absence, and telegraphed to Nairobi asking for government help in organising a search, and for the use of an aeroplane.

The country the expedition is exploring is one of the few places still in the reptilian stage of zoological development.

South Island is a mystery island. Its landscape is often clouded by steam and sulphur vapors which escape from huge fissures in the ground.

Mammals are practically non-existent. The chief reptiles are the crocodiles and the huge monitor lizards. These lizards defy man by spitting and snapping at him. They live on crocodile eggs, which they dig out of the mud.

The whole atmosphere of the island is prehistoric; its secrets are safely held.

PRINCE ENTERS MINE HE HELPED TO START

Waived Royalties on Land Giving 50 Men Work and Happiness

Shepton Mallet.—The Prince of Wales went down a Somerset coal mine that came to life close to the spot where a coal mine had died.

There is a human story behind this "new coal field for an old one." The prince heard it from one of the doughty West of England colliers who conducted him round the mine.

Thirteen years ago a coal mine at Farrington Gurney closed down. Three hundred men were thrown out of work. They were idle and forced to go on the "dole."

Three years later, determined to make work for themselves, a small band of them applied to the Prince of Wales for a concession to dig close to the dead coal field. It lay in the prince's duchy estate.

The prince lent a sympathetic ear to the colliers' plea. He told the men the duchy would waive any royalties until the mine was self-supporting.

The men set to work. After deep excavating they struck coal. Every now and again the prince inquired how the mine was working.

Now the mine is paying for itself. Fifty men are in full-time employment; one hundred and thirty-five tons of household coal are raised every week. And the Duchy of Cornwall is receiving its dues.

Then he disappeared half a mile under the ground for a quarter of an hour and watched the men dig for coal. He reappeared, his hands black from the low corridors where he had bent almost double.

ROCK PROVES RUBBLE

Old Quarry Hinders Building of Great Cathedral

Liverpool.—The discovery of old quarry workings below the foundations of the £15,000,000 Liverpool Roman Catholic Metropolitan Cathedral is causing great building difficulties and may add considerably to the final cost.

The cathedral, to be the largest in the world, is being built on Brownlow Hill, in the centre of the city, which was believed to be solid rock, but old quarry workings have been discovered and the rubble with which they were filled had to be shored away and concrete pumped in.

STORM KILLS WOMAN, 99

Biarritz.—The oldest British resident of Biarritz, Mrs. M. L. Webbes, who has died of a heart attack, would have been 100 years old in a few months time. The attack is believed to have been brought on by a violent storm which shook her seaside apartment. Ten years ago Mrs. Webbes made all arrangements with an undertaker for her funeral.

PERFORMS "HEROIC ACT" MISSIONARY IS JAILED

Punishes Natives at Their Request After Uprising

THRASHING ILLEGAL

Capetown.—A young South African missionary named Puren has been sentenced to fourteen months' imprisonment by the authorities in the Belgian Congo.

A report to this effect was published in the newspaper Die Burgher recently. Thee newspaper adds that Mr. Puren has been sentenced for "a heroic act."

It is stated that Mr. Puren received report of a serious native uprising in the Congo.

At great personal risk he went to the headquarters of the rebellious tribe, calmed the natives, deprived the witch doctors of their charms, and took the ringleaders prisoner.

A party of Belgian troops, on its way to crush the rising, turned back on learning that the danger had been averted.

The arrested natives implored Mr. Puren not to hand them over to the authorities, but to punish them himself. This he did—apparently thrashing the culprits. The Belgian authorities, regarding the act as illegal, then stepped in and imprisoned him.

ATE AN AMERICAN NEVER WHITE MAN

London.—Malcolm MacDonald, the premier's son, who is parliamentary secretary to the Dominions office, told a party of 23 English schoolgirls, who are going on an Empire tour, how he once had a talk with a cannibal chief.

"I hear you are going to Fiji," he said, "so please give an old friend of mine there—an aged cannibal chieftain—my kind regards. When I asked him if he had ever eaten a white man, he replied, 'No, only an American'." The tour has been arranged by the Society for the Overseas Settlement of British Women, and includes the Panama Canal, Fiji, Australia, Tasmania, Colombo and Ceylon.

SCIENCE DEBUNKS SLAYING OF DRAGON

"Golden Fleece" Merely Legend, Prospector's Belief

Prague.—Reports reaching here from Russian gold prospectors at work near Batum, in Asia Minor, suggest that they have solved the riddle of the "Golden Fleece," which Jason and the Argonauts set out from Thessaly to capture.

Legend declared that the "Golden Fleece" hung in a grove in Colchis, in Asia Minor, where it was guarded night and day by a dragon.

Discoveries of a rich vein of gold near Batum suggest that the Argonauts were, in fact, a party of gold prospectors.

The slaying of the dragon was a picturesque way of telling of the perils they encountered before they discovered the gold, now located again.

The "Golden Fleece" was, presumably, the vein of gold on which the Russians are now working.

The vein is on the bank of a river, and quantities of gold dust found in the sand have now been sent back to the geological institute in Moscow for expert opinion.

USED BOTTLE TIPS TO MAKE LANDSCAPE

Beautifies Refreshment Stand In Novel Manner

Grimsby, Ont.—A former art instructor, who owns a refreshment stand on the Niagara highway, near here, has found a use for discarded pop-bottle tops.

After his health gave out and he had to leave Hamilton, where he had a large class of art students, he purchased the booth and proceeded to beautify the place. Using 10,000 bottle caps of various colors, he covered one side of the booth with a rural landscape of trees, farm-houses and a brook running under a bridge. The only paint in the landscape depicted water and mountain peaks. He also paved the floor in front of the main counter with the tops.

LINK SHIP'S TROUBLES WITH ITS CAT'S DEATH

Gales, Heavy Seas Hold Schooner in Grasp—Crew Superstitious

Suva.—A tale of ill-luck following the killing of the ship's cat is told by the crew of the small 95-tons, three-masted schooner-yacht Isobel, which has wandered over half the south seas in trying to sail from Sydney to Suva.

Long overdue, she has at last made port, and her crew of six young sportsmen, skippered by Captain Stewart, are enjoying a well-earned rest.

The Isobel started off from Sydney by striking a southerly gale, which drove her north out of her course. Three days out the main gaff carried away, and ten days out the rudder-head, smashed by a big sea, became useless, and a spare rudderhead carried away.

Calm weather for four days then gave the crew a chance to rig a jury tackle of planks, and with this gear they completed a voyage which took them zigzagging over most of the Tasman Sea.

As a result of the heavy weather the yacht's 65-years-old planking yielded and she leaked so badly that all hands had to work the pumps for 45 minutes in every four hours. As by this time all were on scanty rations, consisting of three ship's biscuits each, the work told heavily on all.

Driven over to Lord Howe Island and then caught in a headwind, the Isobel was forced close to Norfolk Island and drifted by the beach in a dead calm, frantically signalling with flags. No one took any notice, and at last when she had drifted out of sight of land she was held in the grip of a fourteen gale and blown down to New Zealand latitudes.

Asked why there had had so much trouble, one of the men exclaimed "Why, we killed the cat!"

That to a sailor explained everything. The ship's cat sickened early for lack of proper food, so they drowned her and misfortune followed swiftly.

GUNMAN RAIDS VICARAGE

London.—A gunman held up a vicar's 60-year-old housekeeper, ransacked the house and departed with nearly £300.

RITZY CAFES SERVE JUVENILE "HOT" DOGS

Half Size Sausages, in Pairs, Popular in Paree

Paris.—The proletarian hot dog is invading the "ritzy" hotels of Paris, even the Hotel Ritz itself. It is a curtailed hot dog, a puppy in fact, half as big as the ordinary ones, and is served with diminutive buns between 5 and 7 o'clock. Mustard is available, and the eater drinks what he likes.

Hot dogs are not a novelty in France, where they are known as "saucisses de Francfort," but they have never been so popular here as in America. Now, however, they are available in hundreds of cafes. Attractive posters in English, French and German invite the passerby to eat the baby hot dogs at two francs 50 centimes a pair.

JAPANESE-SOVIET WAR INEVITABLE—TROTSKY

Red Army Prepared With Inexhaustible Men and Munitions

Warsaw.—War between Japan and the Soviet republics is inevitable, in the opinion of Leon Trotsky, former Soviet war commissar now in exile, writing in the Illustrovany Codsienny. The organizer of the Red army, however, seems to think that the Soviets are prepared.

Russia, he declares, has under the colors ready for service from the start 3,000,000 infantrymen, 300,000 cavalrymen and 10,000 pieces of artillery. The Russian reserves are practically inexhaustible, and it is estimated that something like 15,000,000 young Russians have received some kind of military training.

The same newspaper quotes General Sikorski of the Polish army to the effect that the Russian army counts 287 regiments of infantry in the active service with 123 regiments of reserve, 100 battalions for garrison service, 78 regiments of cavalry in the active service and 18 in reserves and 1,500 batteries of artillery of all calibres. It further possesses 60 armored trains, 300 tanks and 10 regiments trained in chemical warfare.

TRY RICH GIRL, SIX MEN IN ASSASSINATION ATTEMPT

Bengalis Told They Would Wed 'Goddess' of Death and Terrorism

GOVERNOR SHOT AT

Darjeeling.—Revelations of a love drama behind the attempt to assassinate Sir John Anderson, governor of Bengal, were made at the resumed trial in seven Bengalis accused in the case.

One of them is a girl, Miss Amiya Majumdar, the pretty daughter of rich parents.

On the afternoon of the outrage, the prosecutor stated, she banteringly told those of the seven who had been selected as the actual assailants carefully to brush their hair as they were "about to meet the bride."

This, he said was an allusion to the fact that the man who were actually to fire would that day be wedded to the goddess of death and terrorism.

She accused, he alleged, had first met Miss Majumdar when one of them, Madusudan Banerjee, got himself appointed as private tutor to her under a false name.

He did not confine his tuition to the ordinary subjects, but also undertook her political education, and she readily responded to his teaching.

Banerjee later introduced his "brother Monpranjah into her house; he and the girl fell in love, and an additional link between her and his party was forged.

Three days before the assassination attempt, Miss Majumdar and her lover arrived at a Darjeeling hotel together. In the evening the young man left her to give the arms he had bought in Calcutta to another of the accused.

Two of the alleged conspirators were wounded when they fired at the governor on the race course, which they chose, it was stated, because the guard was less strict there.

DINGHY GOES 3,500 MILES.

Brisbane.—Two Australians, buoyed up with the spirit of adventure, set out by boat to establish a new record—the longest inland boat journey in Australia. And they won, ending up at Mannum, in South Australia, after covering 3,500 miles in a ten-foot dinghy, partly by sail and partly by man power.

WANTS $125,000,000 FOR SECRET FORMULA

Mechanic Says He Can Turn Salt Water Into Petrol

Paris.—A Rouen garage mechanic, Albert Saheurs, who claims to be able to make gasoline out of salt water, wants $125,000,000 for his secret formula. He says it will cost him a cent a gallon to produce.

"I am no business man," he points out, "and I should like to end my life as a man of means."

The transformation of salt water into petrol is accomplished, M. Saheurs claims, by a substance he calls Sahol. The real nature of Sahol is the secret he has to sell.

His research laboratory is surrounded by barbed wire entanglements and two pistols are placed to fire automatically at any intruder.

French experts are investigating.

GIRL SEEKING DEATH HITS WALL WITH CAR

"He Won't Marry Me," She Moans After Crash

Paris.—A beautiful girl tried to kill herself by driving a car at full speed against the wall of the barracks where her lover, an officer of the Spahi regiment, is billeted.

As she was dragged from the wreckage she moaned, "I want to die, and I shall only try to kill myself again. He won't marry me."

The girl, Lisa Lambert, a 22-year-old circus acrobat, fell in love with the officer, but there were difficulties in the way of their marriage.

At the rush hour four police officers saw a small car coming towards them at a furious speed in the street where the barracks is situated.

The driver deliberately turned the car as she reached the barracks, so that it crashed against the wall at full speed, somersaulting three times.

When they raised it they found Lisa Lambert terribly injured about the face and head, and, as they dragged her out, she recovered consciousness sufficiently to state the reason for her action.

Mr. Edwin Wand has resumed his studies at the University of Toronto in the fourth year of the course in Chemical Engineering.

To-day marks the twelfth birthday anniversary of Gloria Lush, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Lush, George street.

Mr. Keith Wightman, son of Mr. and Mrs. K. S. Wightman of Robinson street, who has been in Toronto for the past month taking a special course, has resumed his studies at the University, in the fourth year of the Faculty of Medicine, Trinity College.

Last evening, the members of the Cheerful Workers' Bible Class of St. James United Church, numbering about fifty guests, enjoyed a pleasant social gathering at the home of Mrs. R. SLENDERIZING

It is especially lovely for women above normal weight or any one who needs slenderizing lines. All its points—and there are several—soft scarf neckline knotted in jabot effect, slender sleeves, paneled cut skirt and curved hip seaming, produce a graceful length of line which is most attractive and slimming.

Style No. 3170 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with ⅛ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Be Beautiful

The charming Bette Davis, who was first selected for ingenue roles by a Hollywood magnate because he thought she resembled Connie Bennett, has earned for herself the reputation of sporting the smartest hair styles in the cinema city. Bette does decidedly interesting and original things with her blonde tresses. Variety is the spice of life, according to her. And she firmly believes that there's nothing that contributes more to a change in character than a change in coiffure.

Bette herself is fair enough proof of what a coiffure can do to change a gal. When she first entered the theatrical profession, she was a shy New England lass who never wore make-up. Her hair was a brownish shade, and she wore it very plain. After she'd been in Hollywood for a while, however, Bette changed all that. She made her hair a lovely platinum blonde shade. And she took a keen delight in trying out all the latest of coiffures.

If you've grown tired of the sameness of your appearance (and what woman doesn't at some time or another?) try adopting a new coiffure, and see if it doesn't make you feel like a new woman. You can step out in practically any hair arrangement and still be in style today, you know. The only thing you must remember is that the hair style you select must be suited to your type.

The secret of evolving a becoming hair style lies in playing up your good points and in hiding your defects. If, for example, you have pretty ears, show 'em. But if they resemble the handles of a loving cup, keep them well concealed. The whole trick is merely to hide what isn't pleasing and to reveal what is.

Of course, every woman may not be able to judge impartially of her own good and bad points. And there-fore, if it is possible, it is wise to have a professional's unbiased assistance in experimenting with coiffures. If the old bankroll doesn't permit of a professional's services, however, you can do your own experimenting. I shall, in my next two articles, describe a number of the new fall coiffures that are both youthful and easy to arrange. And if you're tired of your present hair style, try some of the new ones. For one of 'em might be the very making of you!

HAROLD LLOYD IN "THE CAT'S PAW"

Here is Clarence Budington Kelland's entertaining serial from The Saturday Evening Post, come to life. And here Harold Lloyd has a memorable role.

He is not the clowning cut-up in this story, but he is funnier than ever in the role of Ezekiel Cobb, "China's gift to Stockport." There is an artistry about Lloyd's handling of this part that shows just how good an actor he can be.

We see him first as a tiny boy, sitting on the steps of the Christian mission at Cheng-tu, as his father arrrives to take over the work of bringing the Gospel to the Celestial hinterland, and the little son sits musing over the works of the great Chinese philosopher, Ling Po. And it is Ling Po t hat directs the thoughts when he comes to an astonished Stockport as a young man, bringing the politeness and low bows from the waist of the East, to a jazz-mad, slangy American world. And the announcement of his true mission to the West is one of the queerest moments in a hilarious picture.

The Post story is followed out fairly faithfully, with the exception of the lurid episode in Ting Yuan's cellar, when a new method of Oriental punishment is devised to cause the gangsters and racketeers to confess their evil ways. With the help of the great magician, Chang, Ezekiel certainly puts it over in great shape.

The picture is full of types and the best of the lot of character actors have evidently been chosen to represent the various bad men of the story. Seldom has a better cast appeared in a tale of this type, although Una Merkel, as the 'Pet' Pratt of the picture might be considered just a wee bit metallic. The heroine of the story was a wee bit softer-tongued, as we remember it.

As the serious-minded, extremely honest youth of American parentage who arrives from China to become the cats' paw of a bunch of crooked politicians and then, by the magic of a woman's sharp tongue, to transform himself into an avenging municipal power, Harold Lloyd is immense. George Barbier, Nat Pendelton, J. Farrell Macdonald, Alan Sullivan and Grace Bradley are some of those who support him.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

THE BEST CALL.

When players first commenced to use suit-over-suit bidding (each new suit shown by one partner forcing the other partner to again bid) many players made the mistake of thinking that no trumps had been found lacking, and that suit calls should be played whenever possible. As a matter of fact, about 28 per cent. of hands should be played at no trumps, as offering the best chance for game. Another erroneous idea is that no trumps are more difficult to play than trump calls. The reverse is true, as comparatively few players have mastered the art of properly handling trumps as declarer. Either they pull them too late or they fail to make dummy's trumps earn tricks. The hand below offers a good example of picking the best call.

Bidding went: South, 1 spade; West, 2 clubs; North, 2 diamonds; South, 2 hearts; North, 3 diamonds; South, 3 no trumps, as he had two stops to clubs. West doubled, ending bidding.

The opening lead was the 7 of clubs. Had the declarer won the first trick in dummy, he never could have gone game on the hand, as dummy would have been blocked and diamonds never could have been established. Dummy played low. The declarer won the trick with his ace, then he led diamonds. If the adverse cards of that suit were divided 3-3, or in case either the queen or jack fell on the second round, diamonds could be established, and game appeared certain. Dummy won 2 diamond tricks. The queen dropped on the second lead, giving opponents a single stop only. The declarer let go his lowest spade on the second round of diamonds and he discarded his lowest heart on the third round. West discarded his lowest club, asking for a return lead of spades.

When East won the fourth trick he led back his jack of spades. South covered with the king. West's ace and queen won the second and third defensive tricks for the defenders. West took his king of clubs. He hoped to also win a heart trick. Also East might win a spade trick, provided he held the missing 10. West led back his last spade, which South won with his 9.

Dummy was put in the lead with a club, and 3 diamond tricks were run off, giving the declaring side 8 tricks on its game contract. The ninth trick was won with declarer's ace of hearts, giving fulfilment of the doubled contract.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

After a long period when hangings supplanted paintings as wall decorations, the latter are again resuming their former vogue. Of course, pictures were always used, but fashion swung in favor of textile decorations and those who did not have handsome paintings, oil or water colors, choose hangings. Today both are in style with the tendency towards brush work. It is well therefore to know what pictures to have in the different rooms of a house.

* * * * * * *

The position above all for an ancestral or other family portrait in oils is over the mantelpiece of the main room of a home, by whatever name the room is called, drawing room, reception room, living room, etc. Painted portraits belong in the main rooms of a house and in front halls. Oil paintings in general belong on the walls of these places, and the treatment of the walls where they are hung should be such that it makes a fine background. Photographs and enlargements except in rare instances belong in bedrooms.

* * * * * *

Water colors are not so stately although they may be choice and exquisite. They are pictures which, when worthy, do not take second place. They may be hung on the walls of the main rooms, but they also are at home on bedroom walls and those of less important rooms according to the subject and style of painting. It should be remembered that water colors are not so permanent as oils and for this reason should not be hung where the sunlight would fall directly on them, nor the glare be strong. Pick out suitable places rather sheltered from too bright a light, wherever they are hung.

* * * * * *

Paintings on glass belong to past generations, and are admirably well-suited to old fashioned houses or those in such decoration. The walls where they belong should be determined by the style of the pictures. Portraits were often done on glass and these belong in the portrait places. There are quaint Chinese paintings on glass, portraits, landscapes, etc., which are charming in dining rooms. Paintings on glass may be Early American portraits. One such of Geoge Wash-o glass may be early portraits. These glass paintings are notable ornaments of old mirrors, set above the looking glasses in sections especially devoted to them in their gilded frames.

* * * * * * *

Silhouettes are much in evidence today, and while they seldom are the work of a brush but rather of shears, they can be fascinating wall pictures. They fit in correctly with Directoire decoration being featured just now.

WALTER P. ZELLER COMMENTS ON THE OPENING SALES EVENT

Important Values To Mark Store's Initial Appeal To Shoppers.

OUTSTANDING VALUES

Walter P. Zeller, president of Zellers Limited who was in this city several days ago said in an interview: "We consider the opening of our store in Peterborough an event of major importance. Our entire organization has put forth great effort to assemble values of unusual appeal for Saturday's selling, so that our Opening Sale may be of importance to shoppers as well as to ourselves.

"Some of the merchandise that will be advertised for the Opening has been taken from our standard assortments and will be sold at less than our customary moderate prices. Other merchandise has been specially purchased for the Opening Sale, providing values which we believe to be very outstanding.

"We trust these Specials will be received by the Peterborough public in the same spirit in which they are presented, namely, as uncommonly appealing bargains selected to commemorate an unusual occasion."

Mr. Zeller went on to say that, as customers become better acquainted with Zellers, they will find the store consistently measuring up to its slogan of "Retailers to Thrifty Canadian"; and he is of the opinion that the day-in and day-out moderate prices prevailing in the

"In keeping with the almost-universal thrift wave, men and women everywhere demand the most for their money in the choice of personal commodities," Mr. Zeller went on to say. "It is our aim to meet current needs."

During the past two months, Walter P. Zeller has made numerous trips to this city, giving his personal attention to the awarding of contracts for construction work and watching its progress.

DUCE SUPERVISES TRAINING FOR WAR

Recalls Veteran General To Aid Super Military Campaign.

BY JOHN LLOYD
Associated Press Foreign Staff

ROME, Sept. 28.—(AP)—Benito Mussolini, who regards disarmament as "Utopian," drove ahead with characteristic vigor today to make Italy a super-militaristic nation.

Il Duce took personal charge of the program, which will put boys at the age of eight and upward in uniform. A new department created by Mussolini will direct the training of Italians between the ages of eight and 33.

To head this bureau, called the inspectorate of pre and post military training, Mussolini called General Framcesco Grazioli, veteran of campaigns against rebel tribesmen in Libya.

The inspectorate is to coordinate activities of the air, navy and army ministries—all of which are headed by Premier Mussolini.

Official inaugural ceremonies will be held Oct. 29, a day after the 12th anniversary of the Fascist march on Rome. Mussolini will be the principal speaker.

ZELLER EXECUTIVE COMMENDS SPEED OF CONSTRUCTION MEN

Work Of Building Store Completed In Record Time.

Jobs Let To Local Men.

Herbert A. Hills of Zellers Limited to-day expressed his keen appreciation of the splendid work done by local supply houses and construction men in converting the premises at the corner of George and Simcoe streets into a modernly-equipped store ready for opening to the public.

Before contracts were placed for the building of the new store, executives of the Company came to this city for the express purpose of giving the work to local men and to see that building materials were bought here. What this meant to the city in terms of a payroll may be estimated from the fact that as many as fifty-two men were employed in the building of the store at one time.

"Peterborough contractors, construction men and supply houses are to be congratulated on their speed and efficiency," said Mr. Hills when interviewed at the store earlier to-day.

Mr. Hills is vice-president, operating manager and director of Zellers Limited. He was born in London, England, and educated at St. Dunstan's College, London.

HAVELOCK CONTINUATION SCHOOL HAS FIELD DAY

H. Hunter, C. Kennedy Win Boys' Championships — H. Bedford, M. Seabrooke Take Girls' Cups.

New Half-Mile Record.

HAVELOCK, Sept. 28 (Examiner Correspondence). — Under ideal weather conditions, the seventh annual Field Day of Havelock Continuation School was held on the school campus and at the local park grounds Wednesday, and was attended by the largest number of spectators since the inception of inter-form and class competitions here.

Competition was keen throughout the day, and the best of sportsmanship prevailed among the competitors. High jump, hop-step-and-jump, standing and running broad jump, shot-put, discus and javelin throwing, running and endurance races featuring half mile for the girls and three miles for the boys, and pole vault for the boys, were the contests for which the cups and medals were awarded. Five points were given for first place, three for second, and one for third.

The school was divided into four classes, senior and junior girls, senior and junior boys. The girls could compete in as many events as they wished, but the boys were restricted to a choice of seven only.

It is not known if there were any new records hung up, as those of past competitions have been mislaid, or at any rate are not available. It is believed, however, that the half mile race for senior boys, run in 1 min., 45½ seconds constitutes a record for this track. Jerome Voyer was winner in the half mile event in a frantic last second sprint when he passed Bernard Bedford, who made the pace all the way taking the lead early, and keeping ahead all the way until the last five feet. Fred Hill was third.

Harold Hunter won the silver cup in the senior boys' competitions, with 28 points to his credit. Gray Kemp was runner up and wins a silver medal; both these boys have made good in other years' athletic competitions but were forced to do their best this year to hold their own.

Win Girls' Titles

Helen Bedford is winner of the senior girls' championship with 31 points and carries off the cup for the third consecutive year. Her closest competitor was Ruth Hagerman, who won the championship four years ago, defeating Helen by a margin of two points. She was champion of Norwood High School two years ago.

Ruth has 16 points but still can add five to her score if she can win the girls' half mile race, which will probably be run some time this week; her sister, Irene Hagerman, and Viola McGowan stand next to Ruth for the medal and can nose her out for the latter if either should win this event, and Ruth does not get better than third place. However, a first or second will give her the medal.

Competition in the junior girls' events was not so keen, there being fewer entrants. Muriel Seabrook carried off the silver cup with 34 points. Iva Hubbell, who was last year's junior champion is runner-up with 26 points; she will receive a silver medal.

Junior Boys' Champion

Clifford Kennedy, a newcomer to the school is junior boys' champion with 26 points. Howard Harnden is runner-up, with 19 points. Howard's high jump was outstanding; he succeeded in jumping four feet eight inches with great ease, far outclassing his competitors in this event. Howard is only 4' 5" tall.

Following are the events and winners to third place in each class:—

In the inter-form relay races for girls, Fourth Form was first; First Form was second, and Second Form was third. Winners represented by Helen Bedford, Ruth and Irene Hagerman, and Gladys Hunter.

The tug-of-war inter-form competition was won by Second Form, which took all comers for a ride, with the following representatives: Murray Fraser, leader; Tennyson Seeney, anchor, and Stewart Miller, Rae Vincent, Bernard Bedford and Clayton Kennedy assisting.

The bicycle relay was won by Alex Poste's team, with Bernard Bedford, Fred McLaughlin, and Grey Kemp each doing his share to bring home the honors for his team.

The boys' bicycle race was won by Alex. Poste with Stewart Miller in second place and Lyle Lewis, third.

The three-mile race open for all in the Continuation School drew six entrants, and was won by Kenneth Hill, with Lloyd Hill second, and Keith Pollock in third place. This was a very close finish with only a few feet separating the contestants, and was run in 20 minutes, 3 seconds. A special award of a silver cup was offered for this latter event providing there were six entries. Kenneth Hill will receive this cup.

Daughters Of The North Are Disgusted With The Clothing Of Female Visitor

By Edward Green, Central Press Canadian Writer.

WINNIPEG, September 28. — Agnelliak, wife of Ah-ig-iak, and the apex of a far north eternal triangle, gazed in awe at the lady journalist who had arrived with the judicial party, who were to try her husband for the murder of Arnaruak, her cave man lover. This was something new to her and the first white woman she had ever seen.

In reverence Agnelliak regarded the trim clothes of the white woman. Her eyes took in every detail of dress, and her astonishment knew no bounds when she saw the smart little shoes adorning the feet of the lady from the south.

The Eskimo and the white woman were both feminine. Agnelliak was greatly taken with the manner in which the lady journalist's hair was done. Truly she regarded the white race as something akin to gods. They had many wonderful things, and the greatest of these was clothing.

Try Leather by Chewing

Coming closer to the visitor, Agnelliak felt the texture of her skirt. Her bronzed hands crept to the sleeve of the smooth leather windbreaker. Here was something she knew about. Wonderingly she felt the leather and then took it in her teeth and chewed for a moment or two.

Through the interpreter, Agnelliak asked what this garment might be, and what was its purpose. The interpreter informed her that the lady journalist's boss had fitted her out with this in order to keep her warm in that cold north land.

The eyes of the Eskimo woman lighted with laughter. Again she felt the windbreaker, and turned to the interpreter.

"Boss, give to keep warm?" she asked.

"Yes."

"No good here, tell boss give good coat, like this," she added proudly displaying the thick cariboo hide garment she wore.

Husband Jailed.

Later, Agnelliak expressed herself as disgusted with the white man. She said that the white man was smart, but he certainly didn't know how to make leather coats for her part of the world. If he did, why didn't he give one to the charming lady who had come so far to see her and her husband.

Ah-ig-iak is an Eskimo convicted of killing Arnaruak in the lonely tundra country of Adelaide peninsula. He received a sentence of five years hard labor in the Eskimo jail at Aklavik.

Watson Found Guilty Of Slaying Sweetheart.

ESTEVAN, Sask., Sept. 28 (C.P.). —Convicted of murder, James Nelson Watson, 22, to-day awaited sentence.

Speedily completing the case, a jury last night returned a verdict of guilty after two hours' deliberation. Mr. Justice W. E. Knowles adjourned court until to-day, when he will pass sentence.

Watson was convicted of the slaying of Eileen Bailey, 17, at her home near here. Evidence showed he broke into the house in the absence of the girl's parents and knifed her to death. He later surrendered to police. Unrequitted love was suggested as the motive.

KING IS LEAVING TO VISIT EUROPE

Liberal Chieftain And Lapointe Seek First-Hand Knowledge of Conditions.

OTTAWA, Sept. 28 (CP).—On his first trip to Europe in six years, Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King will leave Ottawa this afternoon for Quebec. Accompanied by Hon. Ernest Lapointe, he will sail on Saturday from Quebec on the Empress of Britain.

Mr. King will return to Canada in a month or six weeks. His colleague may spend a shorter time in Europe due to pressure of business.

The visit will be of a private nature. The Liberal leader, though, will look into questions of trade expansion. He hopes to obtain the views of the better informed people in the British Isles and other countries on the question.

Their plans are to go to London direct. From there they will map out their program and expect to spend a goodly portion of their time on the Continent.

"Canadian affairs are increasingly bound up in world affairs and we are anxious to get first-hand information as to conditions in Britain and in Europe," said Mr. King, in announcing the trip. "It is doubtful if there will be another opportunity for some time to come to make such a visit."

Can Book Tickets For Liner's Maiden Trip

Local steamship ticket agents while unable to quote fares on the newly-launched Cunard-White Star liner, "Queen Mary" are nevertheless prepared to make passenger reservations for the vessel's maiden voyage, which it is anticipated will not take place until early in 1936.

"We are not in receipt of any information regarding fares on the 'Queen Mary,' or as to the date of her maiden voyage. Prospective passengers can however obtain accommodation by paying a deposit with instructions for a berth on the liner's first voyage," an official stated.

No applications for passages on the "Queen Mary" have yet been placed locally, it is learned.

BILLY, THE ALLEY CAT, CHANGES SEX MOTHERS BROOD OF SEVEN PUPPIES

By ALVA McCOLL
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—Not satisfied with providing one surprise, Billy, the gray alley cat, has gone and done it again.

Billy was just a scrawny wee puss when it arrived at the home of Mrs. Muriel Davies, Lake Shore Road, and begged for food. Growing in stature, it began to deposit, apparently in gratitude, a goodly array of dead mice and rats on the doorstep each morning—and so became a household fixture. And got the name Billy, for apparently good and sufficient reasons.

Great was the household surprise therefore when Billy gave birth to three kittens.

Billy's constant playmate was a Boston terrier, bred from a line of blue-blooded ancestors, with the registered name of Davies' June Bud. One day June Bud was in difficulties and Billy forsook her kittens to murmur sympathetic cries, and so June Bud gave birth to seven puppies, but she was too ill to care for them and Billy arising to the occasion took each puppy in turn, bathed and cleaned it, and snuggled it in with her family. The kittens didn't mind sharing their dinner and by nightfall all were supremely content.

June Bud, noting that her puppies were well taken care of, curled up in the corner and died.

Billy feels the responsibility keenly, and when Champion Horning's Honey Boy, proud sire of the pups, fresh from his victory as best of breed at a local dog show, tried to take a peek at his offspring he was promptly chased back to his kennel. When puppies and kittens are together Billy is almost hidden from sight, and at the age of a few weeks all are thriving. A foster mother was procured to assist in raising the family, but Billy has added arithmetic to her accomplishment, and if one puppy is moved, raises strenuous objections.

A few drops of goat milk from an eye dropper administered by Mrs. Davies relieved the initial strain

OWEN SOUND MAN SHOT IN AFFRAY

Police Hunt Gun Wielder After Victim Sent to Hospital.

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Sept. 28.—(C.P.).—Lloyd Campbell, of Owen Sound and Toronto, was in hospital here to-day with about 100 shotgun pellets in his leg, allegedly shot during an affray last night at the home of Roy Pearce, Campbell's brother-in-law.

Police say Campbell went to the Pearce house last night to straighten out a difficulty between Pearce and Douglass. Police allege Douglass opened the door and fired the gun.

Campbell was taken to hospital and police began a search for Douglass that continued to-day.

French Women Are In Social Service

MONTREAL, Sept. 27 (C.P.).—Women in France, like their sisters here, work diligently in the field of social service, and believe the ballot is the most effective remedy for social ills, stated Madame Marielle Jean Brunhes de la Marre in an address given under auspices of the League for Women's Rights.

The women of France who are engaged in the struggle to obtain the vote want it, declared Mme. de la Marre, not for any pleasure there may be in putting a bit of paper in a box twice every four years, but as a means of obtaining reform in the laws, such as those concerning the property possessed by married women, to establish a mother's legal right to her own children, and for the improvement of working conditions.

To those who argue that the enfranchisement of women will destroy the home, Mme. de la Marre replied that surely nothing so drastic could result from going out twice every four years to cast a vote. In fact, the home has benefited in countries where the women have the ballot, she said.

Madame de la Marre, who is general secretary of L'Union Four le Vote des Femmes, visited Canada for the Jacques Cartier celebrations.

Foresters Hear High Chief Ranger

A large gathering of Independent Foresters enjoyed the social evening, which commenced the activities for Fall in W.O.W. Hall last evening.

Arrangements were in the capable hands of Bro. C. Batchelor, C.R.; Bro. O. E. Grose, F.S.; Bro. A. F. Inch, Treasurer, and Bro. E. Border, S.W..

Progressive euchre was a great success; the prizes were won by Comp. Mrs. Ellison of Ottawa, Comp. Mrs. Peters of Havelock; Bro. E. Border, and Bro. A. F. Inch.

Inspiring addresses were delivered by Bro. C. T. Trowbridge of Kingston, and Pro. Manager Bro. Oliver E. Ellison, after which refreshments were served. All present are looking forward to next monthly meeting on October 11, when they hope to welcome many more old friends and members.

LONDON (C.P.).—A gift of $50,000 has been made by Lord Woolavington to the London Hospital for a new pay-beds department for patients of moderate means.

PARTRIDGE CRASHES WINDOW

Frightened in some unexplained manner, a partridge smashed a large glass window at the Normal School this morning, and, after a short period when it appeared to revive, died at noon.

The bird forced its way through the classroom window, scattering the glass half way across the room, and was picked up by one of the girl students. Dr. A. J. Madill endeavoured to help it, but the frightened creature died shortly from the force of the concussion.

Great Welsh Mine Walkout Averted

LONDON, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The Government believed to-day a threatened walkout of 130,000 coal miners in South Wales, set for next Monday, had been averted.

Representatives of the workers and their employees reached an agreement at a conference here called by Ernest Brown, Minister of Mines.

Miners' delegates left immediately for Wales to submit the agreement to their labor organizations and it also is subject to the approval of owners' groups. Terms were not disclosed.

Informed sources predicted recommendations of the negotiators would be approved and the strike called off.

REMARKABLE JOURNEY BY HUDSON BAY INDIAN

WINNIPEG, —(C P)— Governor Ashley Cooper of the Hudson's Bay company in his visit here from the north said: "One of the most interesting figures on board our ship was an Indian interpreter from the post at Fort Mackenzie, Labrador. In the early part of the year he had walked from there to Seven Islands on the St. Lawrence River, 700 miles by the route he took. This he accomplished in 70 days in the depth of winter, accompanied by his wife and two small children. It was a very remarkable journey, though he seemed to regard it as of no account."

RAMSEY, Isle of Man (C.P.).—An ancient monument built probably 4,000 years ago, has been brought to light at Maughold, near Ramsey, by archaeologists.

HARVEST HOME AT ST. LUKE'S

Rev. Emmett of Port Hope Special Preacher for the Occasion.

SPECIAL MUSIC.

St. Luke's Church celebrated their annual Harvest Thanksgiving Service on Thursday evening, September 27. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. This work was carried out by the Chancel Guild, under the direction of Miss Eva Patterson and with the assistance of the Men's Club and the A.Y.P.A.

The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. G. J. Bousfield. The special speaker, Rev. Emmett of Port Hope, gave a splendid address, taking for his text part of the 145th Psalm "All Thy works praise Thee O God—they show the glory of Thy Kingdom and talk of Thy power; that Thy power and Thy glory the mightiness of Thy Kingdom might be known unto men." Rev. Emmett referred to the gifts of the harvest as God's second Bible, bringing a special message from the Great Giver, of His goodness to mankind.

The choir, under the leadership of the organist, Miss M. Flowers, presented special music including the anthem "He Watereth The Hills" by 'Simper'. Mr. C. A. Hope sang the bass solo and Miss Jessie Patterson, guest soloist, sang the soprano solo, "The Lord God is a Sun and Shield."

The services will be carried over on Sunday. The speaker at the morning service will be the Rev. Dr. McKenzie, of Grove School, Lakefield.

Bruins to Give Try To Toronto Player

TORONTO, September 28. — (C. P.) — Art Whittaker, one of the amateur hockey's leading goal-scoring defencemen, revealed to-day he will try out with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. Whittaker will report at the Bruin's fall training camp.

The dashing defenseman played a stellar game for Toronto's seniors of the Ontario Hockey Association last season and was a standout with British Consols of the Mercantile League.

The burly six-foot rearguard plays an aggressive type of hockey, is a strong defenseman and a hard, sharp-shooting marksman when on the attack. He is six feet tall, weighs 175 pounds, and is the style of player who would fit in well with any re-building plans of the Bruin management.

SCOTT'S SCRAPBOOK - - By R. J. Scott

ISN'T IT strange how some men insist on guarding against all fire hazards in the kitchen and living room . . . yet they will allow waste paper, oily rags and scrap wood to pile up in the cellar?

These men know they should clean up this rubbish . . . . and they also know the value of having sufficient sound fire insurance, too.

Can Book Tickets For Liner's Maiden Trip

Local steamship ticket agents while unable to quote fares on the newly-launched Cunard - White Star liner, "Queen Mary" are nevertheless prepared to make passenger reservations for the vessel's maiden voyage, which it is anticipated will not take place until early in 1936.

"We are not in receipt of any information regarding fares on the 'Queen Mary,' or as to the date of her maiden voyage. Prospective passengers can however obtain accommodation by paying a deposit with instructions for a berth on the liner's first voyage," an official stated.

No applications for passages on the "Queen Mary" have yet been placed locally, it is learned.

BILLY, THE ALLEY CAT, CHANGES SEX MOTHERS BROOD OF SEVEN PUPPIES

By ALVA McCOLL
Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

TORONTO, Sept. 28.—Not satisfied with providing one surprise, Billy, the gray alley cat, has gone and done it again.

Billy was just a scrawny wee puss when it arrived at the home of Mrs. Muriel Davies, Lake Shore Road, and begged for food. Growing in stature, it began to deposit, apparently in gratitude, a goodly array of dead mice and rats on the doorstep each morning—and so became a household fixture. And got the name Billy, for apparently good and sufficient reasons.

Great was the household surprise therefore when Billy gave birth to three kittens.

Billy's constant playmate was a Boston terrier, bred from a line of blue-blooded ancestors, with the registered name of Davies' June Bud. One day June Bud was in difficulties and Billy forsook her kittens to murmur sympathetic cries, and so June Bud gave birth to seven puppies, but she was too ill to care for them and Billy arising to the occasion took each puppy in turn, bathed and cleaned it, and snuggled it in with her family. The kittens didn't mind sharing their dinner and by nightfall all were supremely content.

June Bud, noting that her puppies were well taken care of, curled up in the corner and died.

Billy feels the responsibility keenly, and when Champion Horning's Honey Boy, proud sire of the pups, fresh from his victory as best of breed at a local dog show, tried to take a peek at his offspring he was promptly chased back to his kennel. When puppies and kittens are together Billy is almost hidden from sight, and at the age of a few weeks all are thriving. A foster mother was procured to assist in raising the family, but Billy has added arithmetic to her accomplishment, and if one puppy is moved, raises strenuous objections.

OWEN SOUND MAN SHOT IN AFFRAY

OWEN SOUND, Ont., Sept. 28.—(C.P.)—Lloyd Campbell, of Owen Sound and Toronto, was in hospital here to-day with about 100 shotgun pellets in his leg, allegedly shot during an affray last night at the home of Roy Pearce, Campbell's brother-in-law.

Police say Campbell went to the Pearce house last night to straighten out a difficulty between Pearce and Douglass. Police allege Douglass opened the door and fired the gun.

Campbell was taken to hospital and police began a search for Douglass that continued to-day.

French Women Are In Social Service

MONTREAL, Sept. 27 (C.P.).—Women in France, like their sisters here, work diligently in the field of social service, and believe the ballot is the most effective remedy for social ills, stated Madame Marielle Jean Brunhes de la Marre in an address given under auspices of the League for Women's Rights.

The women of France who are engaged in the struggle to obtain the vote want it, declared Mme. de la Marre, not for any pleasure there may be in putting a bit of paper in a box twice every four years, but as a means of obtaining reform in the laws, such as those concerning the property possessed by married women, to establish a mother's legal right to her own children, and for the improvement of working conditions.

To those who argue that the enfranchisement of women will destroy the home, Mme. de la Marre replied that surely nothing so drastic could result from going out twice every four years to cast a vote. In fact, the home has benefited in countries where the women have the ballot, she said.

Madame de la Marre, who is general secretary of L'Union Four le Vote des Femmes, visited Canada for the Jacques Cartier celebrations.

Foresters Hear High Chief Ranger

A large gathering of Independent Foresters enjoyed the social evening, which commenced the activities for Fall in W.O.W. Hall last evening.

Arrangements were in the capable hands of Bro. C. Batchelor, C.R.; Bro. O. E. Grose, F.S.; Bro. A. F. Inch, Treasurer, and Bro. E. Border, S.W..

Progressive euchre was a great success; the prizes were won by Comp. Mrs. Ellison of Ottawa, Comp. Mrs. Peters of Havelock; Bro. E. Border, and Bro. A. F. Inch.

Inspiring addresses were delivered by Bro. C. T. Trowbridge of Kingston, and Pro. Manager Bro. Oliver E. Ellison, after which refreshments were served. All present are looking forward to next monthly meeting on October 11, when they hope to welcome many more old friends and members.

LONDON (C.P.).—A gift of $50,000 has been made by Lord Woolavington to the London Hospital for a new pay-beds department for patients of moderate means.

PARTRIDGE CRASHES WINDOW

Frightened in some unexplained manner, a partridge smashed a large glass window at the Normal School this morning, and, after a short period when it appeared to revive, died at noon.

The bird forced its way through the classroom window, scattering the glass half way across the room, and was picked up by one of the girl students. Dr. A. J. Madill endeavoured to help it, but the frightened creature died shortly from the force of the concussion.

Great Welsh Mine Walkout Averted

LONDON, Sept. 28 (A.P.).—The Government believed to-day a threatened walkout of 130,000 coal miners in South Wales, set for next Monday, had been averted.

Representatives of the workers and their employees reached an agreement at a conference here called by Ernest Brown, Minister of Mines.

Miners' delegates left immediately for Wales to submit the agreement to their labor organizations and it also is subject to the approval of owners' groups. Terms were not disclosed.

Informed sources predicted recommendations of the negotiators would be approved and the strike called off.

REMARKABLE JOURNEY BY HUDSON BAY INDIAN

WINNIPEG, —(C P)— Governor Ashley Cooper of the Hudson's Bay company in his visit here from the north said: "One of the most interesting figures on board our ship was an Indian interpreter from the post at Fort Mackenzie, Labrador. In the early part of the year he had walked from there to Seven Islands on the St. Lawrence River, 700 miles by the route he took. This he accomplished in 70 days in the depth of winter, accompanied by his wife and two small children. It was a very remarkable journey, though he seemed to regard it as of no account."

HARVEST HOME AT ST. LUKE'S

Rev. Emmett of Port Hope Special Preacher for the Occasion.

SPECIAL MUSIC.

St. Luke's Church celebrated their annual Harvest Thanksgiving Service on Thursday evening, September 27. The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion. This work was carried out by the Chancel Guild, under the direction of Miss Eva Patterson and with the assistance of the Men's Club and the A.Y.P.A.

The service was conducted by the rector, Rev. G. J. Bousfield. The special speaker, Rev. Emmett of Port Hope, gave a splendid address, taking for his text part of the 145th Psalm "All Thy works praise Thee O God—they show the glory of Thy Kingdom and talk of Thy power; that Thy power and Thy glory the mightiness of Thy Kingdom might be known unto men." Rev. Emmett referred to the gifts of the harvest as God's second Bible, bringing a special message from the Great Giver, of His goodness to mankind.

The choir, under the leadership of the organist, Miss M. Flowers, presented special music including the anthem "He watereth The Hills" by 'Simper'. Mr. C. A. Hope sang the bass solo and Miss Jessie Pattison, guest soloist, sang the soprano solo, "The Lord God is a Sun and Shield."

The services will be carried over on Sunday. The speaker at the morning service will be the Rev. Dr. McKenzie, of Grove School, Lakefield.

Bruins to Give Try To Toronto Player

TORONTO, September 28. — (C. P.) — Art Whittaker, one of the amateur hockey's leading goal-scoring defencemen, revealed to-day he will try out with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League. Whittaker will report at the Bruin's fall training camp.

The dashing defenseman played a stellar game for Toronto's seniors of the Ontario Hockey Association last season and was a standout with British Consols of the Mercantile League.

The burly six-foot rearguard plays an aggressive type of hockey, is a strong defenseman and a hard, sharp-shooting marksman when on the attack. He is six feet tall, weighs 175 pounds, and is the style of player who would fit in well with any re-building plans of the Bruin management.

ISN'T IT strange how some men insist on guarding against all fire hazards in the kitchen and living room . . . yet they will allow waste paper, oily rags and scrap wood to pile up in the cellar?

These men know they should clean up this rubbish . . . . and they also know the value of having sufficient sound fire insurance, too.

TORONTO POLICE EXPECT ARREST VERY SHORTLY

ANOTHER NOTE TO NEWTON

Gloats Over Supposed Death of Attorney's Sons From Poison Candy.

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—(CP) — Toronto police today were reported to have virtually identified 'Four XXXX Spike,' writer of threatening letters to Acting" Crown Attorney Norman F. Newton of London and a Toronto weekly publication columnist.

An arrest was said to be expected within a few hours after identification is complete.

Another Note

LONDON, Ont., Sept. 29.—(CP)—Gloating over the supposition that his two children must have died in agony by now, another note was delivered to Acting Crown Attorney Norman Newton, at the city police station last night.

"This will show you we mean business," the note, signed "Spike" said in reference to the "potsoned" candy received through the mails.

It went on to warn the worst was coming to Mr. Newton himself, if he did not lay off the blackmail prosecutions.

Mr. Newton merely glanced through the note and because he was busily engaged in the Turnbull hearing, enclose it in an envelope and re-directed it at once to Gen. Williams, Commissioner of Provincial Police.

CONVICTS SHOOT WAY TO LIBERTY

Gangsters Doomed to Hang Wound Three Officials in Getaway.

SEIZE MAIL TRUCK.

RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 29 (AP) —Two convicted gangsters, Walter Legenza and Robert Mais, sentenced to die for murder, shot their way out of the Richmond Jail to-day, wounding three officers, and commandeering a mail truck and automobile in their escape with State and City police in pursuit.

Mais and Legenza shot their way to freedom when they were brought from their cell into the corridor leading to a reception room where their attorney was wait waiting to confer with them in regard to plans for appealing their cases to the State Supreme Court.

When they were led into the corridor, the two gangsters drew pistols, ordered the officers escorting them to put up their hands, and made a break through the jail entrance, shooting as they went.

The two gangsters were convicted for participation in the hold-up murder of E. M. Huband, driver of a Federal Reserve Bank truck, last March. Huband was shot to death, and the gang made away with the truck's cargo of cancelled cheques.

Legenza was to die in the electric chair in October, and Mais was to follow him early in November.

CANADIANS ARE URGED TO TAKE ADVANTAGE OF EMPIRE PACTS

PROMINENT ECONOMIST.

Urging Canadians to grasp the opportunities for trade which have been offered by the other sections of the British Empire, Mackenzie Williams, widely-known Canadian economist, painted an optimistic picture of the immediate future for Canada in an address to a banquet of Kiwanians and Rotarians last evening.

'One bright feature about depressions is that any reasonable upturn in conditions serves to relieve the situation and put the country's business back on a profitable basis since costs are invariably pared to the minimum," Mr. Williams said. 'In Canada the required improvement came during the past Spring and Summer. Canadians are now breathing more easily."

Speaking of Canada's position at the present time with that of the United States, he presented comparative recovery percentages during the period from January 1933 to August, this year in several fields. General industrial production increased 55.2 percent in Canada as compared with 30.3 percent in the United States, electric power production, 26.3 percent as compared with 19 percent; steel production, 470 percent as compared with 247.5 percent; employment, 37.8 percent as compared with 26.8 percent construction, 288 percent as compared with 121 percent, and export trade, 190 percent as compared with 62 percent.

Canada is essentially a producing country," he said in reference to Empire trade. "The general world markets for our goods is closing so it is imperative that we

Spark From Thresher Fires Large Barn

DOWNEYVILLE, Sept. 29. (Examiner Correspondence).—A serious financial loss was suffered today by Ambrose Herlihey when his large barn on the second line of Emily township, two miles north of the Maple Leaf cheese factory, was destroyed by fire, together with the full season's crops.

The threshing mill of Bernard English, of Bobcaygeon, was also destroyed by the blaze. The mill was not insured, but there was some small insurance on the barn.

The fire started when a spark from the blower ignited the straw. The whole barn was a mass of flames within a minute and the threshing crew were powerless to extinguish it. Mr. Herlihey was badly burned about the hands in trying vainly to remove the threshing mill.

Horses in the barn were successfully removed from danger.

NINE ARE KILLED AS TWO ENGLISH TRAINS COLLIDE

Bodies of Four Women, Five Men Removed From Wreckage.

SCORES INJURED.

WARRINGTON, England, September 29 (A.P.). — The bodies of four women and five men were removed early to-day from the tangled wreckage of two trains which collided at a junction near here.

A score of injured were removed to various hospitals, according to an official statement. Because the dead and injured were removed to several places, it was impossible to verify at once reports which placed the casualties at a higher figure.

The wreck occurred last night when a fast London express crashed into the rear of a slow local train. The first four cars of the express were derailed and two were crushed. Rear cars of the local also were crushed and many passengers were buried in the wreckage.

Residents of the neighboring countryside heard the terrific impact and were directed to the scene by a shower of sparks from the express locomotive. Dwellers in the mining district town congested the roads on their way to the scene.

Hundreds of volunteers aided in removing the injured. Two of the mutilated victims lived only until they reached hospitals.

An incomplete list of the victims indicated most of them were Lancashire people returning from visits to London.

COLUMBUS, O., Sept. 29 (AP)—Two men were killed and four others were feared to have died today in a cave-in of an intercepting sewer in which 14 men were working.

The bodies of George Smith, negro, and Aaron Frazier were recovered an hour after the cave-in by rescuers who worked frantically in an effort to reach the men, who were trapped 35 feet underground and 85 feet from the entrance of the sewer tunnel.

Eight of the workers escaped without injury.

TORONTO.—Unofficial word came to-day from behind closed doors of a conference between milk producers in the Toronto district and city distributors that an agreement had been reached under which distributors would pay $2.30 per hundred weight for milk, in place of the price of $1.81 now paid.

It was said such a price change to the producers would result in an increase in price to the consumer of one cent a quart.

COL. GEO. A. DREW TO BE DISMISSED SAYS HEPBURN

Accuses Commissioner of Discourtesy in Publishing Letter Before He Received It.

$10,000 SUPERNUMERARY.

Roebuck Blames Official's Outburst to Fact He Was Asked to Resign.

TORONTO, Sept. 29. (CP). — Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn announced to-day that Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Securities Commissioner, will be dismissed and his position abolished.

He accused Col. Drew of discourtesy in publishing a letter before he had received it and called him a $10,000-year superumerary" without whom the Government could "get along." He said Col. Drew's work would be done by the Attorney-General's department.

The Premier replied to a statement last night by the Colonel accusing Attorney-General Roebuck of discourtesy and claiming letters were missing from his own fyles by saying:

"Col Drew is the man who complains of discourtesy on the part of the Attorney-General, but he has not himself been courteous enough to permit the Prime Minister of the province to receive his letter of protest, much less read it, before he makes it public by giving it to the press.

Roebuck Explains

TORONTO, Sept. 29 (C.P.) — "The reason behind Col. George A. Drew's outburst against me is the fact that ten days ago I asked him for his resignation," Attorney-General Arthur W. Roebuck declared to-day in answering charges of Col. Drew, Ontario's Securities Act Commissioner that he had been subjected to snubs and lack of co-operation.

Col. Drew's resignation has not been received as yet, the Attorney-General said.

Mr. Roebuck stated his request for the Commissioner's resignation was based on the alleged failure of the Commissoiner to meet "the unsatisfactory conditions existing in the sale of securities to-day."

"Mr. Drew is, as he himself said, an independent Commissioner, solely responsible for the carrying out of the duties entrusted to him and not a branch of my department. He is not subject to my control in matters of detail," the Attorney General said.

Mr. Roebuck said "My only recourse in the public interests was to replace him. This outburst was aside from the point as the issue is inefficiency of his department and his failure to vacate his post when requested."

The Attorney-General promised a complete statement on the Drew charges later in the day.

PEASANTS FIGHT FLOUR SEIZURE

Nazi Arrest Many — Bar All From Keeping Share of Crops.

AMSTERDAM, Holland, Sept. 29 (CP-Havas). — Serious disorders among the peasants in German Schleswig were reported here today. The peasants refused to deliver rye and flour to the authorities for distribution in other parts of the Reich, according to the reports.

The Nazi Secret Police and the special Black Guards were said to have suppressed the revolt and made numerous raids and arrests including several Nazi leaders in Flensburg.

The Schleswig district was to deliver 87,000 tons of rye and 70,000 tons of flour, which order met with resistance especially on the part of the peasants west of Flensburg. They not only refused to deliver the products but resisted by force.

The peasant will be tried on a charge of high treason and will not be permitted to retain the customary five per cent of their crops or bake their own bread.

J. A. O'BRIEN IS FOUND GUILTY GETS 18 MONTHS

Second Charge of Obtaining Automobile Under False Pretences Withdrawn.

CHARACTER EVIDENCE.

Indeterminate Term of Two Years Less One Day Included in Sentence.

Sentence of eighteen months determinate and two years less one day indeterminate in the Ontario Reformatory at Guelph was imposed late yesterday afternoon on Joseph A. O'Brien by Judge A. T. Boles of Simcoe who found the young barrister guilty of the charge of having fraudulently converted to his own use $4,565.62 of the funds of the estate of the late Mrs. Sarah Menzies.

His Honour said that he took into account the fact that Mr. O'Brien had been held in custody in the county jail since August 8, and for that reason reduced the term, which might have been imprisonment in the penitentiary, to a shorter period than would have been warranted if the accused had not already spent nearly two months in legal confinement.

The term in the reformatory, beginning yesterday, is definitely for eighteen months, with the possibility that Mr. O'Brien may be liberated at any time during the remaining six months less one day of the additional indefinite period.

With the conclusion of the Crown's case yesterday afternoon, T. J. Carley, counsel for the accused, announced that he would not call any witnesses. Subsequently character evidence was given in Mr. O'Brien's behalf.

A significant remark by Judge Boles, prior to hearing argument of counsel, to the effect that he might not wish to hear any summation by the special Crown Prosecutor, G. A. Urquhart, K.C., of Toronto, loomed as a discouraging setback to Mr. Carley before he began his plea in behalf of Mr. O'Brien. However, he apparently threw off any inhibiting effect the comment might have produced, and proceeded with his address.

Incidentally Judge Boles remarked that he had come to Peterborough for this trial at the request

Lad 13 And Sister 11 Nabbed For Robbery

CHATHAM, Ont., Sept. 29 (CP) —Using his 11-year-old sister as a lookout, a 13-year-old juvenile offender of this city was able to secure $17 from the gasoline station owned by Ed. Salesbury.

In court this morning the lad told how he had robbed the station and had hidden the money in the ground at the rear of the Jahnke and Hinnegan funeral home, digging it up and using it as he needed it for spending money.

Upon the second attempt at similar robbery the little girl was caught, and this led to the arrest of her brother. There are nine children in the family, and the magistrate decided to send the youthful offender to Victoria Home.

OLD AGREEMENT SIGNED IN 1933 ALSO EXTENDED

Canoes and Wheat on Long List Getting French Minimum Tariff.

SIGNED BY BENNETT.

Canada Allows Important Concessions on Wines and Liqueurs.

By George Hambleton (Canadian Press Staff Writer).

PARIS, Sept. 29 (C.P. Cable). — After hectic moments of last-minute difficulties, a commercial agreement between Canada and France was signed to-day It extends the Franco-Canadian treat treaty of May, 1933, with important concessions on both sides.

Canada now gets the following:

The French minimum tariff on wheat, oats, barley, rye, fresh lobsters (in part), lead, whiskey, zinc, footwear, and a number of timber and chemical products. Footwear covers footwear of all kinds, with uppers of rubber or other material. Timber products include insulating board, planed or grooved wood, veneer sheets and canoes.

Substantial Quotas Given

Further, France undertakes to grant substantial quotas on certain Canadian products for which Canada did not previously have adequate quotas. These include frozen salmon, preserved lobster, fresh apples and pears, cheese, preserved tomatoes, common woods, agricultural machinery, veneers, passenger automobiles, ice-skates, lead, insulating board, patent leather, calf-skins.

Temporary quotas are also granted on porcelain insulators, electric heating apparatus and vacuum cleaners.

In addition France withdraws the special excise tax of four percent on semi-manufactured products, and six percent on manufactured products, hitherto applicable on goods coming from Canada.

France undertakes to withdraw the depreciated currency surtax of 11 percent imposed on Canadian products since 1913.

What Canada Gives

The Canadian concessions to France follow:

Ten percent is taken off the Canadian intermediate tariff on Cognacs, Armagnacs; one third off the intermediate tariff on certain alcoholic perfumes and perfumed spirits; 20 percent off the intermediate tariff on champagne and sparkling wines; 63 percent off the intermediate tariff on wines other than sparkling, containing not more than 26 percent proof spirits.

Reduction of the duty on cigarette papers.

According to information in French circles, France also gets 15 per cent off the Canadian intermediate tariff on French cheese like Rocquefort, Camembert and Dauvergne; 25 per cent off the intermediate tariff on mushrooms; and 10 per cent off the intermediate tariff on chestnuts. The reduction of the duty on cigarette papers amounts to 10 per cent of the intermediate tariff.

The foregoing are the chief concessions on both sides.

Full details of the treaty supplement will not be available until any legislation that is necessary is submitted to the Dominion Parliament.

Chicago Couple Nabbed in Kidnap Case

MAN RESEMBLES MYSTERY "JOHN" RANSOM ENVOY

Arrest Follows Tip Long Hunted Suspect Was In Rooming House.

LONG QUESTIONING.

Experts Now Believe Lindbergh Baby Killed When Trail Grew Too Hot.

BY RONALD DIXON

NEW YORK, Sept. 29. — (AP) — Chicago police held for questioning today a man who they said bore a "very remarkable" resemblance to "John," mysterious recipient of the Lindbergh kidnapping ransom.

James Bowman, 28, was taken into custody last night. He denied any connection with the Lindbergh case, but Walter Storms, deputy chief of detectives, said the questioning would continue.

Bowman's companion also was held by raiders who acted on a tip that the internationally hunted John would be found in a rooming house. She identified herself as Goldie Ferris, the suspect's wife.

John was the man who took $50,000 from Dr. J. F. Condon, Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh's emissary, for the safe return of 20-month-old Charles, Jr. The baby already had been slain.

Bruno Richard Hauptmann, in whose garage $14,590 of the new blood money was found, began his second week-end in a New York jail under ceaseless watch. The discovery yesterday that he had broken and hidden a pewter spoon, one piece of which was sharp enough to inflict serious injury, led to the vigil.

Paper Plates, Spoons

He is eating now with paper plates and spoons, but officials at the Bronx County jail are taking no chance of a hangman's noose being fashioned from a torn blanket, necktie or belt, all have been confiscated.

Attorney General David T. Wilentz of New Jersey, where the baby was kidnapped and killed in 1932, came to New York to confer with Samuel J. Foley, District Attorney of Bronx County, where Hauptmann has been indicted for extortion of the ransom.

Foley, Generalissimo of Federal, New Jersey and New York officers, expects Wilentz to remain several days. They hope the army of investigators will unearth enough evidence to convict Hauptmann of

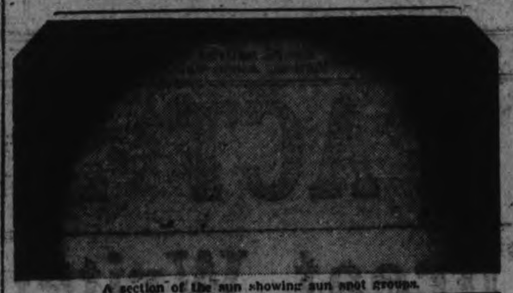
CHINESE FIRST TO NOTE RECORD SUN SPOT ACTIVITY



A section of the sun showing sun spot groups.

By RICHARD BAYLIS
Central Press Canadian Science Editor

The western world has known little of sun spot activity until recent years. In fact Europeans, who first became cognisant of these unusual markings on the sun's surface early in the seventeeth century, did not begin to make a systematic study of these phenomena until about 100 years ago.

Chinese Records

So we must turn toward the Orient for the first records of sun spot observation. The Chinese, first in many things, have been observing the spots for nearly 1,500 years and their ancient records show that some 95 instances of sun spot activity were noted by their men of science from the year 188 A.D. to the seventeenth century when Europeans opened their eyes.

In general a sun spot is fairly round in appearance with a dark centre, a black region, which is called the umbra, in the centre. Around this centre is a lighter region. This is called the penumbra and is marked by wavy lines flowing inward. Outside the spot the surface of the sun seems brighter than usual and heaped up. Sometimes this brighter material flows over and into the spot. Patches of this bright material are called faculae.

Travel in Groups

These spots usually travel in groups across the sun, sometimes remaining close together, sometimes moving away from each other at tremendous rates.

Science believes that the origin of the spot lies in some force far below the surface of the sun, so far below and distributed so widely that it acts on both hemispheres at about the same times, for spots in both northern and southern hemispheres appear almost simultaneously. The sun spot activity reaches a maximum at regular periods of about 11½ years.

The spots are believed to be the direct cause of magnetic storms on the earth and also the activity of the aurora borealis.

On the Borderland of Reason

(By DEAN O'SULLIVAN)

While the different grades of being, inanimate matter, plant, animal and human life, are essentially different, yet there is a gradual blending of one into the other. There are crystal formations in matter that suggest vegetative life; the sensitive plant is so called because it seems possessed of a quality akin to feeling; the parrot makes earnest attempts at imitating human speech, while the dog performs acts that win for it from many the appelation "intelligent animal." In like manner it is impossible to draw a straight line of demarcation between the sensory and the rational powers in men.

Accompanying the sensuous faculties, which have been discussed, are the emotions, love, hate, wonder, joy, sorrow and such like. These are common to animals and men; but in the case of man there is an influx of the intelligence which guides and ennobles them. The dog hates a cat, and whenever possible it puts its hate into execution. A man may dislike another man, but his intelligence will stay the exercise of the passion. The expressions "kind hearted," "hard hearted," and "sad at heart," are evidences of a popular opinion that the heart is the seat of the emotions. On the contrary, it is the nerve centres, which, however, react on the heart, causing a slackening or a quickening of its action. All these emotions, which vary in duration and intensity, may be classified under the head of pleasurable or painful feelings. According to Aristotle, whose theory of feeling is accepted by Christian philosophers, pleasure is an accompaniment of the spontaneous and healthy activity of our faculties; and pain is the result of either their restraint or excessive exercise.

All writers on this subject class among the internal sensuous faculties the sensitive appetite, which apprehends things either good for or injurious to one's physical well-being. As I am not writing a technical treatise, I do not purpose making any extended reference to this faculty which in man is so closely allied to the rational appetite or the will that it is difficult to distinguish the operations of one from the other. I merely mention it to introduce the subject of instinct, which is the name assigned to it by some authors.

Instinct is quite clearly defined in animals, but not so in man, at least after he has attained to the use of reason. The infant instinctively seeks its mother's breast, and the little tot shows the material instinct by hugging her doll. Instinct would prompt a man to eat when he is hungry, to drink when he is thirsty, to sleep when he is tired, to seek pleasure and avoid pain, but the intelligence and the will may intervene to prohibit any of these acts. It is not so with animals, in whom instinct takes the place of reason. Instinct may be defined as an innate gift bestowed by God upon animals that they might attain the end for which they were created, a natural aptitude which guides them in the unreflecting performance of complex acts useful for the preservation of the individual or of the species. It is instinct that teaches the spider to spin its web, the bee to make the honey comb and the bird to build her nest; and the spider, the bee and the bird have wrought in the same way since the days of Horace. Did space permit, much of interest might be written on this subject. My purpose, however, is to emphasize the one point, that no animal gives proof of any exercise of intelligence. Each species acts in a uniform manner and never invents any new means of self-preservation or of self-protection.

There are various theories anent the origin of instinct in animals. Some claim that ages ago animals learned by experience how to perform certain acts and that this knowledge is transmitted by heredity. For the proof of such a theory there is absolutely no evidence. Others attribute it to lapsed intelligence; that is, that it is a residue of intelligence once possessed by animals. This is disproved—if it were necessary to disprove such an absurd proposition—by the fact that the lowest grades of animal life are capable of performing the most complex acts. In passing, let me remark that, however far-fetched this latter theory may seem, we are witnessing a phenomenon in the world to-day that would seem to give colour to it. The darkening and weakening of the intelligence of the multitude, owing to the lack of supernatural faith, has developed the herd instinct. Some fad or fashion or slogan starts the mob rushing in one direction like a flock of sheep that follow the bell-wether blindly and precipitately through the gap.

Before discussing in the next issue the origin of human life, which has a direct bearing upon the subject of our higher faculties, it might be well to say a word about the origin of animal life.

Our readers have heard of Darwinian theory of Evolution, which teaches that all the various species of animals were evolved from a few original types. This theory, which was much in vogue some years ago, has its votaries to-day. The statement of the author of Genesis, that God created the various species "according to their kinds," stands uncontradicted. The bovine (cow), the equine (horse) and the canine (dog) species have been the same from the beginning. While there may be developments of new types within the species, there is, as Cardinal Mercier asserts, no decisive proof of the transformation of one species into another.

The Cry of the Nerves

For rich, red blood

Nervous headache has often been described
As the cry of the starved nerves for more or better blood.
One-fifth of the blood in the human body
Is consumed by the brain,
In creating new nerve force.
Lacking this vital power,
Which runs the machinery of the body,
Digestion fails, nervousness and irritability develop,
And there comes headaches, neuritis and sciatic pains.
The depleted nerves are crying for red blood.
You can supply nutrition to the nerves
By using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food,
Because it goes directly to the formation
Of rich, red, nutritious blood.
Every time you use this restorative treatment
You put iron into the blood.

Veteran of West Started Career When Alberta Still Northwest Territories.

NOTED FOR HUMOR.

REGINA, Sept. 29 (CP)—Dr. Walter DeVy Cowan, veteran of the West and Member of Parliament for Long Lake was dead to-day.

He succumbed last night following a brief illness. The funeral will be held Monday from Knox United Church, with Rev. John Mutch officiating.

Coming to the West when it was still the Northwest Territories, Dr. Cowan practiced dentistry and gradually became prominent in community and political affairs of the 90's. He was 23 years old when he left his home at Guelph, Ont.

Dr. Cowan was a town councillor in Regina before it was a city and later became an alderman, and in 1915 to 1917 was mayor. Defeated in 1911, he was elected to the House of Commons in 1917 for Regina and again in 1930 for Long Lake constituency.

He was prominent in dental associations, having formed the first Western Dental Association in 1899. He was prominent in fraternal organizations and held many high offices. For 26 years he was president of the Saskatchewan College of Dental Surgeons.

TRAIN HITS STALLED CAR ENGINEER, FIREMAN KILLED

CONVOY, O., Sept. 29. (AP).—Both the engineer and the firemen of the Gotham Limited of the Pennsylvania railroad, east bound from Chicago to New York, were killed when part of the train was derailed after it had struck a stalled automobile early to-day. All the passengers, however, were reported to have escaped serious injury.

Harry Tourgee, 58, of Fort Wayne, Ind., the engineer, died while being taken to a hospital at Fort Wayne, Ind.; B. J. Gladen, 43, of Delphos, O., the fireman, died at the scene of the wreck.

Flighty

PITTSBURG, Pa., Sept. 29. (CP).—It wasn't that Ray W. Stafford, of Pittsburgh, objected to an automobile honeymoon after he married his wife, Sarah, he told Judge Ralph H. Smith in a divorce proceeding, it was the fact that his wife took the automobile on the honeymoon and left him behind.

And this, Ray continued, was only the start of his martial difficulties. "After that," he added, "she (his wife) proceeded to take my car and leave whenever she felt like it, making various visits all over the country and into Canada."

Judge Smith granted the divorce.

WOMAN LOSES $50,000 SUIT

LOST PROPERTY

CORNWALL, Ont., Sept. 29 (CP)—A $50,000 damage action against Dr. M. W. Locke, to whose office in the small village of Williamsburg, the halt and the lame of the continent have beaten a path, was dismissed to-day by Justice James Makins. It was launched by Mrs. Flora Griffith, who owns a nursing home in Williamsburg.

It was claimed by Mrs. Griffith that Dr. Locke announced last March he would not treat patients who boarded at her home. This, she claimed, resulted in the gradual decline of her business until the property was taken from her by a mortgage foreclosure.

Dr. Locke has one of the largest and probably the oldest medical practice in Canada. He treats arthritic patients from all parts of the continent, often seeing 500 or 600 patients a day.

After Mrs. Griffith completed her case to-day, lawyers for Dr. Locke and J. W. Counsell, a Williamsburg lawyer who was a co-defendent, moved for non-suit on a series of legal technicalities. Judge Makins finally ruled he was unable to find that Dr. Locke was entirely responsible for lack of patronage at the Griffith Nursing Home and dismissed the case.

Yawl Overdue Weeks Reaches California

SAN PEDRO, Calif., Sept. 29. — (AP)—The yacht, Natimba, unreported since it left Hilo, Hawaii, August 23, and feared to have been lost with three persons abroad, rounded the breakwater early today.

Richard Smith, of Hollywood, skipper of the 40-foot yawl, told port authorities the small craft had lost its bearings while en route from the islands to the mainland and had wandered [illegible] its course.

Besides Smith, those aboard were Fred Rebel, a Latvian, formerly a resident of Australia; and William Butts, 14-year-old Hollywood youth.

foster the opportunities for an Empire trade." He praised the spirit of the Ottawa trade conference and pointed to the great profits which has already come to Canada as a result.

Prominent Economist

Mr. Williams left a post on the faculty of Toronto University to enter business with Ames and Company in 1918 and was for a time a prominent figure in the affairs of the Canadian Bond Dealers' Association. He is a well-known writer in the field of finance and economics and is at present director of Corporate Investors in charge of investment research.

"For years we concentrated on production," Mr. Williams said. "We concentrated on material production so completely that we lost sight of everything else. But, just as a time comes when the artist must step back and look at the work he has done, the time has now come when we have stepped back to look over what we have done."

This is a period of criticism, the speaker said. We are critical of everything. The period is called a depression. It is a pause in our process of evolution—a pause for adjustment, he said.

An Old Story.

Reverses and depressions are not new to the world he continued. A study of the Bible reveals plagues of insects, droughts and disease. These were the causes of great reverses to civilization, but they were caused by what would to-day be known as "acts of God." The present day depression has at its bottom causes which are not "acts of God," but nevertheless causes which are quite as tangible, he said.

"Can we study these causes of our depression with a view to looking into the future and seeing what is in store for us?" Mr. Williams asked. "Our scientists have studied the cause of weather with such a success that they can now predict fairly accurately the weather of the future. Can this be done in business?"

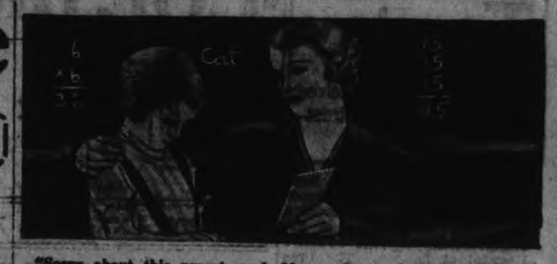
Car loadings, bank clearings, construction, steel production and other so-called barometers of business were studied closely by financial experts early in 1929 but they failed to hint the catastrophe which was on the way, he said. The reason was that such figures are not barometers of the future. They are merely barometers of existing conditions, he said.

The Real Barometer.

"However, there was one barometer of the future which could have been read in 1928 and 1929, but was ignored. It was the ratio of the rates on short term loans to those on long term loans."

Normally, the speaker explained, short term loans are available at cheaper rates than long term loans. That is quite the natural situation due to the greater risk involved in the long term loan. But the demand for short term money became so abnormal during the prosperity period that in 1928 interest rates on short term money rose above the rates on long term money.

"A condition known as 'credit stress' arose," the speaker said. "It was the beginning of the end. Whenever you have higher rates on short term money you are about to have a great recession in physical production. When you have a recession in physical production, a business recession accompanies it. Securities fall and a depression is on. This rule applies not only to the present depression but to all former economic depressions as study will reveal."



"Sorry about this report card, Mary. Pretty bad, isn't it? I don't think you've been feeling very well, have you?"

"... and Mary usually does splendid work! Listlessness like hers often is the result of constipation, Mrs. Reid. Why not try Castoria tonight?"

"Isn't there a wonderful change in Mary, Miss Hale? I'm so grateful to you for suggesting Castoria—it's a splendid laxative!"

"Yes — it really is, Mrs. Reid. And the main reason is, because it's made ESPECIALLY for children. It is so gentle — perfectly free from any of the harsh drugs that are in many adult laxatives. It's just the right laxative to give for acid stomach, too — it's surprising how often children are bothered with that condition! And I know Mary LIKED Castoria — all children do!"

Western Wheat's Protein Unchanged

WINNIPEG, Sept. 29 (CP).—An additional 1,132 samples of grain tested by the laboratory of the Board of Grain Commissioners here during the week showed no material difference in protein content of the fifth progressive protein survey report issued to-day revealed.

Total samples tested to date is 6,397.

Average protein content of the first four grades of wheat for Manitoba is 13.9; Saskatchewan, 14.6; Alberta, 14.0 per cent., all computed on a 13.5 per cent. moisture basis. These figures show Manitoba unchanged, Saskatchewan off .1 per cent., and Alberta down .2 per cent.

GOOD-BY MORSE IN OLD LONDON

Machines Have Ousted Dot-and-Dash Telegram From Metropolis.

LONDON, Sept. 29 (C.P.).—"Dot-and dash" for London's telegrams are dead—aged 70 years.

This means London's last Morse telegram has been despatched from the Central Telegraph Office, and in future all telegrams will be sent by automatic teleprinter machines. The occasion of the passing away of the old Morse system was marked by a city business man handing in a telegram in the morning, an ordinary domestic message to a Sidcup address.

It was an ordinary telegraph message, but it made history. It was the last one Morsed out of London. Very soon the last Morse key — or "tapper"—will be disconnected. For 70 years it has held sway.

Now it has gone—and with it "Old Bob" (Robert Stiles), the oldest "tapper" in the Post Office, who has retired after 42 years as a "dot and dash" operator.

The new teleprinter machines can send 100 wires of average length an hour—more than double the capacity of the old Morse instruments. An operator can be trained in six months to send 80 telegrams an hour.

The teleprinter machines are used extensively in the telegraph systems of Canada and other Dominions.

Faster Way Found to Relieve Headaches

NOW PAIN OFTEN RELIEVED IN MINUTES!

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Demand and get the method doctors prescribe—Aspirin.

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH
An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

Sabbath Message For The Shut-Ins

Written for The Examiner by the Ministers of the City and District.

GOD SPEAKS INTO THE SOUL.

Let not your heart be trouble. John 14:1.

(By H. W. L. MAHOOD)

OUR Lord's manner of speaking to us is different. Others speak to us. They may speak at us. Some speak to our emotions. Then again some speak to our intellect. Or the will may be attacked. Sometimes a word reaches our prejudices. A temptation may grip us as some word appeals. But Jesus speaks into us. His words reach the deepest that there is within us. He speaks into our souls. No voice so penetrating as His. He speaks in such a way that we know He means us.

Our Lord is infinite. Therefore, place or distance to Him makes no difference. And because He is so great He speaks in finalities. In the upper room He spoke things that must be true because they ought to be true. In the upper room He found souls responsive, and knew that they would hold His melodious speech. When are hearts best fitted to catch His meaning? These disciples were troubled. They were in the throes of trouble. Were they so taken up with themselves, and their future, that even the words of Jesus were lost upon them? When are we most fitted to hear Him? When? Just at the hour when we are most unfitted. The disciples were tempest tossed. When in the thick of that experience Jesus was quick to seize the opportunity to say to them things they would never forget.

The whole disciple band in that hour consisted of shut-ins. They had locked themselves in the upper room. Trouble has shut them in. Fear filled their hearts. They shunned facing the world. To them this was a trying and searching hour. Some questions of high import were unanswered. Upon their mind flashed the thought of saying good-byes. Soon to them the familiar would become the past and the foreign. Transitions are heart-breaking. In friendships and in relationships this is ever true. The experience of having every hope shattered was theirs. Then it was that our Lord administered the cordial that comforts and heals to their hearts. When Jesus speaks into the soul He speaks something into that touches the bleeding spot. What was that something?

That something He spoke into the disciples' souls was God. Jesus can speak God into any troubled soul. He said to them: ye believe in God. They did in a way. But now, in this hour of transition, through Me, believe in Him. In these wonderful words He spoke God anew into their souls. God is the God of every Now. And we might write it down that man has always believed in God. Experiences that seem inexplicable, if there be a God and if He does care, are lighted up through Jesus. It is this view of God through Me that our Lord spoke into the souls of His chosen that night. This God of Jesus sanctifies trouble. Jesus gave the world this view of God. Trouble instead of being a besetment or hindrance can be transformed into the greatest of blessings.

Jesus came into the world to reveal what God is like. We study the Gospels to discover what our Lord is like. We must not forget that He came to reveal clearly just what God the Father is like. Through Jesus He sanctifies all trouble and transforms it into good.

To believe in the God of whom Jesus spoke that memorable night is the sanity of all worthy thinking. But to believe in Jesus is also highly sane. To believe in Jesus is creative thinking. Old things pass. All things become new.

The Godhood of the Father actually and morally fulfills Himself through incarnating the humanity which has its origin and ground in the deeps of His own unfathonable being. The roots of Christianity are firmly set in the soil of eternity. And its fruits and flowers are, in Christ, hanging in satisfying and attainable clusters over the walls of Time.

When the fingers of faith touch this, truth peace of soul and insight of mind and tranquility of spirit enter the soul's inmost.

Ours is a world in which the sweetest song is the simplest.

YOUR PROBLEMS

Religious and Social Questions Answered By DR. WYLIE CLARK

Some weeks ago a minister said: "Sin to-day is sprawled all over our modern life." Is this true?—D. E. R.

It is a bit difficult from one sentence out of a sermon to get the exact viewpoint of the preacher. It would seem as if he might mean that sin was carelessly thrown over modern life and more or less obscured it.

Dr. Wylie Clark

This is evidently true. We do not want to be taken too seriously. We prefer to show our idleness rather than our desire to be somebody and do something. We boast of our liberties and licenses rather than stand by and maintain our honesty and integrity. We speak lightly of sacred things rather than elevate and worship them. While this is true, yet perhaps a seriousness never known before in the history of the world is working for the defeat of evil.

Is it not true that a great part of our lives is very commonplace and uninteresting?—C. T. P.

Life is very much not doing the same thing over again, but doing similar things to the ones we have done. We never live two days exactly alike. We never eat the same food twice. We never sleep two nights at once.

Each day is a new day, our food is new, so is our sleep. We badly let ourselves down by thinking that things are the same over again. They never are—they are always new.

If we could keep this in mind it would deliver us from the staleness of existence and every day we would be thrust into new adventures and accomplish new deeds.

I am sometimes asked questions which are controversial among the denominations. What should I do about it?

I think I should leave these to be discussed in the letter department of the papers. I fancy my part is to be helpful rather than argumentative.

What does it mean to preach Christ crucified?—H. B. D.

It means two things, the deadliness of sin and the saving love of God. Sin in its last stage is death to all goodness and it crucified Christ. To preach Christ crucified is to announce the cure for sin and call men to accept it as the only means of escape.

I have read an account of a marriage that took place at the Chicago Fair, the bride and groom being nude at the time and the minister almost so. What do you think of this?—G. P. H.

It is pretty tough for all concerned, bad enough for the Fair people, worse for the bride and groom, and beastly for the preacher.

Things like these shock the sense of decency of even hardened people, and shows what will be done to make a bit of money. What an inheritance that bride and groom will leave to their children and what a recommendation for that minister when he looks for another church!

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

INCIDENTALLY, then, I work for men, but essentially and consciously I work for God, and look to God for my recompense.

"Now God is the most generous of paymasters. It is natural that He should be. He who delights in the grace of a bird or the color of a flower must delight in a man in proportion to a man's higher place in the creative scale. As our Lord points out, that is no more than common sense. And, delighting in us as He does, God could not possibly stint us in what we earn from Him. A large part of His joy must be our joy.

"The simplest way in which I can express it is that in consciously trying to work with God, not man, as our employer, things happen to us which, to the best of our foresight, would not have happened otherwise. Often they seem accidental till the coincidences become too numerous to explain by coincidence and nothing more. . . . Change is the explanation which comes to me first, till I reflect on the finespun chain which led to the result. Leading is what I see then; and seeing it once I am more confident of being led the next time. The next time, therefore, I am the less afraid, having the definite experience to support me. . . . If the Lord loveth a cheerful giver, as St. Paul says, we may depend upon it that He loveth a cheerful worker; and where we can cleave the way to His love there we find His endless generosity. . . . There is a force generated by working consciously with Him which we have to GO WITHOUT WHEN WE DISREGARD HIM. It is not I suppose, that He refuses to co-operate with us, but that it is out of our power to co-operate with Him. . . . It is doubtless for this reason that our Lord emphasizes seeking His righteousness as well as His Kingdom."—From the "Conquest of Fear," by Basil King, Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

To know others, study thyself, to know thyself, study others.

Christ met death not as the conquered, but as the conqueror.

God in Hebrew History — ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Scripture—Heb. 11:32-40.

Solomon's son, Rehoboam, who became king after him, refused to lighten the people's burden of taxation and as a result ten of the twelve tribes rebelled and seceded from his rule and established the rival kingdom of Israel with Jeroboam (the first of their nineteen wicked kings).

One of the worst of Israel's kings was Ahab. He was often rebuked by Elijah, God's prophet of that day; a man of great courage and zeal, whose successor, Elisha, was trained by him and became a man of mighty deeds of mercy similar to our Lord's miracles.

After Elisah came the prophets Amos and Hosea in Israel and Micah and Isaiah in Judah to plead with the people to forsake their idols and live lives of righteousness toward God and of justice and mercy toward their neighbors.

Their messages for the most part went unheeded by kings and people, generation after generation until the judgment predicted by the prophets came and Israel was led away captive to Assyria in 721 B. C. and Judah to Babylon in 586 B. C.

THE NEW DOMINION LOAN.

The most significant and most satisfactory feature of the new domestic loan to be floated at the beginning of next week is the fact that practically all of it is to be used for refunding of Victory Loans.

The issue, it is announced, is to be strictly limited to $350,000,000, and of this sum $222,000,000 is to be earmarked to meet the Victory Loan 5½ bonds due on November 1.

The improved financial condition of the country is reflected in the decision of the Government to seek only $28,000,000 of new money, a condition that carries its own proof of a betterment in the state of national finances.

It is expected that the new issue will be quickly subscribed, although the interest rates will be materially lower than those of other loans.

The exact details, of course, will not be known until the prospectus is placed before the public on Monday.

IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION.

The announcement of Liquor Control Commissioner E. G. Odette that all premises now holding beverage room licenses are to be thoroughly inspected before November 1 when the new fiscal year begins, and that their condition and the accommodation they provide will be important factors when the renewal of licenses is considered, will be received with general approval.

It is now recognized that in far too many cases the privilege of selling beer has been granted to owners of places that cannot truthfully be described as standard hotels.

The licenses were issued without any inspection of the premises, the questionnaire signed by the applicants being evidently taken at their face value, and the result has been the setting up in the beer business of places that certainly do not qualify according to the general conception of the new beer act.

It is gratifying therefore to learn that the commissioner is now taking steps to correct this situation, and through the medium of inspectors to get accurate information as to the premises for which beer licenses are sought.

He will be in a position when renewals are being considered to weed out the weak sisters, and to confer the right of sale upon properly operated standard hotels—the only places that have any claim upon the privilege.

The result should be a much healthier condition after the end of next month with the elimination of mushroom hotels and sale of beer in the hands of responsible hotel operators.

THE TROUBLE IN THE NORTH.

The stories coming from the Cochrane district of the mobbing of Canadian-born timber workers by striking foreigners are, to say the least, disturbing.

If the conditions are as reported and the provincial police are unable to act because of the lack of orders from Queen's Park, the situation should receive prompt attention from the Government.

Attorney-General Roebuck's reluctance to interfere in the case of a dispute between employers and employees will have to give way to a decision that law and order must be maintained or the alternative may be serious trouble in the north.

This particular case is something more than a mere controversy over wages and working conditions; it involves the recognition of the Workers' Unity League as well as such questions as the rights of Canadians to work when they want to without illegal interference on the part of anybody, be they strikers or otherwise.

Workers are permitted by law to go on strike and to peacefully picket, but when they go further than that and attempt by violence to prevent others from working, those entrusted with the enforcement of the statutes cannot simply sit with folded hands and let the striking organization—particularly a Red force like the Workers' Unity League—take law into their own hands.

So far as the Workers' Unity League and other extremist bodies are concerned, the Attorney-General might just as well make up his mind now that there is no use trying to play ball with such organizations; the stirring up of trouble is their chief objective, and they cannot be turned away from it by decent treatment or mistaken kindness.

THE HORNBY PLAN.

The Hornby plan of immigration, as outlined by Brigadier-General M. L. Hornby, of Lethbridge, Alta., has come in for a great deal of discussion, not only among the delegates attending the annual convention of the Canadian Chambers of Commerce, but among others who have seen a memorandum of the scheme.

General Hornby claims on behalf of his proposal that new British immigration, supplemented by a fully financed land settlement plan, would be a step toward clearing away the present national condition of widespread unemployment.

He declares that this form of national development has more to recommend it at the present time than any other form of development, more than any increase in public services, more than better roads, and more even than city housing schemes.

Briefly his main propositions are:

First, that one of the fundamental causes of the existing condition of industrial unemployment and of the existing unremunerative return for agricultural labor is the cessation of our national development; that consequently we must again take up the development of our country before we can become prosperous again.

Secondly, that new immigration with organized and fully financed land settlement is more important than any other plan of national development, that our new immigration must be highly selective as regards race, and must consist entirely of agriculturalists for settlement on the land.

Thirdly, that particular attention must be paid to details of the settlement on the land of all immigrants.

General Hornby has at least provided food for thought, and his proposal will be hotly attacked in some quarters and just as warmly supported in others.

SHIPS AND MEN.

Aghast at the hideous tragedy of the Morro Castle, President Roosevelt talks about a new regulation to make compulsory the use of steel rather than wood in the interior fittings of American merchant ships.

From what one can gather from the investigation that has been taking place over the charred bones of the Morro Castle, what the American merchant marine needs is not so much steel as men.

It was not fireproof fittings that drove Columbus in his three tiny caravels all the way across the wastes of the unknown Atlantic to the New World.

It was courage and character.

It was not fancy plumbing or well-rigged lifeboats that enabled Francis Drake to circumnavigate the globe in a ship that would not to-day be used for a ferryboat across Burrard Inlet.

It was the moral fabric of himself and his men.

It is true that a ship on the sea is entitled to all the protection of rigid rules and regulations such as those imposed upon all ships of British registry by the British Board of Trade.

Perhaps the Board of Trade is even too strict with all its demands that impose such hours of labor upon seamen and stewards and other members of a ship's crew.

Somewhere, possibly, between the demanding rigidity of British Board of Trade regulations and the laxity of United States Department of Commerce rules lies the happy medium that will at once guarantee safety for passengers and justice for seamen.

But the true and genuine bulwark of a ship upon the sea will never be equipment or rules.

It will always be the qualities of the men who command and work it.

It is a ghastly thing to contemplate that passengers should be asked to trust their lives to a frail world within a world that sails out on a troubled sea without the direction of men who fail to uphold the tradition of their calling.

A ship without men is a world without a God.

When the investigation into the Morro Castle disaster reveals incompetence, cowardice and panic, does it mean that in all the 120 million people of United States there are no men fitted by nature and temperament to meet crises and trouble and emergency?

We hope not. For on sea or on land, there is no substitute for character.—Vancouver Sun.

SELLING HYDRO TO HE FARMERS.

Chairman Lyon, of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, who started out wi th the idea of promoting sales of electricity rather than of bringing new developments into operation, is now suggesting to members of the technical staff of the commission that, as far as time permits, they should visit prospective customers along rural lines in an attempt to increase their numbers and thus to reduce the service charges. Mr. Lyon thinks that such a policy is preferable to waiting for prospective customers to approach the commission seeking a connection with its services.

This suggestion is coupled with instructions to the technical staff of the commission that it should prepare a report on the practicability of authorizing reduced rates for power used on farms for sanitary purposes. It is felt that monthly bills to rural households in which modern plumbing and washing appliances are installed could be rebated for that portion of the current used for these purposes.

In view of the known surplus of power at the disposal of the commission, a large part of which must be paid for under contracts made with private companies, Mr. Lyon is pursuing correct policy in endeavoring to bring about a larger consumption of electricity, if necessary through authorizing special rates in order to encourage the enlarged use of certain appliances.

The drive for greater consumption of electricity which the Hydro Commission has inaugurated should prove beneficial to the revenues of that organization and at the same time become advantageous to the people as a whole. In particular are the commission's efforts to expand rural use of Hydro to be commended, especially if they are accompanied by a downward tendency in the rates which rural consumers must pay in comparison with residents of the towns and cities.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

THE OLD HOME TOWN

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

Geo. O'Neill, the headman of the Hotelkeepers' Association, was in town Tues. and give the beverage room boys a pep talk. Geo. knows his stuff, he having operated a lot of taverns here and there.

Our ball team visited Toronto, west of us, Wed., and for the benefit of Tommy Church and a few hundred other Toronto fans, put on a game with the G. and W.'s of that place, the Toronto boys getting 6 and us 4 runs. Better luck next time, lads, say we.

By-elections was held in various parts of this fair province Mon., and the suspicion is beginning to stink in that Dick Bennett's Government ain't considered so hot by many of the electorate.

Geo. Gillespie supplied his brother Rotarians with a bottle of milk and hunk a cheese each when they et at Graham's Hotel Mon. Now, some is wishing they was a brewery member to speak on his classification.

Duck hunting ain't been more than average round these parts as yet, the ducks somehow ain't got the idea of the game up to now and they're harder to find than a Tory in West Elgin, many opine.

Cy Curtis, the beverage room inspector in these parts, ain't laid down no rules as yet about the amt. of froth per stein of beer, but many is hopeful Cy will get round to this ere long.

Zeller's new general store, just across the street from Ernie Payne's drug emporium, swang up its doors to the public this morning, and this well known bus stop is quite a lively place again, we note approvingly in passing. F.D.C.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

ROSTHERN, SASKATCHEWAN.

Dr. Seagar Wheeler, one of Canada's foremost authorities on cereal grains, calls this town his home, but local historians can shed little light on how the town came by its name. All the earliest settlers can recall is that when they first arrived in the locality the name Rosthern was found on a post at the siding. Presumably it must have been put there by a member of the surveying party which laid out the line which ran from Saskatoon to Prince Albert, then known as the Qu'Appelle and Long Lake railway, but later absorbed by the Canadian National.

U. S.—HONEA PARK.

Ten pickets were killed during the week September 9-16. Besides these fatalities several were wounded. But Honea Park, South Carolina, was the scene of a bloody assault. There deputy sheriffs and "loyal" workers shot and killed seven pickets and wounded fifteen others.

The power of predatory capital to have news distorted is manifest in the reports of some of the most influential American newspapers, that the killing can be traced to invasion of a flying squadron of pickets, which attempted to intimidate men and women who wanted to work in the mills in Honea Park. The rashness of the said newspapers to get something into the mind of the public first, was ridiculous. The facts gleaned on the day following told the story, that all of the pickets lived in Honea Park with only one exception. The effort to break up the strike by foul means or fair is determined. The employers thought that to kill off a few of the strikers surely would end the picketing. Never the present strike! There is too much at stake, that ought to have been settled by the NRA. The NRA has shown no disposition to revise the Labor Code. Hence the extreme action of The Textile Workers United.

At Anderson, South Carolina, 2,440 special deputies, most of them American Legion soldiers, have been organized by the manufacturers. The effort is to disband the pickets. The Daily News Record is a trade textile paper. It carried a news item saying that the 2,440 deputies stand ready to prevent the intimidation of any outside mob. Then refers to the forcing of five hundred strikers to disband by the National Guardsmen at Spartansburg. The whole scheme was a frame-up. There was no need of such precaution. The strikers were inoffensive and law-abiding.

STRIKERS HOLD FIRM.

The ineffectual effort to break up picketing by force has revealed the solidity of the labor ranks. A few mills have reopened. More have within a week joined these out on strike. Local management of the right kind has led to the reopening of a few mills where the workers were on strike. The management of the mills is the key to a peaceful settlement of labor disputes. During the last five days 75,000 hosiery, carpet and related textile industries have joined the ranks of the 400,000 already on strike.

The United States has a few conservative newspapers. These papers have given space to the danger of the strike being a threat to the goverfment. This attitude is unjust. All the strikers ask is recognition by the labor union and better working conditions. Both the New York Times and the Herald Tribune have denounced in editorials the strike as lawless and dangerous. The leaders they have denounced as law breakers. The strikers have been charged with a plot to enforce a special strikers law.

We do not want our people to be officers of the law. But neither do we want them to be submitted to the danger of deputized forces that are merely armed mobs, without training, and without any particular responsibility. One mill has its strike breakers deputized.

You charge that we want to take the law into our own hands. But if the strike breakers are deputized, does that not mean that the mills are taking the law into their hands? You know perfectly well that it means nothing else.

What we want and what we never get is true law enforcement. We get enforcement of the will of mill owners. Nine of our men are in their graves today because the mill owners control law enforcement. Most of the men killed by the deputies were shot in the back and there is enough sophistication in the editorial rooms of the New York Times to understand what that means.

THE "MORRO CASTLE".

Is humanity rotten to the core? Some of it is not. Too much of it is. The Morro Castle burning is a study of the above assertion. In all tragedy there is some wrong. The cause of many tragedies can be explained. As yet no satisfactory explanation has reached the public. The Bureau of Steamship Inspection is convinced there is need of a thorough-going investigation into the working conditions of all classes of seamen in the American merchant marine. Pity it is that such a tragedy should be necessary to wake up the officials. Men asleep to duty! Officials who draw their pay and are ignorant about the realities which exist, and for which they are responsible, ought to be punished. Blame attaches not alone to the seamen but to the Bureau Officials. Does any of the blame reach over to the church? We think there does.

In all tragedies the public either forgives or condemns. The voice of condemnation about the Morro Castle tragedy is heard throughout the world. Not alone are the seamen judged harshly for the part they failed to perform, but the officials of the Bureau of Steamship Inspection are strongly condemned for their ignorance.

The Morro Castle cost five million dollars. For four years only it has been in the service. In it the United States government had a large investment. Questions difficult to answer have become vocal. What went wrong with the fire-fighting system on this splendid boat? It carried plenty of life boats for all who were aboard. Only two-thirds of them were lowered. Why this? On the average these life boats carried only one-fourth of the number of passengers it could have carried. Why? The fatalities were larger among the passengers than among the crew. Why, again? The acting captain deliberately refused for forty minutes to send out the S.O.S. call. Why, again and again?

QUAKERS IN UPPER CANADA.

On this date in 1806, a deputation of Quakers settled north of Toronto, waited upon Lieutenant Governor Gore and presented an address in which they sent greeting in these peculiar words:

"Notwithstanding we are a people who hold forth to the world a principle which in many respects differs from the greater part of mankind, yet we believe it our reasonable duty, as saith the Apostle: 'Submit yourselves under, to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake, whether it be the kind as supreme, or unto governors as unto them that are sent by him for the punishment of evil doers and for the praise of them that do well'; in this we hope to be his humble and peaceful subjects. Although we cannot for conscience sake join with many of our fellow mortals in complimentary customs of man, neither in taking up the sword in order to shed human blood—for the Scripture saith that 'it is righteousness that exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people'—we feel concerned for thy welfare and the prosperity of the province, hoping the administration may be such as to be a terror to the evil minded and a pleasure to them that do well; then will the province flourish and prosper under thy direction; which is the earnest desire and prayer of they sincere friends." The address was presented by Timothy Rogers, founder of a family long prominent in business in Toronto.

On a previous occasion the same Rogers had headed a deputation to Governor Peter Hunter to complain that they could not get the patents for their lands and were harried from one official to another, whereupon choleric Hunter called in Secretary and Registrar Jarvis, who had complained that pressure of work had delayed the patents, and told him: "If the patents are not forthcoming, every one of them, in my presence at noon on Thursday next (it was then Tuesday) I'll—— un— Jarvis you!"; and it is recorded that they got the patents and Jarvis kept his job.

It may be worth noting that the immigration of Quakers from Pennsylvania was advocated by Colonel Simcoe even before he was sworn in and that Lord Dorchester agreed with him that they would make excellent settlers, one of the very few things upon which he and Simcoe saw eye to eye.

HEROES AND HEROINES.

Venetian Masque. By Raphael Sabatini (McClelland and Stewart, Toronto, 323 pages).

Between these two latest volumes of Sabatini the reader has a wide choice. Each is excellent in its own sphere, and if the one is read for entertainment only then the other deserves to be read for both enjoyment and instruction.

In "Venetian Masque" there is a tale of romance and intrigue which rivals, if not excels, that of "Scaramouche." The reader is plunged right into the core of the plot in the first few pages and from there until the last page there is scarcely a paragraph in which the tenseness and excitement are relaxed. Although the historical background is there, the author gives us no more discourses on politics and history than are just sufficiently necessary to explain the actions of the characters.

The story is one of Venice in the post-French-Revolutionary days when "The Little Corporal" was already on the first rungs of the ladder that lead to the throne. Mr. Melville, an Englishman with considerable French blood, has been entrusted by Pitt with a diplomatic mission to further an alliance between Venice and Austria. By strange coincidences, on his way to Venice, he meets Lebel, a French envoy by whom he himself had been sentenced to the guillotine some years previous. Only now—too late—does Lebel learn that the knife had not accomplished its work. The plot follows on in a rapid succession of intrigues between the French, the English and the Venetians, with the budding Bonaparte always in the background as a driving force. More than once Melville saves his own life by his wits and his sword.

And, of course, besides a diplomatic mission the hero also has a mission of his own—to find Isotta—a lovely Venetian of previous acquaintance at the Court of St. James. His two objects become inextricably entwined and sometimes he is torn between his duty and his love.

That his official mission failed was due to the apathy of the Venetian rulers but that his private mission succeeded was due entirely to his own resources, courage and skill.

It is a book which, once started, one is very loath to put away until finished.

For his "Heroic Lives" Sabatini has chosen six persons about whom there have probably been more legends and half-truths circulated and handed down than any other six as famous persons in the same period of history. They are: Richard I, St. Francis of Assisi, Joan of Arc, Sir Walter Raleigh, Lord Nelson and Florence Nightingale. Here we have, told in a rich language and a readable style, a not-too-long but sufficiently complete story of each. Though he writes about actual men and women of history, instead of his more usual romantic fictional characters yet he loses none of that acknowledged ability to make the life of his heroes and heroines a fascinating one. The reader feels this as he follows the personal courage of The Lionheart, the enduring faith of Joan, or the unflinching sense of duty and patriotism that lead Vice-Admiral Lord Nelson to glory.

In a few words of comparison between Joan of Arc and Florence Nightingale, Sabatini has condensed the sum and substance of their whole lives.

"On the one hand, we have a peasant girl acting upon an instinctive impulse, driven and guided by an inner voice which assumes to her simple mind an objective character, taking up a task that properly belongs to the other sex. "On the other hand, we have a lady, delicately nurtured and carefully educated, pursuing a reasoned course in a province entirely feminine.

"In common they possess a selfless devotion to a cause and to the service of an ideal so unstinting that it is not to be daunted by any personal sacrifice."

To Florence Nightingale had come the call of humanity—the crying need of an organized nursing body in England. That she was able before her death at the age of 90 to see her dreams accomplished was to her a greaterreward than any other.

Sabatini's story of Walter Raleigh is probably one of very few which does not mention the legend that he threw his cloak over a mud puddle so that Queen Elizabeth might not soil her shoes. Rather he stresses the facts of Raleigh's deserved leadership in war, in exploration and at the Court. After the Queen's death, Raleigh was accused of treason and convicted after a trial which was one of the greatest travesties of justice ever seen in British Courts. Thus went to his death a man who was "graceful of shape, proudly graceful of carriage and elegant in all his appointments."

OTHER NEW BOOKS.

Going Abroad, by Rose Macaulay (Musson Book Co., Toronto), is a delightfully witty novel about the activities of the Oxford Group in the South of France.

Captain Nichols, by Hugh Walpole (Doubleday-Doran, Toronto). This is a story of a blustering captain who imposes himself on his relatives.

Heart, Be Still, by Isabel Wilder (Longmans, Toronto), is an interesting story with New England as the scene.

Cassiar, by M. Conway Turton (Macmillan, Toronto)—vivid word-impressions of the district of Cassiar in Northwestern British Columbia which show the spirit of the place and the people as yet untouched by "civilization."

THE BROWSER.

Rose Wilder Lane, whose "Let the Hurricane Roar" is still selling, lived through the drouth in Missouri, but lately she's been down in Florida visiting the Talbot Mundys on a sea-shell island overgrown with palm trees and tropical plants. An artesian sulphur well flows on the front porch and the weather is so delightfully cool that it seems like Paradise to her. And it rains every afternoon . . . She's down there as a reward for her unselfishness, and this is how it happened. Years ago she read a series of stories in the old "Adventure" by a man named Mundy, "a marvelous picaresque novel of first century Rome, and pre-Roman Britain". And she was so crazy about it that she saved the magazines and re-read it as a whole. Then she went to Albania but while she was away her mother had a misguided fit of housecleaning and gave the old magazines away. "So then (she wrote to a friend) I set out to get that story in book—which was the only way I could read it again. And for seven years I have been hammering away to get it in print. Talbot Munday wrote it, and he didn't want to tackle re-write on a 1,500-page manuscript. Then publishers said the book was too long and they had other books by Talbot Mundy that they were interested in. But I kept after that story, till now at last, after seven years—and after I had got two other publishers hot after it—Appleton-Century are publishing it next month. And I have just re-read it in galley proof and like it more than ever. (It was correspondence about this book that led to the Mundys asking me down here; I had not met them before, didn't know him at all.)" . . . Rose Lane says that book "Fros of Samothrace", is "full of rapid, exciting events, crammed with battle, murder and sudden death, simply stunning sea fights, gladiatorial combats, Druids, Gauls, Julius Cæsar, and the real sight and sound and smell of Rome and real human beings, and blood and sweat and the sea." . . . The Browser doesn't know the book, and he might not even like it, but that shows that writers are not always jealous and what at least one of them will do to get another writer's book published.

The Browser has just finished Evan Evans "Montana Rides Again" in galley proofs and his hair is still standing on end . . . Anybody who read "Montana Rides" knows the sort of devil that Montana is and knows the way Evan Evans can write . . . "Montana Rides Again" is very high class junk and the Browser recommends it for its good writing and its creepy horror . . . Right alongside of it place Antonio de Fierro Blanco's "Rico, Bandit and Dictator". More high-class trash, but readable and exciting. The man who wrote "The Journey of the Flame" couldn't write any other kind. He despises the weak, thinks of women as inferior animals, would kill all his enemies, execute all criminals and wipe out their children, and has but little use for the Great Northern Republic which we call "America" . . . Rico was a great South American bandit, who never existed, but who became the master of his country.

Betty Carstairs Buys Isle In Bahamas Quits Boat Racing–'Just To Be Left Alone'

LONDON, Sept. 29 (A.P.).—Betty Carstairs, prominent sportswoman, confirmed reports to-day that she is deserting England for a lonely private island in the Bahamas, asserting, "I want to be left alone."

"There was a time when I could not live my own life," she said. "I could not get away from publicity. Well, that is all over. I am not going to race anywhere any more. Now I just want to be left alone."

Miss Carstairs, a noted speedboat racer, appeared highly indignant at published reports she was forced into exile by the burden of taxation and has sold her motor-boats, yachts and automobiles, even a private shipyard at Cowes. She declined to say whether she would ever return to England.

Whale Bay is the island which Miss Carstairs recently bought. She has built a large house on it and a 15-mile bridle path was laid out.

NEW BOND ISSUE WILL GO ON SALE FIRST OF WEEK

Interest Rate Ranges From Two to Three and Half Per Cent.

UP TO 15 YEARS.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29. — (C.P.)— Bonds bearing coupons at the rates of two, 2½, three and 3½ per cent, respectively, for periods of two, five, eight and 15 years, will be offered for public subscription Monday under the terms of the prospectus of the $250,000,000 Dominion of Canada 1934 refunding loan, officially announced to-day by Honorable E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance.

The bonds will be sold at the following prices: Two year bonds at 96.90 yielding the investor 2.57 per cent; five year bonds at 96.15 yielding 2.90 per cent; eight year bonds at 97.00 yielding 3.43 per cent., and the 15 year bonds at 96.50 yielding 3.81 per cent.

The issue is primarily for the retirement of $222,216,850 Victory Loan bonds maturing November 1. The balance will be used for the general purposes of Canada including redemption of short term treasury bills.

May Be Exchanged

Holders of the maturing bonds will be privileged to tender them in exchange for the new bonds of any maturity and received immediate allotment. To encourage refunding subscriptions a bonus is given of one-half months interest, as the new bonds will be dated October 15 and holders of the maturing bonds will be permitted to retain their November first coupons in full when tendering their old bonds in payment of conversion subscriptions.

Those who exchange their bonds for the eight or the 15 year maturity are granted an added inducement in a premium of one eighth percent when subscribing for the eight year bonds, and one quarter of one percent when subscribing for the 15 year bonds. This offer holds good only until October 6 unless subscription lists close prior to that date. After October 6, if the lists are still open, the maturing bonds will be taken at par.

Holders of maturing bonds will receive payment in cash representing the difference between the cost of the new bonds and the alowance for the old bonds.

Subject to Allotment

Cash subscriptions will also be received but these will all be subject to allotment for which the tentative date of October 15 has been set. Upon receiving notice of allotment cash subscribers will be required to take up their bonds promptly. Bonds will bear interest from October 15. In order to encourage small investors, 15-year bonds will be issued in denominations as low as $100. Otherwise the denominations will be $500 and $1,000.

The two, five and eight year bonds will be non-callable; the 15 year bonds will be subject to call at the option of the Government at par on or after 10 years.

The principal of the new bonds will be payable at the head office and branches of the Bank of Canada. This is the first time that the name of the new central bank appears in the official prospectus of a Dominion loan and gives recognition to the function which the new institution will have in acting as the fiscal agent of the Dominion. The Government, however, for the convenience of holders throughout the country, will provide for the payment of interest without charge at any branch in Canada of any chartered bank.

The amount of the issue is definitely limited to $250,000,000. The official prospectus will be published on Monday when the subscription lists will open. The lists will close on or before 13th October at the discretion of the Minister of Finance.

Mayor Officiates At Store Opening

Officiating at the opening ceremonies at Zeller's, Limited, at nine o'clock this morning, Mayor Roland Denne congratulated the firm on its decision to locate here, and wished them a long and prosperous career of merchandising.

In the presence of the large crowd of shoppers that took the new store by storm for the opening, Mayor Denne cut the ribbons that bound the doors and swung the doors open for business.

Officials of the company who were present for the occasion included Herbert A. Hills, vice-president; D. J. Fitzgerald, manager of the local store; and William F. Ryan, store supervisor.

Walter P. Zeller, president, was prevented from being present at the opening ceremonies on account of slight indisposition. Earlier in the week, it is learned, he was returning to Montreal after having attended the golden wedding celebrations of his parents at Kitchener, when he was forced to drive his car into the ditch to escape collision with a large motor truck. The mishap occurred near Cornwall, and Mr. Zeller was slightly injured as a result of the accident.

OTHER RESULTS.

LONDON, Sept. 29.—(C.P. Cable) — Manchester City emerged from today's soccer battles into undisputed leadership of the first division of the English Soccer League, trouncing Middlesbrough on the latter's grounds 2-1, while Preston, hitherto sharing the top rung, were losing 4-2 at Aston Villa.

Sunderland kept within a point of the league leaders by virtue of a 2-0 victory at Leicester City. Everton, who were on even terms with Sunderland, slipped by absorbing a 4-2 defeat at Wolverhampton.

Arsenal had little trouble with Birmingham at Highbury, the league champions winning 5-1 in a loosely-played match which put them a game behind the division leaders.

The last team in the entire league with a clean record of victories finally fell when Bolton Wanderers, the second division leaders, lost at Sheffield United by the lopsided score of of 6-2. Bolton however managed to keep on top of the section as Brentford, runners-up, also lost an away match, Hull City beating them 2-1.

WALL ST.

NEW YORK, Sept. 29.—(A.P.)— The stock market ended the week to-day with most traders holding down seats on the sidelines. Although there were a few scattered soft and firm spots, leading issues generally followed an extremely narrow range. Dullness was the rule throughout the brief session. The close was moderately irregular. Transfers approximated only 220,000 shares.

Castle-Trethewey pushed up to 68 and Bear Exploration to 26 each showing a gain of 4 to 6 cents and both trading in heavy volume. Eldorado added 18 cents, selling at 2.20 and White Eagle closed 1½ up at 18.

The high-priced gold issues moved sluggishly and at unchanged prices. Teck had the best turnover, selling up to 4.10 for a gain of 12.

TORONTO EXCHANGE

TORONTO, Sept. 29 (C.P.)—The industrial share market of the Toronto Stock Exchange was just another session to-day without any features and with prices sticking pretty close to Friday's closing level. Volume was fair in the leading oils, Nickel, Brazilian, and the Brewing Corporation stocks.

Walkers Common recovered a half point of Friday's setback and Distillers Seagrams took a loss of a small fraction while Industrial Alcohol remained unchanged at 8. In the last few minutes International Nickel pulled along to chalk up a small advance, while Ford "A" and C.P.R. recorded narrow gains and Brazilian closed lower. Brewing Corporation stocks were unchanged.

COWBOY, HORSE DROWN IN RIVER

First Fatality in Bedaux Expedition Through Candian Rockies.

SEVERAL BEEN INJURED

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (C.P.).—The death of Tom Granger, cowboy members of the Bedaux-Canadian expedition, who was drowned with his horse while swimming the Kwadacha River near Sifton Pass, was reported to expedition headquarters here to-day.

It was the first fatality among the expedition's 32 members, according to the message, which was despatched by Charles E. Bedaux, leader of the venture, and brought to the Prince George outpost of Hudson Bay Company packers returning from taking supplies to a cache near the expedition's line of march over the backbone of the Canadian Rockies.

Several members of the expedition have sustained more less serious injuries, including Walter Thomlinson, cowboy packer, who was sent, with a leg in splints, on a 11-day journey by horseback to Fort St. John and thence to Edmonton, Alta., to a hospital.

Using Edmonton as its base, the expedition is engaged in an attempt to reach Telegraph Creek, B.C., 1,100 miles distant, by forcing passage through unpenetrated regions of the Stikine, Cassiar and Upper Canadian Rockies. Its objective is to open this vast area to exploration and, with its scientific staff, to gather valuable mineralogical and meteorological data.

LONGEST STRIKE IN NEWS ANNALS ENDS IN DUBLIN

Irish Transport Workers' Union Accepts Publisher's Terms.

LASTED NINE WEEKS.

By Joseph Dennigan
(Canadian Press Correspondent).

DUBLIN, Sept. 29 (C.P. Cable).—The longest strike in the history of newspaper publishing was ended to-day on the threshold of its 10th week. The Irish Transport Workers' Union accepted the publishers' terms by ballot, 229 voting for and 99 against. Publication of Dublin's three morning and two evening and three weekly newspapers will resume on Tuesday and Wednesday.

Settlement of the dispute between publishers and the paper handlers lagged a week behind settlement of the separate dispute between publishers and printers, who agreed to accept a week's pay in lieu of the disputed notice they had been given at the time the dispute with the handlers stopped publication. The printers had claimed two weeks' pay because the notice of non-publication was not adequate. The other week's pay will be submitted to arbitration.

One of the most important sidelssues, the question of the right of printers to "censor" news concerning their union, was also settled. The printers agreed to abandon efforts to censor newspaper contents by refusing to set up matter of which they did not approve.

Wages Increased.

The terms agreed on between the Transport Union and the Newspaper Managers' Association provide for a 9 per cent. increase in salaries of $12.50 a week or under; six per cent. increase in salaries of $12.50 to $14, and an increase of 60 cents in salaries over $14 to an agreed maximum for semi-skilled workers of $17 weekly.

A conciliation board will be established immediately to hear the claims of shorthand typists, advertisement clerks, messengers, etc. The managers agreed to dismiss "blackleg" labor and to employ only unionists in the future, and also to submit the question of juvenile labor to conciliation.

The proposed conciliation board has delegates representing the Irish members of the London National Union of Journalists.

The strikers claimed they had won a victory through receiving approximately a quarter of their initial demands, and the proprietors were obliged to concede a lot more than they themselves expected.

MARKET FILLED WITH PRODUCE

Stalls Overflow With Potatoes, Cauliflower and Other Fine Field Products.

POTATOES 75 CENTS.

Cider and chrysanthemum plants, sage and savory, made their appearance on the farmers' market this morning, harbingers of the autumn season.

Once more the carts and stalls overflowed with produce. This must be a great year for cauliflower. They are everywhere and of exceptionally fine quality.

Splendid-looking potatoes were selling for 15 cents a peck, this morning, with other quotations at 75 cents a bag. Large cucumbers were 40 and 50 cents a basket, with smaller sizes at 65 cents.

Novelties were Italian squash, the first on the local market, gourd-shaped, long things, resembling cucumbers, to be baked and sliced. They came from H. S. Strong's gardens at R.R. No. 3, and sold at 10 and 15 cents apiece. Some were four feet long. And with them were nutmeg squash, at the same price.

Broccoli and Savoy cabbage were 5 cents each, and a huge "milk" pumpkin, with the green skin of a squash and a size approximating over twenty pounds, was a curiosity at half a dollar. The owner guaranteed it as very fine for pie-making, and certainly plenty of pies could come out of that bumper vegetable.

White honey was 70 cents in 5-pound pails.

A dressed chicken on the open market was 25 cents a pound, ready for the roasting pan. In the basket section, chickens sold from 16 to 20 cents a pound, with ducks at 20 cents and roasted chickens at 30 cents a pound.

Eggs were 20 to 32 cents a dozen, the former price asked for pullets' eggs and the latter for choice examples from fowls kept in the pens, with special feed. The main quotation was 28 and 30 cents a dozen.

Tomatoes were 35 cents in large baskets, pears 50 and 85 cents, in small and large containers, crabapples 35 cents for big baskets.

Red pepper jelly was toothsome-looking, at 15 cents for a little glass jar. Yellow ground cherries were 10 cents a quart, and Brussels sprouts sold at 2 quarts for 15 cts.

Parsnips were 25 cents a peck, and scarce.

Red-cheeked apples were 35 cents a peck for Maiden Blush and Alexandras and 45 cents for Baxters. Blue grapes were 55 cents for two baskets.

Bunches of horse radish were 10 cents each. Little pigs were $7.50 and $8 a pair.

Chrysanthemum plants, in bud, were 25 cents each.

Flowers were lovely this morning; tall gladioli, huge dahlias and cosmos. All ready for winter were the dried everlastings, the bright bittersweet, the Japanese lantern flowers and the cockscomb with its red velvety fronds.

DICTATORSHIPS, THEIR DANGER TO BE TOPIC AT TORY CONVENTION

Inadequacy of Provisions Made for Imperial Defense to be Discussed.

OPENS OCTOBER 4.

(By Thomas T. Champion, C.P. Staff Writer.)

LONDON, September 29 (C.P.).—Dictatorships and their dangers will furnish a frequent subject for discussion at the National Conservative Convention opening at Bristol on October 4. The report of the Central Council refers to the "notable period of peace and prgoress at home" which, it says, has been achieved by the policy of the Government.

On behalf of the Norwich County Association the Rev. R. Paterson Morgan will ask the convention to approve the formation of a league for preserving the constitution and Parliament from the dangers of dictatorship, "believing that such a step would rouse all right-minded citizens to a realization of the perilous meaning of the several policies which threaten our liberties."

Lord Wolmer will call upon the Government "at once to submit to Parliament such proposals for the reform of the House of Lords and the amendment of the Parliament Act as may rescue the constitution from its present dangerous position before a dissolution takes place."

Imperial Defence.

Lord Lloyd will move to record "grave anxiety in regard to the inadequacy of the provisions made for Imperial defence."

Brigadier-General Sir Henry Page Croft will ask the conference to record its emphatic opinion that the partnership of Britain and India in the central government of the Indian Empire must not be dissolved, and urges the Government to assent to no proposals which would imperil the future of India within the Empire or impair the confidence and unity of the Conservative Party in view of the menace of Socialism.

The convention will close with a mass meeting to be addressed by Stanley Baldwin, acting Prime Minister.

The Last Man

COUNCIL BLUFF, Ia., Sept. 29.—(CP)—Eighty-five United States veterans of the Argonne drive in the Great War last night sealed a bottle of wine, 1934 vintage, with a toast to the "last man"—the man who, years hence, will sit down alone and solemnly drink to them.

After a toast to their fallen comrades in France, the former overseas service men sealed the native wine and placed it in a safety deposit vault.

MELEE LEADERS TO BE STRAPPED

200 Threaten to Wreck Reformatory Brick Plant in Sympathy Demonstration.

EXTRA POLICE CALLED.

NEW TORONTO, Ont., September 29 (C.P.). — Strapping was ordered to-day for 25 ringleaders of a disturbance here last night at the Ontario brick and tile plant, part of the Ontario Reformatory, following a night-long session of a board of inquiry.

Nearly 200 prisoners threatened to riot and wreck the plant out of sympathy towards four men confined for their refusal to work.

As screams and shouts from the inmates filled the building, guards sent for help from the New Toronto Police Department. The prisoners refused to go to bed until officials had heard a committee of men with their complaints.

Lights burned through the night in dormitories filled with angry, defiant men. Chief Hedley Padgett, arrived with a squad of New Toronto police and formed a guard over the disturbers until shortly after midnight when Superintendent J. R. Elliott arrived to take charge of the situation.

C. F. Neelands, Deputy Provincial Secretary, declared to-day the situation at the plant was now quite normal. "There is no cause for any concern as far as I have been able to learn and the officials have the situation well in hand. Any trouble which might have arisen is now settled," he said.

COMING WINTER BE SHORT, WET IS PROPHECY OF VETERAN SEER

COLD WAYS IN MARCH

By ERIC GIBBS
Central Press Canadian Writer

WILLIAM RADLEY

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—Umbrella vendors rejoice! Coal dealers gnash your teeth for it's going to be a warm, wet autumn and a short winter, according to William Radley, 73-year-old Toronto weather prophet, whose specialty is long-range forecasting.

For the past four years, Mr. Radley has been making regular forecasts, in March and September, to cover weather conditions for the ensuing six months. With all their isobars, isotherms and anemometers, meteorologists start hedging when they're asked to predict more than 48 hours ahead, but with no instruments but a rusty weather-cock, this 73-year-old seer turns out a long range prophecy every six months and scores a bull's eye most of the time. He didn't do so well on last winter "but that was a mistake in my reading and not in my system," he explains. "I happened to put down the direction of the wind as north-east when it should have been north-west."

For the next six months Mr. Radley has the weather doped out this way: "There will be a long mild autumn and a short winter. There will be about nine thunderstorms. Most trouble will come from the east. Strong winds will occur mostly after the middle of February, and through March. The south-western parts of Ontario will not be much affected by the terrible north-westers."

Covers Wide Territory

While he makes his semi-annual observations right in the back yard of his Toronto home, this forecast will cover a wide area including Montreal, Ottawa, Windsor and Detroit, Mr. Radley maintains. He has it all figured out that his observations in Toronto will give him accurate clues to future weather conditions as far as 150 miles north and a good deal further south. He also claims a pretty wide range on the east and west line. "This'll cover Halifax," he affirms.

Mr. Radley's next observations of the equinoxial winds will be made next March, and he's a little afraid he won't have such good news to give out. All signs indicate, he says, that March will mark the real beginning of winter. "It's going to be plenty cold," he thinks.

Mr. Radley feels so sure his methods are accurate that he doesn't content himself with such meteorological generalities as "fair and warmer" but goes right into details. In October, he says, there will be about 20 mild days. If you're planning picnics avoid the 13th, 18th, 19th, 23rd, 25th, 28th because they will be the coolest days in the month, which will be marked by thunderstorms and much rain.

November temperature will be above the average but there will also be thunderstorms and heavy rain. The coolest dates will be between Nov. 15 and 23.

December will also be warmer than usual, wet and mild with not much snow. However, there will be two cool spells: from the 9th to the 15th and from the 20th to the 27th. Mr. Radley estimates that from now till the end of the year the total snowfall will be no more than eight inches.

January Spring-like

Most of the first 18 days of January will be warmer than usual. Cold days will be the 8th, 13th, 16th, 20th, 29th. There will be much rain, little snow and one thunderstorm during the month.

From the 3rd to the 13th will be the coldest part of February, which will be marked by much rain and strong winds, mostly from the east. Mr. Radley predicts about six inches of snow during the month.

Mr. Radley's forecast only runs up to March 20 because the vernal —spring to you — equinox comes round about that time. He doesn't feel quite sure enough of himself to give any definite dates for weather changes for these first 20 days of March but he doesn't mind admitting things look pretty bad. "Get ready for winter," he warns, adding that thunderstorms are also likely to add to the general pleasantness.

Jubilee Rained Out

Born in London, England, Mr. Radley earned his living for many years as a shoemaker and didn't have more than the average interest in the weather. But in 1897 Queen Victoria's Diamond Jubilee was pretty well spoiled by the rainy weather...and Mr. Radley, a patriotic Englishman, was set to thinking on the whys and wherefores of weather. Intuitively he hit on the idea that the whole thing hinged on the way the winds were at the time of the spring and autumn equinoxes.

So he started watching the winds, jotted down his observations and finally evolved a system of forecasting, which turned out to be remarkably accurate. "I don't quite know myself how my system works. The only think I know is that it works," the seer explains.

In 1911 he came to Canada and for a while didn't do much about his forecasting talent. Years were devoted to raising his nine children but now in the evening of his life, Mr. Radley is again going in for prophecy in a systematic way, and during the past four years many people in all walks of life have come to rely on the information he gives them.

"I just would like to mention as an example," he says, "about a certain society lady, the daughter of a colonel in Toronto, who last April asked me what weather to expect on Saturday, June 2, and also on June 9 as a young people's garden party was to take place then. That is only one of the many requests that I get."

Eager to help the lady stage a successful garden party, Mr. Radley mulled over his notes and finally emerged with the announcement on May 26 that June 5 would be fine for the garden party.

Helps Ladies Plan

He went on to predict that June 9 was a pretty doubtful date for the other garden party as a big thunderstorm was expected about then. Sure enough early on the morning of June 10 the sky was cracked apart by a big electrical storm—another bull's eye for Mr. Radley.

Another case was that of the woman who wanted to go on a little motor trip a year ago last January. She came to Mr. Radley and asked for a weather prophecy. He looked over his notes, checked the winds and declared the signs favored good weather for a while. "I told her 'by all means go as long as you're back by Feb. 2.' She went and had a lovely time," Mr. Radley relates.

Last summer he scored 100 per cent on his prediction. There was snow in April, a light heat wave in May and a torrid spell in July. During the six-month period he prophecied the unusually high total of at least 20 thunderstorms. "People laughed," he says, "but there were actually 32."

Observations for his present forecast were made Sept. 21 and Sept. 25 in the back yard of his home. On Sept. 21 he started his wind watching at 6 a.m. and kept it up until 11. He checked the direction of the winds every three minutes for the first half-hour, every 5 minutes for the next-half hour, every ten minutes for the next hour, every 15 minutes for the third hour and every 30 minutes for the last two hours. On Sept. 25 he observed from noon to 3 p.m. just to check up on his previous readings.

But the system isn't just a question of wathing the weathercock for he explains there are important "undercurrents" of air, indicated by small clouds which he sees wandering about. But despite his success as a weather prophet, Mr. Radley caims no unusual talents or occult gifts. Weather forecasting is his line and he will flatly refuse to read your teacup, your palm or your head.

Weddings

MONTGOMERY—McCAULEY

WARSAW, September 29. — A wedding of interest to many in this community took place on Tuesday afternoon, September 26th, at half-past five o'clock, in the United Church parsonage, when Rev. J. W. Wilkinson, united Mabel Mildred McCauley, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland McCauley, in the holy bonds of matrimony, with Mr. James Irwin Montgomery, of Hastings. The young couple were attended by Miss May Payne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Payne, and Sidney McCauley, brother of the bride.

The bride looked very sweet in her powder-blue dress of flat crepe with brown hat, gloves, and shoes. The bride's maid's dress was canton striped black satin trimmed, with pale green satin shoulder petals, with white gloves, shoes and hat.

The groom's gift to the bridesmaid was a silver salt and pepper set, and to the groom's man, a tie pin.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery and attendants repaired to the home of the bride's parents, where they were received by Mr. and Mrs. McCauley.

A wedding supper was served at which sixteen sat down. The bride's immediate family were present, also the groom's parents and Mr. and Mrs. Johnson of Hastings.

The dining room and tables were lovely with pink and white trimmings, including gladioli and asters.

Later on thirty young people came and there was dancing until about one o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. Montgomery went to Hastings, where they will live.

RECENT RAINS AID PASTURES

Until This Week Pasturage in the Burnbrae District Has Been Poor.

RAPID GROWTH

BURNBRAE, September 29. — Fred Bennett found one of his good dairy cows dead from bloat, and two others in a bad condition this week. This is one evil that has not befallen Burnbrae farmers previously this year.

Not until the last week has there been enough grass to provide even fair pasture for cows, but the abundant moisture supply has given the grass and clover a new lease of life and most farmers here have been able to drop supplementary feeding and let good old Mother Nature handle the feed situation alone for a while. The whole countryside shows a growth seldom seen at this season of the year, and should Jack Frost deign to permit there will be a better supply of feed for winter than once thought possible.

Where the corn was not frozen in August it has made remarkable growth, and full silos will again be the order of the day. Corn cutting and silo filling are holding the stage now and threshermen are finding difficulty in getting work. Buckwheat is not yet yielding as well as expected, as some was damaged by the frost.

Roots and late potatoes are making phenomenal growth lately and taken from all angles the feed situation might be much worse in the Burnbrae district.

TWEED RESIDENT HAS AUTO STOLEN

Mrs. Joseph Markham Has Arm Paralyzed by Bolt of Lightning.

TWEED, Sept. 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—Stephen Hawkins, of Tweed, reported the theft of his 1927 model automobile from Pinnacle Street in Belleville on Thursday afternoon. The theft was the sixth in the recent outbreak of stolen cars, and the fourth car of the same make and year stolen.

Mrs. Joseph Markham was struck by lightning on Thursday and suffered paralysis of her right arm. The woman sought to close a window during an electrical storm, when a bolt of lightning snapped down the chimney, split a cupboard and passed out the window, paralysing her arm.

Maj.-General Leader Drowned In Storm

Word was received by relatives in Norwood of the tragic death by drowning by Major-General Henry Peregrine Leader, who together with a friend, lost his life near Instow, North Devon, England, on Sunday when the yacht in which they were sailing was sunk in a squall.

Deceased, who was an uncle of P. M. Grover, was the son of Lieut. Henry Peregrine and Mrs. Leader, former residents of Westwood, both parents being buried in Westwood cemetery. He attended the local schools for a time and was a graduate of Trinity College School at Port Hope and the Royal Military College at Kingston. From the time he served through the Boer War untill he retired in 1920 he had a colorful military career. Until the end of the last war he was in command of the First Scottish Horse and also served with the forces jin India. He was decorated and mentioned in dispatches on several occasions.

PREMIER SAYS CANADA FIRST TO PROGRESS

Huge Saving Made in Cost of Servicing the Public Debt Pays for Relief.

QUOTES FIGURES.

OTTAWA, Sept. 29 (CP).—Successful marketing of the $250,000,000 refunding loan to be placed on the market by the Dominion Government Monday next, will mean a further saving of $5,000,000 a year in the cost of servicing the public debt, Prime Minister R. B. Bennett stated in a signed announcement made public today.

This is in addition to a $9,000,000 reduction in annual interest charges on debts already refunded. The statement from Mr. Bennett indicated that these savings had enabled the government to meet the extraordinary expenditures involved in unemployment relief without adding to the annual disbursements for interest.

Emphasis was placed by the Prime Minister on business recovery which he said was apparent at the time of the refunding loan a year ago and had continued unchecked, "in happy contrast to conditions in some other countries where a too rapid rise resulted in unfortunate recessions."

Increase In Business.

Figures were quoted to show there had been a 42.8 per cent. increase in the physical volume of business in Canada, 56.9 per cent. increase in industrial production, 29.4 per cent. increase in car loadings, 43.3 per cent. increase in farm product prices, 17.1 per cent. increase in employment, and substantial gains in electric power production and in wholesale prices.

Next Monday night Hon. E. N. Rhodes, Minister of Finance, will speak to the Canadian people on the investment features of the loan and will engage in a trans-Atlantic telephone conversation with the Prime Minister in London. This talk will be heard by radio listeners and will be followed by a message to the Canadian people from the Prime Minister.

was regarded as a unique but lovable character. His speeches, on which he never spent any time in preparation were intermingled with sparkling repartee. For he welcomed interruptions. And he got many, holding the members and the galleries in convulsions of laughter.

The 68-year-old dentist and returned soldier could tell a story well, and one suspected he used this ability to drive home his arguments. He had a high-pitched voice, which seemed to crack at times, and a quaint vocabularly. Yet, his remarks read well in Hansard.

But it was in connection with taunts of Quebec and Maritime Liberal members he had been secretary-treasurer of the Ku-Klux-Klan in Saskatchewan the most humorous incident arose. Holding forth one night in his usual inimitable style, a Liberal member interrupted with an offer of a couple of pairs of pyjamas.

"I wear night shirts," was the swift retort of the doctor, a twinkle in his eyes.

Two days later a box of silk night shirts reached Dr. Cowan as a present from an Ontario manufacturing firm. Laughingly, he exhibited them to his friends, called Conservative and Liberal members alike into his room to view them. "The color is a little gay for an old bird like me, but I'll wear them just the same," he remarked to a newspaperman who knew him well.

OLD AGREEMENT SIGNED IN 1933 ALSO EXTENDED

attached to the grant of the French minimum tariff, for Canadian wheat. Under the Franco-Canadian trade treaty itself, Canada was granted the benefit of the French minimum tariff on wheat subject to Canada ganting concessions to Fench wines and spirits. As these concessions were not made (the Ottawa pacts were partly in the way) France withdrew her minimum tariff last June and Canadian wheat was put on the maximum tarjff.

Hard Wheat For Mixing.

Subsequently Canadian wheat was admitted to France under a temporary system whereby the French miller who exports French flour was entitled to import Canadian hard wheat for mixing purpoes.

The present agreement reverses the wheat clauses of the 1933 arrangement. Under to-day's agreement, the French Government recognizes that if the present system of controlling the entry of wheat into France is so modified as to prevent entry of wheat from Canada, Canada will be free to withdraw her concessions to French liquers and wines.

Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, who speaks most highly of the cordiality of his reception everywhere in France, left for London immediately after signing the statement. He initiated the negotiations while en route to Geneva some weeks ago, and resumed them immediately on his return here during the week.

"Having regard to the present conditions," he told the Canadian Press as he stepped aboard the boat train, "it is in my judgment a very reasonable arrangement. It reveals a spirit of goodwill and earnest effort to accommodate.

"So far as she requires the products we produce, France has shown a desire to assist us in selling on her markets, with equal desire to find a market in Canada for French products."

The agreement was signed for Canada by Prime Minister Bennett and Hon. Philippe Roy, Canadian Minister to France, and for France by Lucien Lamoureaux, Minister of Commerce, and Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister, in the French Foreign Office.

Cordial Atmosphere

After the ceremony M. Barthou said: "The signatures were exchanged in the keen desire to bring the mutual interests of France and Canada into agreement. The ceremony took place in the cordial atmosphere flitting between old friends. M. Lamoureux and myself were happy thus to be able to affirm the loyalty of France to Canadian friendship, just as Premier Bennett on this occasion assured us of the loyalty of Canada to French friendship."

Premier Bennett said he was "very much pleased." He explained that some late questions did arise "but we straightened them out satisfactorily." He added they had worked all day yesterday and until four o'clock in the morning disposing of the final troublesome details. "The new agreement is about as reasonable as could be expected," he said. "The French showed great willingness to do their best for us."

VICTORIA DEANERY AND W.A. HOLD COMBINED MEETING IN OMEMEE

Police Commission Holds Brief Meeting

Business of the Police Commission was dicharged in record time yesterday afternoon when the only item that presented itself was the passing of accounts. Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., presided as chairman of the Commission, and in the unavoidable absence of Mayor Roland Denne, adjourned the meeting itself to the Mayor's place of business. The business of the meeting itself occupied a matter of thirty seconds or so.

The Commission had hoped to welcome Judge Sheldon L. Smoke who automatically becomes a commissioner by virtue of his judicial office. The welcome was deferred to the next meeting of the Commission by reason of the Judge's absence from the city.

MAN RESEMBLES MYSTERY "JOHN"

murder and kidnapping as well as extortion.

Detectives are working from coast to coast and in Germany, where Hauptmann formerly lived.

Hans Kloppenburg, Hauptmann's hunting companion and one of his closest friends, was questioned for five hours in Foley's office yesterday and instructed to return to-day. Several other persons also were interrogated, including some who had received ransom bills in trade. A flurry of excitement over an "arrest" occurred when Federal agents escorted one witness to the office.

Crime Reconstructed

Reconstructing the crime in a statement for the Associated Press, the Mercer County (N.J.) physician said that an autopsy showed a bullet or a blow might have caused the death of the Lindbergh baby. Its body was found in Mercer County, not far from the Lindberghs' Hunterdon County estate.

The official, Dr. Charles H. Mitchell, said the fact might not have been included in a preliminary report, but that it was mentioned in his official statement after the autopsy.

No bullet was found in the battered skull and newspaper representatives started digging in the woods where the body was left. Colonel H. Norman Schwarzkopf, Superintendent of the State Police, evinced little interest.

"The child was kidnapped," Dr. Mitchell theorized, "removed to a home near Hopewell, N.J., kept for a few days with intention of a quick settlement of a ransom, but police activity became so great the kidnappers, fearing detection, killed the child either with a bullet or a blow to the head, hurriedly removed the body to the woods near Hopewell, did not take time to bury it or even to go any great distance in the woods.

"They made a speedy retreat and then, finding that the child was not discovered, opened up negotiations with the family and endeavored to collect a ransom before the child was discovered."

Charges Withdrawn Against Juveniles

Charges against eight juveniles under the Railway Act were yesterday afternoon withdrawn by the prosecutor upon each of the children giving an undertaking not to trespass on railway property in the future, and the parents of the children were ordered to make restitution for goods stolen.

The children appeared before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C., as a result of having been caught recently by C.P.R. police tampering with a sealed box car containing a consignment of bananas in transit. The car on consignment to National Grocers Limited it is alleged was standing on Water street siding, and was broken into by the children and a quantity of bananas stolen.

Mrs. Lenion of Coboconk Succeeds as President Mrs. A. C. Allen Who Resigned.

INSPIRING ADDRESSES

OMEMEE, Sept. 28 (Examiner Correspondence).—For the first time in eleven years the combined meetings of the Women's Auxiliary and Victoria Deanery were held in Christ Church, Omemee, on Wednesday.

The church was beautifully decorated with flowers, fruits and grains. This was the largest deanery meeting held in many years. The session opened with the celebration of Holy Communion, with the Rev. A. T. Weir as celebrant, assisted by the Rev. P. C. Howard of Bobcaygeon. About 170 received the Communion.

Venerable Archdeacon Blagrave of St. John's Church, Peterborough, preached at the Communion service. The speaker chose as his text, "The word of the Lord is quick and powerful and sharper than a two-edged sword." Dr. Blagrave emphasized the fact that the Bible is the written manifestation of God Himself. He mentioned how St. John had referred to our Lord Jesus Christ as the Word made flesh and dwelling among us. To-day our theology must be based on the authority of the scripture.

Large Luncheon

Lunch was served when 205 guests sat down; a like number sitting down to tea.

The afternoon session of the W.A. began at 2 o'clock in the church, while the clergy met in the rectory. Ven. Archdeacon Blagrave again addressed the men on "The Naturalness of Religion," and the Rev. Golding of Lindsay spoke on "Religion in the Modern World." Both these addresses were very interesting and instructive and closely related to each other. The speakers were well received and heartily thanked.

Mrs. Allen in Charge

The W.A. meeting was in charge of the Deanery president, Mrs. W. C. Allen of Millbrook, while guests were welcomed by Mrs. A. T. Weir. Minutes of the last Deanery meeting were read, after which Dr. Brown, medical missionary from St. Paul's Hospital, Howan (this hospital is supported by St. Paul's Church, Toronto), gave a most interesting account of the work there. This was followed by an address by a Toronto Diocesan officer, Mrs. Wagland. She outlined a splendid program for work of teen age girls. Mrs. Ewing of Toronto displayed the Howan model, a lovely piece of interesting work.

After these instructive addresses, reports of the different branches were given, all showing progress, the election of officers for the coming year took place.

Four Years' Service

Mrs. A. C. Allen resigned after four years of faithful service as Deanery president. Mrs. Lenion, wife of the rector at Coboconk, was elected to the office, with Miss Vivian Lough of Ida as vice-president, and Mrs. Robertson of Pefferlon Falls as secretary-treasurer.

The offertory was voted to the Sunday School by Post. This work is carried on in British Columbia and Saskatchewan.

After votes of thanks the rector closed one of the most successful meetings held in many years, with prayer and the Benediction.

Tea was served in the basement, and Canon Marsh of Lindsay thanked the ladies of the parish for their kindness and hospitality, while the Rev. Mr. Howard of Bobcaygeon seconded the motion.

The Deanery meeting closed for another year. A strong note of inspiration and zeal was evident among all.

YOUNG ORATORS IN COMPETITION

Oratorical Contest for Public School Children at Lakefield Brings Out Talent.

Held at Hastings With Mrs.

LAKEFIELD, September 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—The oratorical contest of the Lakefield Public School was held in the Town Hall on Thursday afternoon with a fair attendance of mothers of the pupils and a large crowd of pupils present. The performance was excellent and each year marks a great improvement in th equality of the improvement in the quality of the to Norwood to compete in the Urban School competition held in connection with the Teachers' Convention. Fourteen children took part on Thursday, with the girls very much in the majority—in fact, there was only one little boy. The decision of the judges was announced in the school on Friday morning. The children competed in four groups—juvenile, junior, intermediate, and senior.

In the first group only two little girls entered, and both will go to Norwood. They were Jean Millar and Lilian Calberry.

The junior group had two little girls and the one and only boy. They each gave a most excellent rendition of the tragic tale of the duel between the gingham dog and the calico cat.

In the intermediate class four girls entered the first two named being chosen as winners, but all did exceptionally well. Betty Brown, Virginia Shearer, Muriel Miles, and Gladys Allen were the contestants. The selection was "Hide and Seek."

Five girls entered in the senior group—Mary Blewett, Winifred Blewett, Veronica McFadden, Patricia Wannamaker, and Lois Yale. Their performance in giving the Parting of Marmion and Douglas was a triumph, and it was a very difficult matter to decide the winners, but Mary Blewett and Patricia Wannamaker were chosen.

Frieda Webster will represent the senior girls in the speech making contest, and two others will be chosen to enter the spelling match.

Birthday.

Ethel Millar was the hostess to a little group of girls on Thursday to celebrate her twelfth birthday. The girls spent the evening in games and contests, and had a delightful time. Among those present were: Isabel Davis, Winifred Blewett, Doris Chittick, Pauline Blewett, Betty Lake, Isabel Millar.

1935 CATALOGUES

It is important that you keep in mind, that the various catalogues issued are the actual price lists of the publishers, and that all stamps listed therein, are sold by the publishers, when in stock, at the prices quoted, subject to the various discounts, quoted in the catalogues.

A number of very recent Canadian stamps are priced by Scott, in used condition, at prices which are really surprising considering the prevailing supply and demand. A few comparisons may be of interest and value to the general collector.

Nos. 159 and 172, the $1 stamps of the 1928 and 1930 issues. We find the former quoted at .30 cents, and the latter at 75 cents. If these two prices were transposed, it would be much closer to the mark. The 1928 $1 stamp is not being used at all now, while the $1 of the 1930 issue is in current use, and becoming somewhat more plentiful every week.

The 50-cent Bluenose, 1928, is priced at 30 cents, while the 50-cent Grand Pre, 1930 issue, is down at 25 cents. How these figures are reached is difficult to imagine. The 50-cent Bluenose is always in great demand, and sells wholesale at 20 cents to 25 cents each. The 50-cent Grande Pre can easily be sold at ten or twelve cents to the collector. Yet we find the prices almost the same.

The five cent postal union congress is marked at 3 cents, and the five-cent Royal William at four cents. The five-cent Imperial Conference is down at three cents. If the collector is willing to pay full catalogue value for these stamps, the prices are quite fair but if the old 50 per cent. discount is expected there are going to be a lot of disappointed philatelists.

Fifty-cent Bluenose, one shilling, three pence, just about the same as Scots. Here is a good one, the $1 Parliament building, 1928, marked at nine pence. I believe Gibbons' hold a large stock of these, bought at a favorable price, but that doesn't help the other dealers and the stamps are really quite scarce now. I know of more than one dealer who has already written to Gibbons, ordering quantities of this stamp at their retail price. It looks like a good buy to me.

The 50-cent Grande Pre, 1930, is priced at sixpence, which is just about right. The $1 Mt. Edith Cavell is two shillings, six pence, somewhat high unless at a good discount.

All three of the five-cent stamps mentioned are priced at twopence each, which is fair enough at a small discount on one or two, and the other net.

It is the inconsistency of the prices throughout the entire volume, that has roused the ire of many dealers and collectors since looking through these new catalogues.

Scotts' have apparently attempted to revise their entire system of pricing current and recent issues in mint condition. The old practice was to list the stamps at twice their actual face value; this year we find them at all kinds of prices, for the most part lower.

We find the ten-cent, Parliament Library of 1930 priced at three cents, used, and the ten-cent Cartier, 1931, priced at five cents. The former price is a shade low, and we cannot see how the latter gets by at five cents. A price of two cents would be more reasonable.

FAMOUS QUINTUPLETS ARE GETTING SPOILED

Petting of the Little Dionne Sisters Must Stop Says Dr. Dafoe.

4 MONTHS OLD TO-DAY.

CALLANDER, Ont., Sept. 28. — (CP)—Four months old yesterday, the famous Dionne quintuplets are becoming spoiled, and Dr. A. R. Dafoe says the petting of the amazing little sisters must stop. At the same time he declared all are immeasureably fortified in the race for life than they were even one month ago.

Since their birth last May 28 in the little farmhouse near Callander the infants thrilled the world as they continued to live and gain strength under the tireless supervision of the north country practitioner. There has been setbacks and times of worry—and there may be more to come—but the energetic middle-aged physician was proud to-day as he looked back over the successful struggle over four months.

"The worst time," he said as he prepared to leave for the new little hospital where the babies were moved less than two weeks ago, "was the period immediately after their birth. Their lack of vitality and the poor surroundings, with few if any conveniences to meet the emergency, gave little hope all would survive. It was remarkable the way they got along."

Constant care and attention had its early effect. Under a capable nursing staff, with the addition of more and more comforts and necessities, the babies began to thrive. Then came days when one or the other was not well. Little Marie, the smallest, suffered most of the five from jaundice. Later a tiny growth on her thigh was definitely diagnosed as a nævus tumor and radium treatment was applied by world-renowned specialists. Dr. Dafoe said the tumor now appears "dead."

Trying Experience

Then came a trying experience as one after the other of the little sisters suffered from intestinal toxaemia. To-day they are safely through this trying time, said Dr. Dafoe.

When whooping cough made its appearance in the district, the physician hurried his charges to the newly completed hospital across the road from the farm home. They have shown no signs yet of developing the disease, although the period of incubation, should they have contracted whooping cough, is not past. Dr. Dafoe wants another week to pass before he is relieved of this anxiety.

"They have had so much attention throughout their sickness the little scamps are getting spoiled," said the physician to-day. "We went to them when they cried and we petted and fussed over them. Now that they are better they have learned what their crying trick does.

"Often little Marie, and sometimes Yvonne, leads the yelling and then all join in and whoop things up in great style. Then they stop and listen for footsteps. If they hear none the chorus starts again.

"We have got to do something about it. We are going to be stern again, and the petting must stop."

Only Emilie now seems not quite up to par, the physician said. She has no temperature and is not ill, but in appearance is not quite so "peppy" as the others. Dr. Dafoe thought she would soon be as well as the others.

For a while each day the babies are put in a large basket in the hospital window so they can get the benefits of the sun. If the sun is bright they are kept there only four or five minutes. If the weather is dull they stay there half an hour, kicking, stretching and rolling.

Odette Commends Elora Hotelkeeper

TORONTO, Sept. 29 (C.P.). — Commendation for the action of an Elora hotelkeeper in giving public assurance he would not sell beer to anyone whom relatives thought should not be served, was given today by Edmond C. Odette, Ontario Liquor Control Commissioner.

"He probably wants to conduct his hotel in keeping with provisions of the authority granted him to sell beer," said Mr. Odette, "and personally I think he must be a mighty excellent hotelkeeper."

Mr. Odette said he could not say if civil action might be brought against the proprietor for his refusal to sell, and added, "I suppose he's taking that chance. But they can't come after us." He pointed to provisions under the Liquor Act where persons convicted of driving cars while intoxicated or others receiving relief could be refused sales, and no doubt the action of the Elora hotelkeeper would be considered under this heading.

TAXI TRANSPORT HELD GERMAN ARMY AT MARNE

Gen. Gallieni Given Credit For Saving Paris With Help Of Gangsters.

CABS MOBILIZED.

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN, Central Press Canadian Correspondent.

Meaux-sur-Marne, Sept. 29.—Thirty minutes after leaving Paris by motor car, I stood before the farmhouse wherein General von Kluck, surnamed "the sledge-hammer," had established his headquarters during the battle of the Marne. Thirty minutes! A fast driver could do it in twenty. Yet even before I reached this little town of Meaux, which was the centre of the Marne engagement twenty years ago, a spot was pointed out to me where a patrol of German cyclists had been surprised and killed in September, 1914. That spot was but fifteen miles from Paris! Those Germans, therefore, must have been able to see the Eiffel tower in the distance. If they had held their ears to the ground they must have been able to hear the sustained zooming rumble of the coveted city. I put my ears to the ground and I plainly heard the rumble in the bowels of the earth. So near and yet so far!

How is it, you ask yourself in amazement when you visit the landmarks of the titanic battle which came so near finishing the war, that the Germans could smash their way back to this same spot four years after, that is when they were outnumbered ten to one, how is it that they were brought to a halt here in 1914 by much inferior French and British armies which had been on the run for a month and a half? Why didn't the Germans break through in September, 1914, and sweep the French into Switzerland and the British into the sea as they had planned and had nearly done?

Blunder Saved France

You can read all the war histories on this subject, Petain's version, Von Kluck's version, the Crown Prince's version or Ludendorff's report, and you will obtain no satisfactory answer. But that someone in the German high command blundered that time is positively certain. With the elan the German armies had developed in their tremendous sweep through Belgium and the north of France they were irresistible. An error, one of those errors which change the course of history, brought them to a standstill. It can hardly have been the resistance put up by the French. Even Poincare was so certain of the imminent capture of Paris that he and the whole government had fled to Bordeaux.

How did the German hosts come to be hurled back? I have read all the explanations of the various generals, but since they leave me unsatisfied, I asked my taxi-driver about it. I hastened to add that it is not my habit to pose intricate problems of strategy to taxicab chauffeurs, no more than that I would trust a two-weeks tourist in Germany to give me an account of the economic status of the Reich. But my chauffeur was an extraordinary fellow, who had been specially selected for the job of taking me to the Marne, precisely because he had played a part, albeit a modest part, in the winning of that battle.

"How was it done?" I asked him, when we sat down in Meaux in a cafe looking at the great cathedral across the square.

"Very simple," said M. Jean Vingtier the chauffeur, "very simple, the taxicab drivers of Paris did the job. They and the bus drivers!"

"Tell me about it," I said after he had poured himself a glass of "blanc".

Cabs Mobilized

"Well," he began, "there isn't much to tell really. I was driving my taxi in Paris on September 6, 1914. I belong to the 1878 class. I had not been called yet, and I was doing good business, for all the young chauffeurs had gone to the front. It was lunch-time and I had just finished my meal when I stood outside a restaurant on the Rue de Sevres, reading the afternoon paper. I saw by the paper that our troops were still retreating, that they had retreated as far as Compiegne which isn't so awful far from here, when two policemen came up to me and said: 'Go to your garage right away and stay there until further orders!'

"Tell me," I said, "was there a panic in Paris in those days?"

"Not a bit of it," he replied. "People were thinking of nothing but the holidays."

"But the government had left?"

"Few people knew about that. Day and night the railways were shipping paintings from the museums and churches and boxes with papers from the ministries to Bordeaux. Only the railway men knew about that and they weren't talking.

"Well, as I said," went on M. Vingtier, "I got that order from those 'flics' (cops) and I drove back to the garage. All my colleagues were there, the other drivers I mean. We didn't know what was up. Then the boss came around and told us to stock up with gas and oil for three days. We were then told to go home and wrap ourselves up some food. In an hour's time we were back on the job. Then we drove over to the Boulevard des Invalides and we got our load. I got five soldiers and a sergeant. The sergeant sat next to me on the driver's seat. They wore full fighting equipment. You understand, quite a load. And off we started for this same town of Meaux where we are sitting now.

English Used Busses

"We rode all night!" he continued his story.

"All night?" I asked. "What do you mean all night? It took us but half an hour just now."

"Yes," he said, "I know, but I had a different taxi that time. Moreover, I had a blow-out on all four wheels and I had not a single spare tire. We crawled through the night, you might say. At daybreak we had perhaps gone twelve miles. The soldiers in my cab were fast asleep lying on top of each other and the sergeant next to me was snoring with his mouth wide open. All along the side of the road were taxis that had broken down and soldiers trying to get them going again . . . The English were there, too. They had omnibuses from London, double-deckers, full of soldiers. They were an awful bother, those busses."

"How so?"

"They kept to the left of the road. Appears that is the way they drive in their own country. It must be an awful mess there."

"Depends on what you are used to," I interected. "That's what I say," came back M. Vingtier philosophically, "some people prefer horsemeat to foie de gras and truffles, but to go on with my story . . . we rode along all day."

"The whole day yet?"

Soldiers Never Returned

"Yes, sir, the whole day. Then we halted a piece beyond Meaux and the men got out. They had eaten all my provisions."

"You had nothing to eat all that time?"

"Nothing," he said. "But I don't complain, you understand. After all, I did get back to Paris and they never returned. They were wiped out, the whole division we took over to the Marne was wiped out."

"What division was it?"

"It wasn't a division properly speaking," came back M. Vingtier. "I heard at the time that the men we took to the front were all the ragamuffans of Montmartre, part of them were not due yet to be called, but when it became clear that Paris was in danger, a certain Colonel Petain, who is now marshal of France, acting on the orders of General Gallieni, rounded up all the cutthroats, apaches and garroters of Paris, stuck them into uniform and shipped them off to the front."

"Did you see anything of the Germans then, yourself?"

"Yes, sir, we drove up to a farm house and we could see the Germans walking toward us in a meadow. Our fellows fixed bayonets and ducked into a ditch by the side of the road to take the Germans under fire. But I turned around and drove back to Paris as quickly as I could. I did the return journey in four hours. I had let my meter run, as I had been told to do, and it marked 127 francs when I got back. That was a fortune in 1914. Today it is" . . . M. Vingtier shrugged his shoulders, arched his eyebrows and said: "pouff!"

Gallieni the Hero?

"So you might say," I queried, "that the gangsters really saved Paris?"

"No Gallieni saved Paris!" he came back.

This last observation of my chauffeur is correct. Only a few months ago a stenographic report was found of a telephone conversation which passed between Generals Joffre and Gallieni on the evening of September 7, 1914.

Here is just a snatch of that conversation:

Gallieni: "But why do you delay, Joffre? This is the moment to attack!"

Joffre: "I don't know. I will call you later."

Gallieni: "Don't call me, Joffre, give the order to attack. I implore you, this is our last chance. Their flank is exposed, I tell you. Joffre, do you hear me?"

Joffre: "I will call you later."

The story of the gangsters of Paris stopping the Germans at the Marne is as much of a legend as the fairy-tale about the angel of Mons. But that the division thrown in at the critical moment passed to the attack when the Germans expected the retreat to continue, may well have been a contributing factor in delaying Von Kluck's gigantic manoeuvre long enough to cause it to miscarry. A few more miles, across the Seine, and Paris would have been cut off, while the armies in the east would have been forced into Switzerland.

And that would have been the end of the war . . . in October 1914 . . . as the German high command had figured.

BATTLEFIELDS OF FRANCE

Pierre van Paassen, Central Press Canadian European correspondent, writes a series of four articles on the Battlefields of France.

The writer views these historic scenes of heroism and death in retrospect, describing them as they now are, and as they once were. The first of the series is reproduced on this page. The rest will follow.

Where The German Hordes Were Stopped In 1914

The German horde stopped here on their march to Paris. The scene is the Marne after the first battle in Sept., 1914. Some of the bitterest fighting of the war took place along the river Marne.

of Judge Smoke, who had made a previous appointment.

A second charge against Mr. O'Brien of having obtained an automobile under false pretences was withdrawn, after the major action was concluded. The Crown suggested that it might consider dismissal of the accused on his undertaking not to bring suit for alleged malicious arrest.

"I don't think you should ask me to make a bargain like that," was Mr. O'Brien's reply, and the charge was simply withdrawn.

Mr. Carley's Address

In his address to the Court, Mr. Carley employed several technical points of law before entering upon his main plea. He pointed out, that in substance Mr. O'Brien was accused of the theft of certain monies of the Menzies estate of which he had been appointed administrator.

"Assets of the estate which Mr. O'Brien had received were in the form of cheques on the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of Nova Scotia. Cheques were not money, and the accused had received only control of the estate accounts at these banks. It was not, therefore, proved that Mr. O'Brien had received any monies as administrator. Mr. Carley also said the Crown purported that no money had been paid into court. It should have called evidence to show that the full amount had not been paid. He also pointed out that no question of fraud could be attributed to the accused if he had paid monies directly to beneficiaries instead of into court as directed by the Judge of the Surrogate Court.

Mr. O'Brien's bookkeeper had prepared statements on which some division of estate funds had been made, and leaving out what she thought should be left out, such as the matter of interest. Payment had been made on that basis to Thomas, Fred and William Bradfield, Mr. Carley said, and there was no evidence that they had not been paid.

Assets of the estate had been transferred from the several banks to the trust account kept by the administrator. If he did not keep trust monies separate, there was no criminal liability resulting to the accused, whatever might be said in a civil action. It was foolish of the accused to mix estate money with his own, but it was not a fraudulent thing. Any element of fraud must be conclusively proved.

Mr. Carley admitted that Mr. O'Brien did issue cheques on the trust account, but there was no inference that Menzies monies had been paid to the O'Brien estate. If a man issued cheques on a bank, and is was shown that there were not sufficient funds, that was not a criminal offense. There should be further proof of guilty knowledge. The undertaking by the accused to pay $4,565.62 into court was terminated, counsel said, when two beneficiaries entered suit for distributive shares of the estate. Mr. Carley suggested that no question of guilty knowledge could be drawn from the fact that the money had not been paid as directed and as undertaken. If a man did not pay up within a year he was not criminally liable. It devolved on the Crown to show that he did not have the money with which to pay it.

"No inference can be drawn from the fact that he has not paid the money into court," Mr. Carley said. "There were two appeals before the courts, and the question of their costs would have to be decided before there could be a full accounting, before the accused could know what remained to be paid out."

Review by Judge

Judge Boles complimented Mr. Urquhart on the fairness of the Crowns conduct of the case, and at the same time he complimented Mr. Carley on the resourcefulness he had shown in his defense of Mr. O'Brien. Everything had been done for the accused that counsel could do.

"I do not intend to go into any consideration of the validity of the order made on the audit of the estate affairs on July 30," His Honour proceeded. "But, on the evidence of Mr. Gordon, and the evidence taken on July 25 before Judge McGibbon, I have come to the conclusion that there was an agreement by Mr. O'Brien at that time to the effect that he had to account for the sum of $4,565.62. Two cheques for $913.12 were issued to beneficiaries, but were not paid. There were no funds in the bank to pay them."

Judge Boles said that as administrator of the Menzies estate, Mr. O'Brien did not draw the assets of money from the several banks and carry it in that form to the Bank of Toronto. In the ordinary banking practice the transfer was made by cheques, and in that way the accused made the Bank of Toronto his agent to receive the proceeds of the cheques and to place them to his credit as administrator.

"The main question before me is whether any of that money was fraudulently converted to his own use. We find that Mr. O'Brien had in the Bank of Toronto a trust account and a general account. It has been shown here that other banks have no money to his credit. It has also been shown that cheques were drawn on the trust account for his own purposes. There was for instance the cheque for $500 for expense money to go to Toledo. There were innumerable cheques transferring money from the trust account to the general account, and I think that the only inference to be drawn is that these monies were converted to his own use.

The accused stated in July that he had money on hand to pay the amount agreed upon, and that it was only a matter of a few days before he would make payment into court. I am not concerned about what monies he did pay to heirs. The accused after the consent minutes before Judge McGibbon was given a direction providing for the payment of $4,565.62 into court. That money has not been paid; there is evidence that the accused has no credit at other banks and with the Toronto Savings and Loan Company, and I find him guilty of converting to his own use the sum of $4,565.62."

Counsel's Final Plea

Before sentence was passed, Mr. Carley informed Judge Boles that Mr. O'Brien had practised as a solicitor in Peterborough for seventeen years; eleven years associated with Mr. Gordon, and six years by himself. Until about two years ago the accused had a good reputation in the community for honesty and veracity and ability as a lawyer. Since then there had been an apparent decline somewhat in his mental and moral character, Mr. Carley said, and requested permission to present character evidence.

The evidence of witnesses amplified Mr. Carley's reference to the period of the last two years.

Mr. Carley asked for the Court's consideration of the fact that Mr. O'Brien had been detained in jail for nearly two months, and also to the possibility that he would be debarred by the Law Association, and would have to start life afresh, after all his years of study and practice.

An Unpleasant Duty

"It is a very unpleasant duty I have to perform in fixing sentence on you, O'Brien," His Honor said. "I am sure you appreciate the seriousness of your offence, and any extended remarks by me would be of no benefit to you. It should be taken into consideration that there has been some mental disability during the last year and a half, the period in which the offense was committed. At the same time, having regard to the fact that you are a legal man, that funds were entrusted to your care by persons who felt they could have confidence in you, and also that a gentleman went your bondsman believing in your integrity, that you converted the sum mentioned to your own use, I could impose a penitentiary sentence. Having regard to the fact that you have been in custody nearly two months I am sending you to the Ontario Reformatory. You will have the benefit of good care there."

WOMEN'S INSTITUTE WEEKLY COLUMN

A goodly thing it is to meet
In Friendship's circle bright,
Where nothing stains the pleasure sweet,
Or dims the radiant light
No unkind word our lips shall pass,
No envy sour the mind;
But each shall seek the common weal—
The good of all mankind.

MILLBROOK

"Do something for somebody, if you would experience that elusive something we call Happiness," was the advice given to a group of Institute women, and others, who were spending an evening with a celebrity visiting in this country and incidentally being entertained in one of the homes where W.I. activities bulk large in the life of the hostess.

"I am often asked to give my ideas on the subject of Happiness," the lady said, "so I have tried to arrange them for discussion at the public gatherings, or the little group gatherings such as this, that I am likely to attend this winter."

Conning over the subject I am convinced that the possession of material things is not essential to true happiness. I know this is contrary to popular opinion, and our theatres and golf courses, etc., are kept busy because of the opposite impression. Happiness is something we cannot reach out with both hands and grasp: folk who try that method find themselves empty-handed, and bitterly disappointed. Observation over years of contact with people in this and other countries has made it clear to my mind that everyone wants to be happy, but few know how to secure this blessing.

Dreamers who see visions, and then work to make those visions come true, have a close acquaintance with true happiness that the mere pleasure seeker will never acquire. Duty well done, coupled with love that makes us do our duty beautifully; a worthwhile ambition unselfishly but faithfully pursued; a spirit of interest in, and helpfulness toward others as the rule of our daily living; a heart that can take delight in the simple things of life for that is most like the heart of the Master; and a willingness to serve in a narrow or a wide field as our circumstances permit; these things are a positive insurance and guarantee of our individual happiness.

"Doing what cannot be done is the glory of living," Samuel Armstrong once said, "and I am quite sure that happiness will not be found living with one who nurses a grievance against any other human being. If we cherish it, and gloat over it, it will grow and swell until it assumes an importance far exceeding its original cause.

I want to distinguish between a grief and a grievance, for they are not the same thing at all. The latter is a petty, unworthy thing, and the person, man or woman, who nurses such a guest becomes, in the end, one to be avoided. Women, I believe, are worse offenders than men in this regard, and I have found them in our Women's Institutes more than once, and always they have been like a slow poison undermining the good feeling that should prevail, hurting its good name in the community, and proving a drawback in its activities. They are certainly never happy people.

Probably the root of it all is self-centredness — it really should be labelled just plain old-fashioned selfishness, and the person who is anxious to find a grievance to nurse will never have far to go to find one. I once heard a woman—yes, she was an Institute member—described this way: "She is never happy unless she is ill-used, and then she isn't happy; if she hasn't any legitimate cause for complaint she will fasten upon one that is illegitimate. So her friends and associates might just as well give up trying to please her. And in time they will."

I would suggest this motto: 'Get on with the next thing. If you have finished one enterprise to the best of your ability be eager to start on another. Keep to the front of your mind the idea of service, with self in the background, remembering that happiness is incidental, and not to be chased after and comes to those who strive, not to effect her capture, but to free others from their troubles, burdens and problems."

A lively discussion followed the address, and it was a late hour before the party finally broke up, the guests going home with something new to think about and put into practice—as one of those present put it "in daily living and private thinking."

AUTO HITS TRAIN THREE ARE HURT

COL. JORDAN HONORED.

LINDSAY, Sept. 29. (Examiner Correspondence).—A serious accident occurred at Mariposa station about midnight. Ray Holdershaw, of Blackwater, and Glen Reazin and Miss Bagshaw, of Greenbank, were driving north on the Little Britain-Oakwood highway and failed to notice a train shunting at Mariposa station. The auto crashed into a stone-car which was clearing the crossing. Mr. Holdershaw and Mr. Reazin were taken out of the wreckage and rushed to the Ross Hospital, Lindsay, where it was found that the former was suffering from a broken leg and other injuries. Mr. Reazin suffered severe cuts on the head and hands. Miss Bagshaw escaped with a severe shaking up. The car is a complete wreck. At the time of the accident the young people were on their way to the hospital to see a patient.

The members of the Lindsay bar, town council and police department made a presentation to the retiring magistrate, Col. G. A. Jordan, yesterday morning. Col. R. I. Moore, president of the Law Association, presided and Mr. Jordan was presented with a pipe and humidor of tobacco. Addresses were delivered by Mayor Armstrong, County Attorney Anderson, Magistrate E. A. Gee, Chief of Police Lawler and others.

MAJ. GEN. HARRIS TAKEN BY DEATH

War Time Commander of Brest Succumbs to Pneumonia.

BORN IN WALES.

WASHINGTON, September 29 (C.P.). — Major-General George Herbert Harris, 74, wartime Commander of Brest, is dead. He succumbed last night at Waverly, Maryland, after an attack of pneumonia.

He was credited with being the first United States officer to enter Berlin after the Great War. He went there as chief of the United States Military Mission to Berlin after the Armistice. He maintained homes in Chicago and Washington.

Born in Haverford West, South Wales, he went to Canada when he was 20, and two years later came to Washington. After working in the Government Printing Office and as a newspaperman, Harris became the vice-president of the H. M. Byllesby & Company, Chicago, in 1912. He remained with that firm until about five years ago.

Appointed Brigadier-General in 1917, he won recognition as an engineer and commanded the Port of Brest. Later he handled expatriation of all prisoners of war at Berlin. He was promoted to Major-General, Auxiliary, in 1924. Both the Army and Navy Distinguished Service Medals were conferred on him for his services.

NEVER RETURNED AFTER ROEBUCK HAD HIS FILES

Securities Commissioner Claims Attorney General Shown Him "Calculated Discourtesy."

THREATENS TO QUIT.

Writes to Premier Hepburn Seeking Satisfaction for Lack of Co-operation.

TORONTO, Sept. 29.—(C P) — Premier Mitchell Hepburn today studied charges levelled by Col. George A. Drew, Ontario Securities Commissioner, that copies of letters were missing from his fyles, following use of them by Attorney-General Arthur Roebuck.

Stating efforts to obtain co-operation from the Attorney-General's office had met with "calculated discourtesy," Col. Drew declared he would offer his resignation from the post on the Securities Commission if he was not given a chance to confer with Mr. Roebuck.

The Attorney-General had no authority above the decisions of the Securities Commission, he said.

Manuscript in connection with his refusal to re-engage a man "whom it would be an outrage to permit to sell securities in the Province of Ontario" had not been returned with other letters, stated Col. Drew.

"I cannot further assume responsibility to the public either for my files or for the administration of my office in view of this startling discovery," he wrote.

Among the commission records were some communications of "an extremely confidential nature," he said.

Problems Ahead.

With the advent of the Dominion Securities Act on October 1, at the time of the coming into effect of new provisions of the Securities Exchange Act of the United States, problems of law enforcement would arise, Col. Drew pointed out.

The Securities Act provided a commission under the authority of the securities commissioner with court action only in case of excess of authority, he stated. The clause confirming the independence of the commission was fundamental to the efficiency of the Act.

The Ontario Securities Commission is included with the department of the Attorney-General, for the purpose of allocation of appropriations. The Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission has the same status. In pointing this out, Col. Drew declared this did not make them branches of the Attorney-General's department.

At the present time, co-operation was "deliberately withheld," he charged.

Reports Col. Drew would be relieved of his duties as commissioner were recently described at Attorney - General Roebuck as "merely guesswork." Col. Drew would not discuss the possibility of his being deprived of his position.

The Weather

TORONTO, Sept. 29.— (C.P.)— Synopsis: Pressure is high along the Atlantic coast and over the Northwest States, and relatively low over the region of the Great Lakes and Mississippi Valley, also over Hudson Straits. The weather has been cool with light scattered showers in the western provinces and showers have also occurred in many parts of Ontario and Northern Quebec, while over Southern Quebec and the Maritime Provinces it has been fair with moderate temperatures.

Georgian Bay—Light to moderate, shifting winds; cloudy with light scattered showers. Sunday, moderate to fresh northerly winds; mostly cloudy and a little cooler.

Northern Ontario: Partly cloudy and cool to-night and Sunday.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Moderate winds; cloudy with occasional showers; Sunday, mostly cloudy and a little cooler.

Another Chance

GLASGOW, Scotland, Sept. 29. —(CP)— Thomas Ferguson, 30, was arrested the other day for begging. "I did it," he readily admitted and it was then vouchsafed that for six years not even the whitest lie has passed his lips. He has been in an orphanage that length of time and an official wrote to the court: "He came to the orphanage when he was 14 and not once have I known him to tell a lie."

The court allowed that prison was no place for such a person and freed him upon condition he take a job offered him by a church organization.

CHEESE QUOTA IS WELCOMED

French Market is Opened Up to Cheese, Canned Tomatoes and Porcelain Insulators.

AID TO PETERBOROUGH.

Peterborough industries and farmers in this district may benefit to a considerable degree from the trade agreement, inquiries this morning revealed. Among the commodities produced in this district and affected by the agreement are canoes, porcelain insulators, electrical heating apparatus, apples, cheese and preserved tomatoes.

Canoes have been shipped into France under the French minimum tariff scale for some time in the past, so the agreement will bring no change in the situation, W. A. Richardson of the Peterborough Canoe Company states. However, it constitutes a welcome assurance to the Canadian exporter, for a move to place a prohibitive tariff on canoes has been mooted in France for some time. The tariff has been sought with a view to keeping out German canoes, Mr. Richardson believed, but it would have had the effect also of excluding the Canadian product.

Although the volume of export is not large, a number of canoes manufactured in Peterborough find their way to France each year, Mr. Richardson said.

As Peterborough is in the centre of an important cheese producing district, the quota will have a significance for the local producers. Up to the present, little or no cheese from Canada has gone into France, G. A. Gillespie of Silverwood's Peterborough Dairy states. The export from Canada and this district to the United Kingdom has, for some time, been large, but the French tariff has been unfavorable to the Canadian product in competition with European cheese.

"I should not be surprised if this quota opens an important new market for us," Mr. Gillespie said.

Canada Packers in this city is a producer of preserved tomatoes. G. S. Matthews, manager, reveals that in the past the French market has been practically closed to this commodity. With the granting of a quota, Canada Packers is in a position to benefit extensively, he said. Farmers in this region will share in the benefit as a great volume of the tomatoes canned here are grown in this region.

Producing porcelain insulators and electric heating apparatus, the Canadian General Electric Company has been up against stiff competition from Germany and other European countries in the French market handicapped by heavy tariff. Although the nature of the temporary quota on these products is not yet known it will likely prove advantageous to the local plant. With the opening of the porcelain division in Peterborough two years ago, the Peterborough plant has been responsible for most of the C.G.E. output in that line.

HUMAN BARRIER HALTS VANS REMOVING GRAIN FOR TITHES

Farm Men, Women and Children Dare Drivers to Crush Them

CRY, 'OVER MY BODY'

Ashford—Men, women and children—forming a crowd of 60 people—flung themselves to the ground across a cart track at a Kentish farm as a convoy of lorries thundered towards them. The scene was the climax of a tithe war waged on Beechbrook farm.

The lorries roared down the track. The men and women did not move. The lorries came nearer . . . nearer . . . The ground vibrated. Still the prostrate figures did not rise.

When the drivers saw that the demonstrators were determined, they swung their lorries into a potato field.

Mobile police on motorcycles raced to the scene when the demonstration threatened to develop into a battle royal.

The lorries and their crews were due to collect a field of oats seized for arrears of tithe.

Mobile and foot police guarded the entrance. Police were scattered all over the ground.

News of the seizure was flashed to farmers in the district. They began to pour in in response to the SOS. Some of them came from as far away as Deal.

Bailiffs in Minority

The owner of the farm, R. M. Kedward, stood surrounded by his supporters and called upon the police to stop the bailiffs—among whom was Joe Burgess, ex-heavyweight champion of the Guards.

The superintendent said he could not do so. The bailiffs were in a critical position. Mr. Kedward's sympathizers outnumbered them by five to one. When they went to pitch the sheaves into the lorries, the sheaves fell to pieces. The binder string had been removed from every one. It took 18 men two hours to load 1,600 sheaves.

At last the lorries were ready. The engines were started. They headed down the cart track.

Mr. Kedward himself, the farmers, the farmers' wives, the farmers' children flung themselves to earth in the path of the lorries. "Over my body," cried one, defying the lorries to proceed. The lorries came on.

The human barrier never flinched. The leading lorry driver spun his wheel and swerved into a potato field.

Police Step In

Three other lorries followed it. The crowd rose and ran in front of the lorries, shouting and flinging themselves down again in groups of twos and threes.

Mr. Kedward ran angrily beside the lorries. Among those who dropped down in front of the lorries were a number of holiday makers.

Police intervened and removed the men and women lying on the ground. At the gate there was another obstacle. A farm wagon was drawn across. The police intervened again. Three men were warned for obstruction. At last the four lorries reached the road.

Then began one of the strangest processions ever witnessed in Kent.

Four lorries were guarded by two policemen on motorcycles, one in front and one behind. Following them was a motor-car containing Superintendent Robertson and three police officers.

In the rear of the procession were eight motor-cars containing farmers.

Despite the efforts of the lorry-drivers to shake them off the farmers hung on grimly throughout the 25-mile drive to the Ecclesiastical Commissioners' Farm at Westecourt, Shepherdswell, near Dover.

Only when they arrived at the Ecclesiastical Commissioners' Farm did the farmers give up the chase.

THIRD ENGAGEMENT OFF IN LATE PEER'S FAMILY

Daughter's Marriage to Canadian Was Cancelled—Brother Not to Wed

London.—A third broken romance is revealed in the family of the late Sir Charles Cleveland, who was appointed director of Central Intelligence in the Indian Civil Service in 1910.

The engagement, announced in January last, of Peter Cleveland, only son of Sir Charles and Lady Cleveland, and Miss Peggy Johnson, daughter of John Johnson, of Grosvenor Rd., S.W., has been broken.

"I have no comment to make, except that it is true that my daughter will not now marry Mr. Cleveland," Mr. Johnson said.

Mr. Cleveland's sister, Miss Molly Cleveland, also figured in a broken romance two years ago when, at the last minute, she cancelled her plans to marry Desmond Carew, son of the late Major Richard Carew, of Dublin.

Their engagement was announced in April, 1933, and they were to have had a May wedding at the Savoy chapel. One postponement of the wedding date was announced and then it was revealed that the couple had decided to end their engagement.

In 1930 Miss Cleveland's engagement to R. O. Mackay Turner, a Canadian, was announced, and then cancelled.

RADIO EMITS BARKS TO SCARE BURGLARS

London.—A woman has just paid $250 for a radiophone—to play one record only.

When it is played, a dog's bark is heard, followed by a man's cry of "Who's there?"

The purchaser is a widow, living with an elderly maid in a district which has had epidemics of burglaries.

With her new radiophone loudspeakers will be installed in every room, the radiophone will be connected with "invisible light" alarms across each window, and any would-be thief will get the shock of his life if he tries to enter.

MET IN PARLIAMENT SOCIALISTS TO WED

A. Bevan, M.P., Takes Jennie Lee, Ex-M.P., as Bride

London. — Aneurin Bevan, M.P., is to marry Miss Jennie Lee, ex-M.P. He is 35—she is 29.

They are two of the most striking figures in the Socialist party of Great Britain.

They are similar in temperament and experience, both miners' children and both fiery and passionate speakers.

It is a true romance of the House of Commons, for it was in the corridors of that place that they first met in 1922.

"POISON-PEN" LETTER RESULTS IN SUICIDE

Police Seek Author of Missives After Death of Young Man

Ermington. — Devon police have been asked to hunt down the writer of "poison-pen" letters which have been plaguing the people of this beautiful riverside village for the past 12 months, and which recently helped to drive a young naval stoker to suicide.

With unfailing regularity a number of villagers continue to receive these anonymous and scurrilous missives.

The young stoker was stated to be a happy-go-lucky man, and was about to be married, but shortly before his death he had been upset by an unsigned letter posted in Ermington.

Gardner Hogg, landlord of the New Inn, has received two of the "poison-pen" letters. One, which he has handed to the police, states:

"I think it would be much better if you and your so-called friends were out on Dartmoor instead of living with respectable people, making a nice village a living hell."

"The two letters were in different handwriting," Mr. Hogg stated, "both unsigned, which leads me to think that more than one person is responsible for the upset."

A young man employed at a shop in the village has been sent half a dozen postcards bearing vulgar messages.

All were postmarked "Ermington," and were clumsily written in pencil, and one had been addressed to the young man and placed in an envelope addressed to his employer.

PNEUMONIA KILLS WOULD-BE SUICIDE

Four Attempts to End Life Fail But Illness Fatal

London.—Sarah Bocciun, aged 34, jumped out of the window at three separate hospitals.

She was taken to the Shenley hospital and there she tried to kill herself by rolling out of bed. She was recovering from her injuries but died from pneumonia.

A verdict of "suicide while of unsound mind" was returned at the inquest.

RADIOS IN BRITAIN

London. — More than 25,000 new listeners took out radio licenses in May last, according to an announcement of the postmaster-general, Sir Kingsley Wood, who stated that this brought the total number United Kingdom radio listeners up to 6,339,960 on May 31.

REAL POLITICAL HAT

Des Moines, Ia.—A political hat is more than a mere phrase at Grundy Centre and Clarinda, small Iowa cities. At both, Republican nominees were selected by placing two names in a hat and drawing to decide the winner after a tie in the primary vote.

'MIND-READER' LOCATES BODY OF A SLAIN GIRL

Shown Photo, "Telepath" Wanders Through City, Halting Near Corpse

Amsterdam.—After walking for several miles in the Jewish district of Amsterdam, a mind-reader, called in by police to trace a missing girl, halted in front of a banana warehouse.

Police went inside and after a long search found the girl lying dead in a banana crate in a lonely attic.

The girl, eight-year-old Sonja Beaugeltasch, vanished on her way to school.

The mind-reader or "telepath" was shown her photograph, and he walked about the city hoping to see a person he could associate with her disappearance.

When he reached the banana warehouse, he stopped saying he could go no farther.

A young warehouseman has been arrested and, though he denies having anything to do with the crime, thousands of Jews gathered round the car in which he was taken away, threatening to lynch him.

To save the man, police fired several shots into the air. F. W. H. Myers, who invented the word "telepathy," described it as "the communication of impressions of any kind from one mind to another, independent of recognized channels of sense."

He never insisted that both of the minds should be the minds of living persons.

TRAVELS 12,000 MILES TO ANSWER SUMMONS

Australian Wins Dismissal in English Court Action

Bristol.—William Taylor, who emigrated to Australia twenty years ago, made the return voyage of nearly 12,000 miles to answer a summons for maintenance issued against him by his wife.

The summons was dismissed in the Bristol police court after his solicitor, F. C. Counsell, had pleaded that as Taylor's alleged wife had previously married, her union with him was not valid.

"The double journey has cost me $1,500," Mr. Taylor said, "but it has been worth it to satisfy myself about this summons and to be free. "Nothing could be done about it in Australia, and I had the alternatives of months in prison, making the payments, or coming over here and settling the matter. I decided to sail back to Bristol as quickly as I could after I had seen a solicitor in Brisbane, where I live. I married in 1912, and although she booked to go to Australia with me twenty years ago, she finally refused to do so."

LOOSELY CUT COATS OVER TIGHT SKIRTS

Featured in Collection Shown By Marcel Rochas

Paris.—Half length and three-quarter coats, loosely cut over tight-fitting skirts distinguished the collection shown by Marcel Rochas. Another new note was the utilization of striped, brilliantly colored contrasting woollen linings to the coats to match the blouses. Thus a red and mauve woollen mixture ensemble was lined in mauve, with the blouse to match.

Many of the coats were cut along the Russian Cossack style, with the sweeping bell skirt. One such model was trimmed in astrakhan with red bands. Bands of astrakhan hung in loops under the armholes. Fur was used in many startling ways, as in one black ensemble. The pockets were of leopard fur. The waist underneath had a leopard fur front and standup collar. The back and the close-fitting sleeves were in black satin. Another red coat had wings of leopard over the armholes.

"WE'RE ALL READY, DADDY"

Wonder what's delaying the father of this little girl? Perhaps she's looking for his hunting hat which she has taken possession of. "Daddy" is a member of a Hett's pack and is season's puppies which are close companions of his child.

BRITISH EXPEDITION CUT OFF BEHIND GLACIER IN ARCTIC

Short of Food, One Member Injured, Explorers Climb to Safety

ICE FORMS BRIDGE

Spitsbergen.—Evelyn Waugh, the British novelist, was almost cut off from land amid the ice during an expedition, organised by A. R. Glen.

Hon. Hugh Lygon, son of Earl Beauchamp, was the third in the party.

They had to climb a glacier first.

"We were constantly wet and tired for 12 hours a day," Mr. Waugh said. "Near the coast of Wilde Bay we expected to find one of the huts left by trappers who work here in the winter and hoped to explore the neighboring glaciers from there. At the foot of the glacier we had crossed we found the bed of a river, split up into seven or eight little streams, which we crossed, carrying on our backs our food and bedding, and oil with which to boil water for our pemmican. These were deposited, but when we got back to the river, instead of small streams we found a raging torrent. We were cut off. In one of our attempts to recross Mr. Lygon seriously hurt his knee, and this held us up for two days."

The expedition ran short of food which necessitated haste in returning to the base. To do this the members had again to climb the glacier, this time improperly equipped, wearing ordinary boots and carrying their bedding.

"We had hoped that the river on the other side of the glacier would be passable; we were disappointed," said Mr. Waugh. "We found that two great chunks of ice, hurled down the river, had wedged together in the middle, forming a bridge, and over this we climbed to the other side and safety."

70 COPS GUARD BAILIFFS

Stowmarket. — Seventy policemen surrounded Woodlands Farm, Ringshall, near here to-day while men carried out a tithe raid.

DYING MAN THINKS ONLY OF OMNIBUS

Port Talbot, Glamorgan.—An omnibus driver's last thoughts for his omnibus were described at an inquest on Isaac Milton Evans.

Evidence was given that, while lying in a pit underneath his vehicle, his clothes caught fire. On his way to the hospital he kept repeating, "What will become of my omnibus?" Verdict: "Accidental death."

ONE OATH AND A FINE FOR EACH OF 14 COWS

Farmer Absent, So Constable Describes Movements of Each Animal

Kenton.—The absence of a farmer who was summoned for allowing 14 cows to stray, led to curious procedure at Wealdstone police court.

The police had issued a summons in respect of each cow, and as the defendant, Angus Keen, of High St., Edgware, did not appear it was impossible to take all the cases together.

The clerk ruled that the constable should take the oath fourteen times and tell all he knew about each cow.

The officer had read the oath card six or seven times when the clerk intervened with, "Just one moment. One oath per cow, please."

After again taking the oath, the constable described finding one cow on the highway.

"Fined five shillings," said the chairman.

Again the constable took the oath. "And you found a similar cow in similar circumstances?" said the clerk.

"Yes," answered the constable.

"Fined five shillings," said the chairman.

And with a sergeant keeping a careful check on the constable's oath, taking the evidence was repeated 14 times.

CANADIAN WENT 3,000 MILES TO SEE EMPIRE'S "BIG BEN"

Viewed Nelson's Column, Too Then Smoked Rest of Day

READY TO RETURN

London.—One hundred of the 150 Canadians—the there-and-back one-day-in-London trippers—decided that one day was not enough.

This big party—employees of the Canadian Pacific Railway—crossed the Atlantic (some travelling thousands of miles by train from various parts of Canada) with the intention of spending just one day in the home capital.

But the enchantments of London were too much for the 100, and they stayed over for a few days.

In Rotten Row

The party saw the sights in the west end and the city. They were much impressed by Rotton Row: "Oh, gee!" they cried, "get your nags out and put your chaps on."

The west end shops! But alas! these nearly broke the women's hearts—because not one hour had been allotted to shopping.

The parks: "With all our land we've nothing like Hyde Park in our cities," said a man from Toronto.

He saw Nelson's column. Then, making a thorough day of it, he took a bus down Whitehall and saw Big Ben.

Then he returned to his hotel and, while his friends made a lightning tour of the metropolis, he sat on the steps and smoked his pipe.

Mr. Dunn travelled 3,000 miles and spent $125 in fares to have his hectic day.

Among the sightseers was paralyzed Mrs. Kenward, from Kamloops, B.C., who was "the life of the party." She never missed a meal, or a salt bath, or a jollification, though she had to crawl up and down stairs on hands and knees.

TWINS SO MUCH ALIKE HAD DIFFERENT GLASSES

Clients Identified Partners by the Color of Their Spectacles

London.—Death has broken one of the most picturesque partnerships in London. John Samuel Oliver, one of the celebrated Fleet St. twins, is dead, aged 77.

Mr. Oliver and his twin brother, William James, were partners in a printing business in New St. Hill, E.C., to which they moved from their original works in Gunpowder alley. Their partnership began in 1870.

The brothers were born "under the dome of St. Paul's" in Doctor's Commons, and never lived outside the "square mile" of the city.

In private life, as in business, they were inseparable, both remaining bachelors and living together with their mother until her death at the age of 102 five years ago. To Mrs. Oliver, who was mourned as "the mother of Fleet St.," the brothers were always "the boys."

It was difficult to tell them apart. Their short, sturdy figures, white hair, and moustaches were so alike that for purposes of business they found it necessary to wear eyeglasses of different color so that clients could distinguish them.

The brothers celebrated their 74th birthday by buying a sports type motor car in which to run around the city on business.

CLAMP DOWN ON AUTOISTS

Denver.—Government figures showing that Denver had the third highest automobile death rate in the nation last year led to the assignment of 16 patrolmen to solo motorcycle duty in an effort to reduce accidents. They were ordered to "clamp down" on violators of city traffic ordinances.

SUCCEEDS GLOOMY DEAN

London.—Dr. Walter Robert Matthews, Dean of Exeter, who is to succeed Dr. Inge, widely known as "the gloomy dean," as dean of St. Paul's cathedral, London, was for many years on the theological staff of King's College, London.

DIGGING WORKMEN LOCATE SKELETONS

"Plague Pit" or Old Burial Ground Unearthed

London. — Scores of skeletons of Londoners of a bygone age have been unearthed in the last few days during building excavations, twenty feet deep at Guy's hospital, near London Bridge.

Workmen busy digging out the foundations for the new block of private paying wards donated by Lord Nuffield are finding more bones and skulls each day. It is said that 200 skeletons have already been found.

Two theories are put forward to explain the presence of so many skeletons in such a restricted area.

It is either an old plague pit in which some of the thousands who died in the great 1665 epidemic were hurriedly buried or it is an old, forgotten burial ground.

QUADRUPLETS' MOTHER GETS VERY LITTLE AID

She Would Work to Assist Sick Husband—Envies Mrs. Dionne

Birmingham. — Mrs. Ivy Beatrice Hitchins, who gave birth to quadruplets a few months ago, gazed with tear-stained face at a picture of the Canadian "quins."

"I wish Mrs. Dionne all the happiness she deserves," said the young mother—she is only 23—"I hope she has better luck than I have had. But I do envy her."

Fate has been unkind to this young woman, who, when the quadruplets came, was snowed under with telegrams and messages of congratulation from all over the world.

When she read of the Canadian government's interest in Mrs. Dionne's babies—the hospital being built for them, and everything else—and compared it with her own plight, tears welled in her eyes.

One of Mrs. Hitchins' babies lived only a few days. She received the King's bounty and the Birmingham Welfare Association allowed her three boxes of baby food each week, but there official interest stopped.

Mrs. Hitchins has often deprived herself of necessities so that the babies should not go short.

Then a few weeks ago, Phyllis, her three-year-old daughter, became ill and needed attention which the mother, her hands full with the three babies, could ill spare her.

The crowning blow came when Mr. Hitchins collapsed and was rushed in an ambulance to a Birmingham hospital, where a serious operation was performed on his throat.

"It is terrible," Mrs. Hitchins said. "He will get only 15s. sick pay now, and the rent of the house is 15s. I don't know how we can live.

"Perhaps," she suggested hopefully, "I could get work at some place where they would not mind me taking my babies with me. I used to work at French polishing before I got married. I am a good French polisher—and the babies are really not very much trouble."

SLIPS FROM 'PLANE BUT LANDS SAFELY

Pilotless Airship Misses Falling Man by Inches

Southampton. — K. T. Murray of Costa Rica, South America, was practising aerobatics over Hamble in a machine owned by a flying school. He was attempting a slow roll 2,000 feet up.

Suddenly he felt himself slipping from his seat in the cockpit. Next moment he was plunging down.

A parachute was on his back. He felt for the ripcord as he turned and twisted head down in his fall.

He pulled. The parachute opened and righted him.

But he was not clear of danger.

The pilotless aeroplane, circling wildly with wide-open throttle, came zooming towards him. . . . It missed by inches.

Mr. Murray floated gently earthward and made — to use his own words—"a lovely landing."

"The aeroplane," said an eye-witness, "burst like a bomb as it struck the ground two miles away."

IGNORANT OF GIRL'S DECISION RIVALS FIGHT BELOW WATER

Divers Both Die Before Letters Arrive Turning Them Down

DUEL ON SEA-BED

St. Malo.—On the sea-bed, fathoms deep off the coast of Newfoundland, two divers fought to the death for the love of an English girl.

This spot, beneath the Brittany cod fishing fleet, must be the strangest duelling ground ever known.

The two divers, Jean Ledoux and Pierre Breacht, were rivals for the affections of Miss Ellen Taylor, a young English girl employed as nursemaid by an English family in St. Malo.

Just before the two men set sail for the cod-fishing banks of Newfoundland, Miss Taylor promised to make her choice between them when they returned.

On the voyage out, there were frequent quarrels between the rivals. While in Newfoundland, both volunteered for salvage work on a tramp steamer sunk there. On the deck, many feet below the surface, the animosity of the two seems to have taken a new lease of life, and Ledoux attacked Breacht, trying to sever the air tube attached to his diving suit.

In grim struggle, the air tubes of both men were damaged so badly that they became useless.

Sensing that something was wrong, the comrades of the two men pulled them both to the surface. Ledoux was dead. Breacht lived only long enough to tell this story.

He and Ledoux had a heated quarrel the night before, and Ledoux told him that one or the other would not ascend alive from the wreck. When they were beneath the waves, Ledoux attacked him with a hatchet.

By the irony of fate, Miss Taylor had decided that neither of the men appealed to her as a life partner, and had decided to resume a friendship with a suitor from her native Derbyshire village.

She had written to both men to this effect, but the letters had not reached them before the duel.

RUNS INTO PORPOISES DURING CHANNEL SWIM

Calais. — The greatest feat in the history of Channel swimming was accomplished by E. H. Temme, a 30-year-old London insurance clerk, who broke all previous records for the England to France swim by crossing in 15 hours 54 min., and also achieved the distinction of being the first person to swim the Channel both ways.

Three miles from the French coast Mr. Temme encountered a school of porpoises. They circled round him and dived under him. It was feared they might launch an attack, but after five minutes of anxiety they swam away.

It was very dark towards the end of the swim, and apart from the periodical flash from a lighthouse, the only lights visible were from the torches and lanterns used to guide the swimmer.

BRIDE-TO-BE DIES OF BROKEN HEART

After Waiting 20 Years, Girl Learns Lover Has Wed Another

Paris.—The bells that should have rung a merry peal for the wedding of Mlle. Germaine Huet have just tolled her funeral knell.

For 20 years she waited for her English lover, only to learn recently that it had been in vain and that the man to whom she had given her heart had married another woman.

For all these years Mlle. Huet had resisted the entreaties of a millionaire suitor, who was backed by her parents, and the shattering of her hopes killed her.

Here is stated to be the first authenticated French case of death from a broken heart, for doctors have found no other cause of death.

"I die happy—happy in the knowledge that you are happy," she wrote in a last note that was handed to her lover when, with his bride, he landed at Marseilles from New Zealand.

Early in the war he had met Mlle. Huet, and they became engaged. Afterwards, he went to Australia to win fortune, and his sweetheart promised to wait for him.

She waited 20 years, and then came a letter from her lover telling her that he had at last won fortune. He had married a woman of wealth!

TOLD DAYS NUMBERED PRIEST HASTENS HOME

Goes by Air to His Beloved France

St. Helier, Jersey.—Pere Vittrant, a member of the Jesuit college, determined to end his days in his native France, made his first—and probably his last—flight from Jersey to Paris.

The priest had been told by his doctor that he had only a short while to live. His home is near Paris, but afraid that he would not stand the journey by sea and rail, he travelled to Paris by the Jersey Airways Paris service.

Several priests helped him down the steps to the sands which serve as a temporary aerodrome. As they lifted him into the machine his colleagues bade him farewell. Pere Vittrant, it is stated, withstood the air journey well.

116 A.D. NEWS IN STONE

Rome.—Fragments of the ancient Roman "Official Gazette," marble slabs on which the news of the day was chiselled for exhibition in temples or public buildings, have been unearthed at Ostia, 15 miles from Rome. One of the slabs refers to incidents in the year 116 A.D.

GIRL, 13, SEES PARIS AS SHE HAD DREAMED

Found, She Decides to "Live Her Life" at Home

Paris. — Thirteen-year-old Ginette Barbedaux, who ran away from home to "live her own life," is back at the family hostile again, her escapade forgiven in the joy of having her back.

With the 800 francs she "borrowed" from the family till, the girl hopped into a taxi for the land of her dreams.

And a Ginette stepped out in front of a little hotel in the Place du Tertre. She told the proprietor that her grandmother was coming from Chantilly in a few days and that she would take a room and pay in advance. And she signed the register with the name of one of her school chums and put her age down as fifteen.

Ginette made friends with the "remme de chambre" of the hotel and that night they both went to a movie. The next day Ginette bought a dream assorted, paper-backed "penny dreadfuls" and love stories and settled in her room for a feast of reading. She was living her own life at last.

Search Was on

Then the proprietor of the hotel picked up his "Paris-Soir" and there was Ginette on the front page. He called up the family, he called up the police, he called up the newspapers. In a few minutes there was an unusually lively gathering in the Place du Tertre and tourists sipping drinks on the gay terraces craned their necks and wondered what it was all about.

Everybody was there—except Ginette. She had found a boy friend. They were taking a walk, the proprietor said. He assured the agonized parents that the boy friend appeared to be "quite the right sort."

Papa Barbedaux went out searching for his daughter and found her and the friend on the steps that lead up to the Place Saint-Pierre, in front of Sacre-Coeur.

Ginette was a grand lady. Her hair was blonde (it used to be chestnut); she had a brand new coat with the price tag still on it. She had gay red slippers and new stockings. And her finger-nails were redder than the colored awnings in the Place du Tertre.

The whole family, sisters and brothers and in-laws, and policemen, the boy friend and the hotel folk marched to the police station and there Ginette sobbingly told her story.

Everyone was forgiven, including the boy friend, he admitted taking Ginette to the movies and kissing her once or twice. Everybody cried, including the policemen and the porters, and Ginette, who said: "I'll live my life at home from now on."

SPEEDOMETER TATTLES

What It Told Leads to Divorce Proceedings

Seattle, Wash. — A speedometer tattled on Mrs. Elmer G. Green and now both she and her husband have started divorce proceedings.

Green, a chiropractor, told Superior Judge Malcolm Douglas that he checked the speedometer of the car in which his pretty young wife had gone to a dance. He said that the tell-tale mileage showed she had travelled 26 miles. It was only six miles to the dance and back.

Mrs. Green indignantly denies driving that far and asks custody of their small son in a cross-complaint.

FALSEHOOD NORMAL IN TOTS, IT IS HELD

If Curbed May Kill Imagination Educationist Says

London.—It is perfectly normal for children between three and five to tell lies, and to punish them only discourages the habit. This statement was made by Dr. Susan Isaacs, head of the department of child development at the Institute of Education. She was commenting on Dr. Jane Mawthorn's defence at the New Health Society's summer school at Malvern of the child who tells lies.

"The actual image in the small child's mind is so vivid that often he believes that what he imagines is true," said Dr. Isaacs. "It is fatal to punish him, for you thereby kill whatever artistic expression toward which he is reaching. Just let him see that you know it is a story he is telling.

"Parents are not always truthful, either. One of the fundamental things in bringing up children is always to tell the truth. Then your children will never tell lies."

The tea, sale of fancy articles and exhibition of fancy work which was held yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Home and School Council of the city in the showrooms of the Comstock Store on George street, was extremely successful. Many ladies attended the exhibition and stayed for a cup of tea at small individual white-clothed tables centered by flowers. The handsome showrooms and their comfortable, luxurious fittings made an attractive setting for the affair, and the display of fancy work added a colorful touch. The showing was varied and contained many lovely pieces of handiwork. Prizes were awarded in four sections, and the judge, Miss Cathleen McCarthy of The Examiner, had great difficulty in choosing awards for first places. Dainty prizes, which included a mesh bag, a kitchen condiment set, a china sugar and creamer, and an embroidered organdie boudoir cushion, were presented by the president of the Council, Mrs. E. Wand, to the following ladies: Mrs. Roy Pilling of King George street (a member of the Confederation Home and School Association), for a tablecloth deeply edged with crochet in a dragon-fly pattern; Mrs. Chas. E. Curtis of Aylmer street (a member of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association), for a pair of embroidered pillow-cases; Mrs. J. Mackness of Princess street (a member of the King Edward Home and School Association), for a woollen afghan and cushion; Mrs. W. R. Parnell of Rubidge street (a member of the Prince of Wales Home and School Association), for a baby's pink coat and bonnet. The exhibition, which was confined to members of the various Home and School Associations of the city, and to work made in the past year, was beautiful. The delicate embroideries, crocheted pieces, the woollen things, which included a finely-executed woman's suit of blue, and many handsome rugs, the knitted blouses and dainty accessories for seniors and juniors alike, and novelties in a stitched sampler and boudoir dolls, were all examples of fine and careful handicraft. A display of quilts was also on view, but these were not entered for competition. Later in the season, a contest for quilts will be held all over Canada, under auspices of the Home and School Federation, and the local Home and School Council will enter in this event. A sale of aprons was another cheerful addition to the afternoon's program. This was in charge of Mrs. George Cunningham and Mrs. Jas. Kingsbury, assisted by Mrs. J. Wyllie. A guessing contest was conducted also by Mrs. Cunningham, the lucky guesser of the number of beans in a glass jar having the right to claim an exquisite shell-pink nightingale made and donated by Mrs. E. Wand. On sale also were novelties made by Mrs. E. T. Monk, dainty colored-paper boudoir dolls, little platinum-haired dollies with knitted dresses, whose round heads were pierced to allow of them being used as powder boxes, and a number of rice-paper roses which were beautifully tinted and created much admiring comment. The general committee in charge of arrangements was comprised of the following ladies: Mrs. E. T. Monk, who was also convenor of the Handicraft committee in charge of the exhibit, Mrs. J. Kingsbury, Mrs. J. L. Hughes and Mrs. G. Cunningham. Tea was poured by Mrs. J. L. Hughes and Mrs. E. T. Monk, assisted by ladies representing the various Home and School Associations of the city: Mesdames G. Spicer, J. Milby, R. King, A. Brisco, W. Carter, E. Frost, W. R. Parnell, J. W. Hales, G. Groombridge, J. Sadler, J. E. Middleton, E. R. Shirley, Jones, S. G. Gillespie, J. O. Fife. Mrs. T. Hendry acted as treasurer. The table was very tastefully arranged with a cloth of Scotch Cluny lace, a central circular mirror plateau holding a silver basket filled with zinnias and dahlias in Autumn tints, and two tall orange tapers in junior silver holders. Items in the decorative scheme of the exhibit of fancy work were some gorgeous large bronze dahlias from the gardens of Mr. E. Wand. The pink nightingale given as a prize in the guessing contest was won by Mrs. A. M. Weldon, with a guess of 575 beans, the nearest to the correct number, 663.

The Senior Rally at the Y.W.C.A. last night marked the opening of Gymnasium Classes, Club Activities and Education Classes. The rally took the nature of a big Gymnasium Party and the evening commenced with a grand march, followed by exercises and games. Races and contests added interest and fun to the program. WHAT'S THE PROFITABLE BIDDING LIMIT?

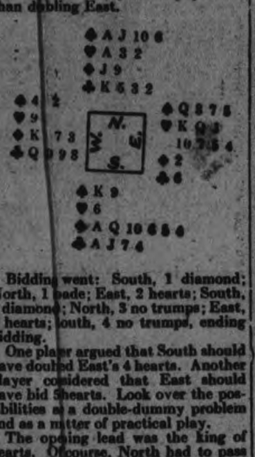
How high to bid before doubling opponents is an important question repeatedly arising, just as it did with the players of the hand today. Neither side was vulnerable. Both North and East were anxious to be the declarer. Two members of the Whist Club ask how high North may bid to pay better than doubling East.



Bidding went: South, 1 diamond; North, 1 spade; East, 2 hearts; South, 3 diamonds; North, 3 no trumps; East, 4 hearts; South, 4 no trumps, ending bidding.

One player argued that South should have doubled East's 4 hearts. Another player considered that East should have bid 5 hearts. Look over the possibilities as a double-dummy problem and as a matter of practical play.

The opening lead was the king of hearts. Of course, North had to pass the trick, to try to run West out of the suit before timing the trick. The queen of hearts followed. West had played the 8 and 9on the two tricks to date, but North had bid 4-odd, and he did not intend to take a chance that West held the 10 of the suit. The 10 of hearts followed. Dummy had discarded its two lowest clubs. West let go his lowest spade on this third lead of hearts. North was it with his ace.

The declarer led his jack of diamonds. When that held he led his 9. East let go his lowest heart. Dummy's 10 overtook the 9. West won the third and last trick for his side.

Really it made no difference what West led back. Five tricks had been played, of which the declarer had won 2. North and South must win the remaining 8 tricks with the ace and king of spades, the ace and king of clubs and the 4 good diamonds remaining in dummy. The declarer won his 4-odd, with a minimum risk. As a matter of practical play nobody would have tried to win an added trick, as West might have held 3 hearts.

As a double-dummy problem North might have made 5-odd. Win the second lead of hearts. Lead a small spade. Win with dummy's 9, unless the queen is played. Lead the king of spades. Win with declarer's king of clubs. Lead the ace of spades. He has won 5 of the 6 tricks played. He will lead his diamonds, as he did in actual play, giving West the king of that suit. That will be the second and last trick lost. Dummy's good diamonds and the ace of clubs must win the remaining tricks, giving North 5-odd, by abnormal strategy. Before Monday look over the hand to see what doubles of 4 hearts and 5 hearts would have yielded in penalties.

Your Health

By Dr. Logan Clendening

Medical men are frequently asked "When are you going to find something out about cancer?" The inference being that we know nothing whatever about it.

What is meant by such a question—the germ of truth that it contains—is that we are not certain of the cause of cancer, and we have no certain means of curing every cancer, no matter what stage it is in.

Contrary to such haphazard opinion, we know a great deal about cancer. It can be classified with a number of other similar conditions called neoplasms, or new growths. In all of these the cells of the particular tissue or organ involved begin to increase in number at some localized spot. Thus we can have these growths begin in fibrous tissue, in which case they are called fibroids; or in bone tissue, in which case is called an osteoma.

Cancer develops in epithelial tissues—skin, glandular tissue, etc. The cells pile up for a long time in quite a localized spot, and only when the condition is neglected do they spread so far as to be out of control. On account of their predilection for epithelial tissues, the skin, the lips, the breast and the mouth of the womb are the most frequent locations for cancer, and here modern methods of treatment have the best opportunity of preventing serious consequences by removing the growth early.

While there are frequent reports of finding some germ as the cause of cancer, there is no evidence at present that such is the case, and indeed every feature would indicate that cancer is not a contagious or infectious disease.

Certainly no serum or injection having as its aim the destruction of the germ or neutralization of the toxins of cancer, has been successful. The colloidal preparations of the heavy metals, such as gold and lead, act on a different theory. The metals have an affinity for the cancer cells, and by uniting, destroy them.

Being a local cell growth, the cure of cancer depends upon the complete removal of the outlaw cells in an early stage. This is best done by surgery, and by radio-activity (X-ray and radium). Radio-active substances destroy certain kinds of cells more readily than others—lymphatic cells, glandular cells and young cells. As these are the very cells involved in cancer, the value of radio-activity is obvious. The ideal treatment is surgery followed (and sometimes preceded) by radio-activity.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. F. H.: "Will you advise me what causes 'growling' in the stomach? These loud noises are extremely embarrassing at times."

Answer: Some people are more subject to borborygmi than others. The embarrassment is the most serious consequence of the condition and really increases it, as the noises are due to nervous movements of the stomach and intestines. Baking soda (sodium bicarbonate) will often give relief—half a teaspoonful in hot water, sipped.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Grandmother cooky jar is one of the pleasant things to remember when persons are adults. They can picture it and almost taste again its savory contents. Such jars seem to have become by-gones today, but children enjoy cookies now as much as then. Also rich cookies baked to a delicate brown are delicacies to serve with afternoon tea, or in the evening with fruit punches, or with ice cream at night or for desserts. Of course these latter cookies must be as rich as cake, even richer, and be thin as wafers. Children's cookies should be plain and wholesome.

* * * * * * *

One reason why cookies went out of style was that homemakers disliked the tediousness of rolling out the dough. Today the ice-box cookies relieve this task. The dough is made into a roll like a roll of butter. It is then put into the refrigerator until icy cold. Then it is put on a floured board, and the dough is shaved off with a sharp knife and baked in a hot oven to make delectable cookies. Or the dough can be pressed into an oblong bread tin, and the cookies be square or oblong instead of round. Today I am giving two recipes for such cookies.

One is a chocolate cinnamon crips.

* * * * * * *

½ cup butter, 1 cup sugar. Cream together and add 1 beaten egg. Sift together the following ingredients: 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1¾ cups pastry flour, 1 teaspoon salt, 2 teaspoons baking powder, and beat into the creamed mixture.

Mix 2 squares chocolate, and stir into it ¼ cup milk. Stir this lightly into the dough until well-blended. Press into buttered pan or make into a roll and wrap in paraffin paper. Put in ice chest for 2 hours. Put on floured board, slice very thin, bake 10 minutes in a hot oven.

* * * * * * *

One-half cup butter, creamed with 1 cup sugar and 1 egg. Pour ¼ cup boiling water on ½ teaspoon each of baking powder and soda. Add 1 teaspoon salt. Stir into the creamed mixture and also ¼ cup chopped peanuts, walnuts or any preferred, finely-chopped nut meats. Sift in enough flour to make a stiff dough. Make into a roll or pack in buttered bread tin. Put in ice chest for 2 or more hours. Then slice thin, and put in buttered tins and make for 10 minutes in a very hot oven. The crisps can be flavored with ¼ teaspoon lemon extract, or vanilla.

Leafs Defeated in Little World Series Starter

COLUMBUS VETERAN SPEED BALL HURLER SUBDUES LEAFS' HITTERS

7-1 SCORE.

TORONTO, Sept. 29. — (CP) — Lanky, stoop - shouldered "Bear Tracks" Greer, a right-hander with a fireball that is elusive under the floodlights, had the Columbus Red Birds on the road to a second straight little world series championship today. Ike Boone and his Toronto Maple Leafs hoped there would be no more fast balls like Bear Tracks throws up to face in this series.

With Greer hurling sensationally for the American Association champions, Columbus defeated Toronto 7-1 here last night in the first game of the junior series. The International League champions were helpless before the dazzling shoots of the tall pitcher who struck out 10 and never was in danger of losing.

Tonight the Boonemen will attempt to even the series behind the canny hurling of Fred (Sheriff) Blake. Don Brennan, ace of the Toronto corps, was treated roughy by the Red Birds last night. They got to him in the first inning for three runs and pounded him from the box in the eighth with another three-run attack.

Little To Enthuse About

A crowd of 7,000 that came out to cheer on the surprising Leafs, who finished third in the International League standing, then blasted Newark Bears and Rochester from the playoffs, found little to enthuse about.

Brennan started bravely, fanning Myers. But Lou Riggs slapped a double to right and Terry Moore walked. Cullop singled, scoring Riggs and, after Mickey Heath fanned, Sweeney scored Moore with a single. Cullop tried to come home on the blow and made it when Morrissey threw wildly to the plate.

So Brennan was always in arrears. He held on grimly, yielding a single run in the third, before another assault sent him to the showers in the eighth. Sweeney and O'Dea singled in this frame and while Brennan bore down to strike out two the Red Birds were on top of him. They baffled the Leaf infield to put across two runs before Brennan was relieved. Howell's triple and Richardson's single accounted for Toronto's lone run.

The paid attendance was 5,927, a cold-weather crowd. Net gate receipts were $6,705 of which $3,338 went into the player's pool.

Few folks know it but Charley Gehringer is almost as old as his boss, Mickey Cochrane. The Mick was born in April, 1903. Charley first saw light of day a month later, in May, 1903. Yet Gehringer is always referred to as the star "young second baseman" and the Mick as the "veteran maskman."

Why no New York club, always on the lookout for Jewish players, never grabbed Greenberg will always be a mystery. DINTY'S INN WINS LACROSSE GAME

Defeat Millbrook 13-5 in Third Game of Inter-county League.

HOMESTERS HANDICAPPED.

MILLBROOK, Sept. 29. (Examiner Correspondence).—A capacity crowd of fans was again on hand on Thursday evening for the third game of the play-off in the inter-county lacrosse league when Dinty's Inn copped an eight point victory from Millbrook, in a total score of 13-5. The homesters were handicapped by the absence of Creighton and Lebarr, as well as Henry Gray, all three of whom were able to be on the field for only a limited time, as an outcome of the rough house on Tuesday night when the local boys won out in the second play-off game, leaving the standing one each for the competing teams.

The decision to have best two out of three as the shield winners in the play-off was changed at an executive meeting, after Tuesday's game, to best three out of five, and that means two more games next week to decide the final winners.

I. Dundas and B. B. Dawson were referees on Thursday night, and the line-up practically the same except that Donnelly and Freelove took the places on defence of Creighton and LeBarr for Millbrook. The first period ended with a score of 2-2, Nattress and Edmunds taking the count for the homesters and Routley for Peterboough. Another tie, 3-3 marked the end of the second period, McGee copping one for the visitors and Nattress for the home squad.

Heavy checking and faster play marked the third period, Routley adding two more for Peterborough, and in the final fifteen minutes ten goals were scored—McGregor, Cowan, Routley, McDougal and McGee for the visitors—and Nattress twice poking the ball into the net for Millbrook.

Some lively scrimmages, and wordy battles marked the game, and there is a general feeling that too much roughhouse has been evidenced since the play-off started.

U.S. Football Starts Along Battle Front

NEW YORK, September 29. — Football, which ventured timidly into the United States sports picture last week, steps out more boldly today as leading college teams swing into action along a far-flung battle front. With a few notable exceptions major elevens hope to gallop for touchdowns against minor opposition.

No less than six big ten outfits will be making their bows with at least one of them—North-western—assured of a real test. The Wildcats oppose Marquette University at Evanston.

In the east, the program is topped by the W. and J. Pitt engagement at Pittsburgh, although a half-dozen other eastern leaders will be in action against less formidable elevens.

Army's new eleven expects a real test against Washburn College, from Topeka, Kan. Even the gloomy Gil Dobie expects his big Red Cornell team to win from St. Lawrence. Navy and Dartmouth anticipate little difficulty subduing light but ambitious invaders from William and Mary and Norwich.

NEW CHAMPION OF LADIES' GOLF NOW ENTHRONED

Mrs. C. B. Ford of Vancouver Wins Canadian Ladies' Close Title.

CLASSIC CONTEST.

BY EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

SCARBORO GOLF CLUB, Toronto, Sept. 29.—(CP)—It was a long trip from the Pacific Coast to the battlefields of Toronto, but Mrs. C. B. Ford of Vancouver, came with confidence in her heart, fought bravely and efficiently and departed for home today with the prized crown of victory—the Canadian ladies' close championship.

Her triumph in the finals here yesterday, over a resolute rival, Mrs. R. W. Gouinlock, Toronto, by a two up score, climaxed a week of spectacular golf for the far westerner. It also marked the second time she had won the title, an achievement surpassed by only one other player, Miss Ada Mackenzie, the Dominion's ranking star. The Toronto ace was shorn of her mantle in the semi-finas by Mrs. Gouinlock.

The final was one of the most throbbing battles in the history of the classic. Both experienced alternating fortunes in their fight against high wind, and natural hazards. They halved six of the holes on the outward journey with Mrs. Ford enjoying a one up lead at the turn.

First one, then the other held the edge on the home stretch and not until the 17th hole was there a semblance of either wilting under the strain. And it was a bad "break" that sent Mrs. Gouinlock into arrears at this vital hole.

She lashed out a long drive which trickled into a creek to give her opponent the lead. Then on the home hole the Toronto player's game crumbled completely as she drove into the woods and took two more shots to get out, while Mrs. Ford marched on a true line to victory.

CHEVY CHASE, Md., Sept. 29.—Winning five of the six singles matches, the United States Curtis Cup team yesterday repulsed a spirited challenge by England's foremost feminine golfers and successfully defended the international trophy by a point score of 6½ to 2½.

The United States stars crossed the experts by capturing all but one of the half dozen 18-hole singles contests over the Chevy Chase course yesterday afternoon.

Napanee Moves Up Along O.B.A.A. Trail

NAPANEE, September 29. — Napanee Gibbard Bees jumped up on the threshold of the O.B.A.A. intermediate B2 final playoffs yesterday as they eliminated Huntsville, Northern League, 7-6, to capture the fourth round play-down series and run their string of victories to seven straight. Gibbards defeated the Northerners in the first game here on Tuesday afternoon, 1-0, a fluke run in the third inning being the only tally of the game, as Max Leyfesky and Vernie Bishop hooked up in one of the greatest hurling duels ever witnessed here. The pair toed the mound again yesterday, and as the score indicates, it was anybody's game until the end. Bishop attained his 18th birthday last Wednesday. He went through the scheduled season undefeated and has won seven out of eight starts in the playoffs. The score:

Gibbard Bees ..... 031 000 102—7
Huntsville ..... 130 001 001—6
Batteries — Bishop and Stinson; Leyfesky and Asbury.

LOP-SIDE WIN RETURNS TITLE TO KEENE GIRLS

Opening Strong From Start Keene Defeats Westclox 21-9 at Home.

BARRAGE OF HITS.

Keene Girls won the championship of the Ladies' City and District Softball League last night when they trounced the Westclox team 21-9 on their home grounds in a one-sided battle that saw the Rurals perform in top style, to wallop the opposing pitcher for twenty-six clean hits. This win gives the Keene team three wins out of four games played and is incidentally their third championship in four years, they having lost last year to the Clock-makers but won the cup two years in succession before that.

The winners took the lead in the first frame and were never headed, chasing runs over in every frame except the fourth when they went out in order. They nabbed five in the fifth and six in the seventh to pile up a big lead. The clockmakers on the other hand had difficulty connecting, and only threatened in two frames, the fifth and seventh when they scored four and three respectively. Ivan Fletcher used Jean Munro and Marilyn McCarthy on the slab, jockeying them between the pitching and second base whenever one or the other weakened. Mary McCarthy pitched the last innings, holding the opposition hitless and scoreless in that frame.

Grace McCarthy, Irene Short and Roberta Gainor were the top hitters for the winners, Short hitting a homer and three singles. Dot Cocks poled out two homers and a single. Laura Chartren, Audrey Crary and Mildred White were the leading clouters for the losers while Marie Ferguson's only hit was a clean homer.

Mildred White hurled the entire game for the losers, and although she was hit freely and hard, she was not replaced. She fanned one and walked one.

Grace McCarthy was the fielding star of the battle, living up to the reputation which she has earned in previous championship games by making six put-outs, one of these being a sensational running catch in the eighths. Chartren played a great game at the hot corner for the losers and Lois McCarthy in the same position for the winners was right on. Grace Hawkes made a great save in the seventh on a one hand catch. Cards Rest Hopes On Dean Brothers

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29. (AP).—Dizzy and Paul Dean will be the entire Cardinal pitching staff for the remainder of the National League season unless the Cards manage to get the lead to-day, according to Manager Frank Frisch.

Dizzy pitched yesterday with only two days of rest and Paul is slated for mound duty to-day. Then the elder brother may come back again Sunday. In reply to critics who pointed out that the famous pair might be too tired to do their best in a play-off series with the Giants, which will be necessary if the clubs tie for the flag, Frisch said:

"It will do us no good to have the Deans fresh unless we do get into the play-off series."

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, my billydoo this week is a mixture of good and bad news. 1st our seniors, with some help from old Jupe Pluvius, win themselves the Central Ontario title last Sat. by taking the Belleville Nats 4 to 0 in a game that just squeesed into the legal class by the margin of a coupla mins. The Petes had been a little nervous beforehand about meeting Big Chief Johnny Williams, which had shut them out in Belleville on Wed., but as it turned out, it was old Chief Rain in the Face that nearly ruined things for them, although eventually all was swell. The Petes earned their win. They was hot from the start, while Feeney Mills' boys blew up under the pressure and couldn't do nothing right. The result was that the boys started scoring right off the reel, and Belleville was in trouble all the way. At the end of the 4th our lads had 4 markers and them 0, but with a big black rain cloud moving in from the south, the whole thing depended upon getting Belleville's 5th outa the way before the deluge. It was a close call, for just as a fly ball dropped into our Mister Burton's hands for the third out, down come the rain. The home team started their inning, but the downpour got worst and the empires had to call time. They never did get started again, for the ground was too wet to do anything with. It was a brake for the Petes, but they was so much the better team on the day's play that even Belleville didn't do no kicking.

Wed., Mac, we hooked up with G. and W. Grads in Toronto and had quite a tussle, too, the enemy winning 6 to 4. Our boys bust into the ball game like they had never heard of Mister Upper, the Grads' southpaw ace, and crashed through for 3 runs in the 1st frame, and when they opened up again in the 2nd with the same kinda stuff, the southpaw ace was yanked outa there quick and Mister McMullen, a right-hander with a lotta stuff, made a good job of the relief role. Meanwhile our Mister Deyell was having trouble, and when he had got the sacks all populated with not a hand down in the 2nd frame, Mister Kitchen come to the rescue. He looked for a while as if he was going to get out of the hole without much trouble, but a wild pitch let a run in, and then after 2 was out, a couple of errors and 4 timely Grad hits give the Toronto lads 5 runs and a 6 to 3 lead. Mister Kitchen stopped them cold for the resta the pastime, but the damage had been did. The Petes made a gallant attempt to pull the game outa the fire, and had a great chance in the 7th when they filled the bases with only 1 out, but couldn't get the hit that meant a tie score. They was some mighty nice ball playing in that engagement, and, believe you me, it wasn't all played by the Grads, not by a jug full.

The lads ain't out of the hunt yet, old-timer, and mebbe by the time this gets out they'll be even-Stephen with the Toronto folks.

Anyway they ain't no law against hoping.

Sportifully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

CARDS' VICTORY PUTS THEM TIED WITH NEW YORK

Final Two Games of Schedule Finds Battling Down the Stretch.

DEAN HURLS SHUTOUT.

(By Hugh S. Fullerton, Jr., Associated Press Sports Writer)

The weight of the National League's keenest pennant battle since the famous 1908 duel between the Giants and the Cubs rested upon two second division clubs, Brooklyn Dodgers and Cincinnati Reds, as much as upon the pennant-seeking Giants and Cardinals to-day.

The two rivals for the crown were all square following the Cards' 4-0 triumph over Cincinnati yesterday and each had two games to play. St. Louis continuing against the Reds and the Giants facing the Dodgers in their resumption of activities following a two-day lay-off that cost them the lead. If either Cincinnati or Brooklyn could win one of the two games, it might decide the pennant race and the aroused Dodgers were out to do just that.

Brooklyn Peeved

Brooklyn fans, still peeved over Bill Terry's disparaging remarks about their club last winter, were urging Casey Stengel and his men to belt the Giants right out of the race. The club had the same idea about it with its best pair of pitchers, Van Mungo and Ray Benge, ready for duty. Roy Parmelee, who has pulled the Giants out of several holes this season, was Terry's choice for to-day's game, with Fred Fitzsimmons hurling tomorrow. And Terry was confident they would make a good showing following their best.

The St. Louis program was the same as yesterday's in the game which was sliced off the last half game that separated them from first place—Dean and more Dean. The elder of the famous pitching pair, Dizzy, hurled yesterday after only two days of rest and turned in a seven-hit game for his 26th victory of the year and his sixth shutout. To-day Paul Dean was scheduled to go after his 19th triumph and then, if a Sunday victory is still needed, Dizzy is due to work again, regardless of what effect it may have upon his work in a possible play-off to decide the title or in the World Series against Detroit.

Dean Superb

Dizzy couldn't have been much better yesterday. He spread the seven hits over as many innings, never let a runner get past second and rang up a strikeout for every Cincinnati blow. The Cards opened against Bennie Frey in the third, when Manager Frank Frisch doubled with two out and scored on a three-bagger by Joe Medwick, the day's leading hitter. They scored twice in the fourth on blows by Bill Delancey, Ernie Orsatti and Leo Durocher and added a final tally in the seventh when Pepper Martin beat out a hit, moved to third on two infield outs and scored on Medwick's single.

Despite the high hopes of the Dodgers and the Reds for an upset the prospects for a pennant tie were increased by the St. Louis triumph. The race can't possibly be decided before the final games tomorrow and if the clubs finish in the first tie in league history it will take three games of a special post-season series to disclose the champion. The nearest thing to such an occasion the league has ever seen was when the Giants, after suffering from the raids of the Phillies just before the finish in 1908 had to play off a protested game with Chicago after the season ended. They lost that.

Fine Net Minding Wins for Orillia

MONTREAL, Sept. 29.—A jinx and a goalkeeper whose equal has seldom been seen in Montreal combined last night to give the Eastern Canada lacrosse championship to Orillia Terriers as the Ontario titleholders nosed out Verdun Maroons, champions of Quebec, 10 to 8, in a sudden-death game here. Orillia now meets New Westminster Salmon Bellies, Western champions.

By the win last night the Ontario champions kept their record clear. Never has a Quebec winner been able to beat out the Ontarians in the playoffs.

Injury To Sprague Is Blow To Ottawa

OTTAWA, September 29.— Rough Riders were handed a bad break by Old Lady Luck when word came out of their camp last night that big Dave Sprague would be out of the game for four weeks at least, if not for the season.

The former Hamilton Tiger player has a fracture at the base of the spine as a result of an injury in Wednesday's practice, a thorough medical examination has disclosed.

In bad luck all season, Sprague showed in Wednesday's practice he was nearing peak form. The 67-yard run he made just before he sustained his unfortunate injury was regarded by football critics as an indication he would be a great help to the Rough Riders in their Big Four League matches.

One car with five fans came 135 miles from near Peterborough, only to return home a few minutes after reaching here.

Claim Arrests Near In Trunk Murder

DETROIT, Sept. 29 (A.P.). — Chief of Detectives Fred W. Frahm predicts that M. W. Goodrich and his red-haired wife Florence, sought in the hammer murder of Lillian Gallagher, 11, would be captured before Saturday night.

"I have no specific evidence upon which to base this," said the chief, "except the history of the principals we are seeking, and the general history of such cases.

Authorities are convinced that the 26-year-old trap drummer and his wife, after deserting the Warren Avenue apartment, where the Gallaher girl's body was found stuffed in a trunk, fled to Ohio and sought help and refuge in one of several cities where they formerly lived.

Positive information that the Goodrich couple was seen near Akron has led to a concentration of policy activity in such cities as Akron, Youngstown, Cleveland and Norwalk.

MANY FACTORS CREATE PUZZLE OF DOPE SHEET

Writers Admit That The Tangle is Too Involved To Make Selection.

HEATED DEBATE.

(By Alan Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, Sept. 29 (AP)—Dizzier and daffier than the celebrated Dean brothers themselves, the current major league baseball scramble to-day found the Giants and Cardinals absolutey deadlocked in their pennant fight, the Detroit Tigers somewhat fidgety in the background, wondering when the World Series is going to get under way, and the experts groggy from all attempt to figure out where they will be going next.

So many factors are involved and such intense interest is concentrated on the National League fight that most World Series speculation now is just so much shadow-boxing. The statistics are still being poured forth to prove that the Tigers have a big enough edge in batting and fielding to offset any shortcoming they may have in the pitching department, but they may not mean a thing. Quis your favorite expert on the following important questions of the day:

About Stamina

If there's a three-game playoff for the pennant between the Giants and Cardinals, how will their stamina and general resources be affected by their terrific fight, including quick train hops to and from St. Louis? Will the eventual winners be so exhausted that they will be a push-over for the terrible Tigers, or will they be absolutely at the peak of their fighting edge, ready to prove that it was only a question of which National League would get the chance to know down Mickey Cochrane's crew?

On the other hand, will the well-rested condition and peace of mind of the Tigers give them a definite advantage or will they suffer from inaction and a letdown since clinching the American League flag? Will their strategy and pitching plans be upset by not knowing which club they are to tackle in the World Series until a day or two before the big championship starts, or will they be happily relaxed, primed to give their opposition the "Wolverine work"?

Await Action

The heated debate over these stupendous issues, among others, will not be settled until the boys finally swing into action at Detroit, either next Wednesday or, if there is a playoff series, not until next Friday or Saturday.

There will be no attempt to settle them in this corner. It is probably logical to concede the Tigers an advantage by reason of their present freedom from strain, but it has been successfully demonstrated that momentum, no matter how acquired, is difficult to stop. In other words, the impetus of either National League club, gained in a playoff victory, might be sufficient to flatten subsequent World Series opposition.

Paul Dean To Hurl To-Day For St. Louis

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29. (A.P.). — Despite a downpour last night, followed by a slow, cold drizzle this morning, preparations went forward for the third game of the series this afternoon between St. Louis Cardinals and Cincinnati Reds.

Officials of the Cardinals said the game would be played "if at all possible." In the event it is impossible to play to-day, the game will be played to-morrow as part of a double-header.

Manager Frankie Frisch of the National League pennant-chasing Cardinals, stuck by his plan to send Paul Dean to the mound against the last-place Reds, while Big Bill Derringer, a former Cardinal, was expected to pitch for Cincinnati.

If the Petes win to-day's game, we'll be mighty sorry to have to miss their future contests on the O.B.A.A. titular trail. Likewise with the Cogs and Terriers. Oh, well, we'd better grab off the vacash when offered, or the boss may change his mind!

Don't forget that annual meeting of the Peterborough Hockey Club at 7.30 Tuesday in the Chamber of Commerce. There should be a big representation, and everyone interested is invited to attend. The election of officers and other business matters will come up. While nobody asked us, we think there should be few if any changes in the officers. The ones we've had the past two winters made a good job of it—they worked hard, gave the players a square deal, dished up good games for the fans, and have dough ahead.

Keene gals last night won the championship of the Girls' Softball League for the third time in four years. They beat Westclox, 21 to 9, at home in the fourth game of the playoffs, thereby copping the Percy Bond Trophy. The victors pounded Mildred White for twenty-six hits and fielded well behind an assortment of hurlers that included Marilyn McCarthy, Jean Munro and Mary McCarthy. Westclox looked bad, both on the mound and in fielding—and should certainly have changed twirlers before the score mounted. You've got to give the battling Keenesters a lot of credit. They earned the title this year with a good scrappy display of softball. Our congrats to them.

For the interest of the long-distance ball fans here, St. Louis Cards are now tied with N'Yawk for the National League leadership. Both have two more games to play—one to-day and one to-morrow. Meantime, Detroit Tigers are sitting back waiting for the World Series to start. When it does, every game will be broadcast in the greatest commercial hookup of radio stations yet attempted. The Ford Motor Co. will sponsor the broadcast which will include the coast-to-coast chains of the Columbia and the National systems. Ford paid $100,000—$68,000 going to the two loops and 32 G's to the players' pool—for this right.

Regardless of which National League team meets Detroit, we're calling the Tigers to win out. St. Louis will give them a tougher battle than the Giants, but we think the Cochrane clan are better balanced in all departments. As for N'Yawk, they're in a slump and have only Terry, Jackson and Moore doing any real hitting now, Mel Ott having fallen down. They've got pitching just about as good as Detroit, but they have neither the fielding or hitting. The Bengals are all hitting well and getting some great hurling and defensive play. They look good to us.

One car with five fans came 136 miles from near Peterborough, only to return home a few minutes after reaching here." That was tough—we didn't hear ourselves that the game was off till Thursday evening. Seems to be plenty of interest in the series, especially in the Milton district.

The T.A.B.A. has issued the following notice: "Any player who has played under the T.A.B.A. this season and who plays with or against any independent teams shall be suspended and their cases forwarded to the O.B.A.A. with the recommendation that they forward the suspensions to the Ontario Sports Federation for concurrence. This means that if the Ontario Sports Federation suspends any offenders they will not be allowed to compete in any group sports." It's quite a drastic step, aimed directly at the numerous senior ball teams in Toronto now playing a round-robin independent series. While we always favor organized sport, still the T.A.B.A. deserves censure for the way they handled several senior disputes this summer—and the Toronto Association will have plenty of trouble getting started next year.

Dizzy Dean Is So Busy Winning Games That Calf Goes Unroped at Rodeo

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 29 (AP)—Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, senior partner and advertising manager of the curve and speedball firm of Dean and Dean, St. Louis, is not expecting any slump in orders for his products.

Dizzy long since stopped distributing samples and is rushed trying to keep up with the demand. In fact, the head of the Cardinals' pitching company is so tied up in the business of winning ball games he can't even take time off to rope a calf at a local rodeo.

"I just can't do it folks," he sadly explained, in declining an offer last night. "We gotta win the National League title and that's more serious than roping a calf—but I could do it."

So calves went by the board. It was just a few hours after the six-foot-four Arkansas boy delivered an assortment of his slow and fast ones to Cincinnati Reds, blanking them for his 29th victory of the season and sending the rampant Cardinals into a deadlock with New York Giants for the National League lead.

"No Hit" Paul, vice president of the Deans, will have his chance to-day at the Reds, and Dizzy again Sunday. And grandstand experts predict it will continue to be Dean, Dean, Dean and Dean until there is no more cardinal baseball this season.

"I'm not gonna give you a windy line of conversation, but you can tell the folks back home they can bet on Paul and me winning 40 or 45 games this season," brought tolerant smiles when Dizzy predicted it way back in the summer. To-day Dizzy's 29 and Paul's 17, make 47.

Folks are beginning to think Dizzy a hidebound conservative.

JUDD MAY JOIN ST. LOUIS' TEAM IN SPRING CAMP

Star Graduate of O.B.A.A. Ranks Had Successful Season With Springfield.

GIVEN OFFER

INGERSOLL, Ont., Sept. 29 (CP) —The brilliant stretch-drive of St. Louis Cardinals for the National League pennant will be watched in Ingersoll with more than ordinary interest to-day by Oscar "Letty" Judd, for the tall southpaw pitcher will join the Cards at their Spring training camp next season.

Back here from a successful season with Peoria and Springfield, Miss., in Mid-West minor ball, Judd revealed he had been approached by St. Louis after Springfield won the championship with Judd second among the league's batters, besides doing his share in the box.

Big league baseball scouts were first attracted to the lanky southpaw in 1932, when he pitched and batted at a .450 clip to bring Guelph its first Senior Ontario baseball championship just a season after he had hurled his native town of Ingersoll to an Intermediate title.

Chicago Cubs watched him through 1933 as Guelph lost the Inter-County championship to St. Thomas in the play-offs and signed him up. Farmed out to Los Angeles of the Pacific Coast League last Spring, early season found him a little off-stride and he was shipped to Peoria, Ill.

A trade took him to Springfield, Miss., where he finished the season and helped that team to the championship with his batting and pitching. Judd is six feet one inch and weighs 180 pounds with a fine physique built up on the farm near London, where he was born. He played all his amateur baseball near London and Guelph and was married there.

Half-way Mark Passed Campaign Teams Report.

Y. OBJECTIVE IS 600.

The Y.M.C.A. membership campaign got into its real stride when captains of the various teams reported a total of 309 members signed up at the campaign meeting last night. The half-way mark to the objective of 600 members has been passed.

Reports tendered showed that every team has been working hard and getting fine results. Regarded as particularly encouraging to the directors was the fact that, of the members enrolled, 64 were new members. Chairman Rev. Charles D. Daniel was in charge of the meeting and the attendance was good. The chairman was recipient of a number of expressions of regard from the team and R. L. Dobbin, president of the "Y," congratulated all on the record to date.

Division "A" took the honors on reporting 93 members in addition to those reported earlier in the week. The division's point total was 2,755. Division "B" reported 66 members for a point total of 2,630. The team captained by Roy White was high with 32 members to report for a total of 1,020 points. Graham Eastwood's team showed up well again with 28 additional members for a total of 990 points.

The final report meeting is to be held on Monday evening. The campaigners will gather for supper at 6.15 o'clock.

CHAPTER 52

So this was the end! Drew stood staring down at the little letter. She had gone! He would see no more of her. He crumpled the paper in his hand. He was assailed, suddenly, by an awful sense of desolation. The child had left him—Joan whom he loved.

Later, when he went to see Nancy, she was in her cell-like room, dressed and writing etters.

He handed her the note. She read it and the color rushed into her face. "Oh," she cried, "what does it all means?"

"The man who came last night was Giles Armiger. He has been staying in Paris and raked up a lot of old stories about me. He said if I didn't tell Joan, he would. That she had a right to know my past, and all that rot. We had a hot time and a bit of a fight. I didn't give her up easily Nancy."

"You shouldn't have given her up at all. Do you mean you told Joan—everything?"

"I had to. He said if he didn't see the announcement of the breaking of the engagement in the daily press, he would come to Joan and put the whole case before her. Then if she was willing to marry me, he would have nothing more to say."

"And she was not willing?"

"I thought she would be. I told her my past was mine, and my future hers. That I had been different since I had known her."

"But you haven't been different, Drew. You've lost a 'ot at cards, and you've flirted with Rose and with that little Andalusian dancer. Joan tried to shut her eyes to it, but she couldn't be absolutely blind. I've been afraid a dozen times that she'd throw you over. She would if she hadn't been so sincere herself that she hated to face the truth."

"What truth?" stormily.

"That you can't be constant to anybody, Drew."

"I'd have been constant to Joan, I love her."

"Because you have lost her?" she laid her hand on his shoulder, and spoke with sadness. "You love yourself too much, my dear."

He shrank from her touch. "Perhaps if you had had faith in me!"

She shook her head. "That's the ples of weakness, Drew. A strong man has faith in himself."

After a heavy silence, he said: "It remains for me, therefore, to go elegantly to the—devil——"

"Don't be an idiot."

"I might marry Rose."

"If you do, we part company. You don't love her, and she hasn't money enough to pay your debts. Do you know what the breaking of the engagement is going to mean to our financial affairs? Our creditors have held off until after the wedding. If there is to be no wedding . . ?"

He flung up his hands. "If you can see daylight, I can't. I might as well get out as soon as possible."

"Where will you go?"

"Back to New York. You can stay for a bit in Paris."

"You mean that we are—to part company?"

"For a time, old girl," he put his arm about her, "I am best by myself."

Nancy said, softly, "Is it going as hard with you as that?"

"Yes," he stood staring at the floor, "I love her—and I've lost her."

He went away, and when later they joined Rose and her mother in the dining room, he had regained his self-control.

"Where's Joan?" Rose demanded. "She left this morning with Farley," Nancy stated.

Rose looked from one to the other. "What happened?"

"The engagement," said Drew, with an attempt at lightness, "is off. I have been discovered, Rose, as a wolf in sheep's clothing. The lamb has—fled."

That afternoon, as they motored back to Barcelona, Drew told Rose more about it. "I have always had a feeling it would end this way. I am not made for happiness."

"You would never have been happy with Joan."

"I shall never forget her."

Rose did not answer. Her eyes were on the distant mountain peaks. She would make him forget Joan. She would have to play a careful game. But she felt that she held a winning hand.

In Paris, Nancy and the Carters parted company. "Rose will trail Drew back to New York," Nancy surmised, shrewdly, "she knows what she wants, and she intends to get it."

Nancy, in the days that followed, was lonely. She had found a room in a cheap pension and kept out of sight as much as possible. Now and then, however, some of her friends carried her off to dine with them, and it happened that on one of these occasions she was entertained at the big hotel where Giles Armiger was stopping.

Giles was dining that night with the English officer, Alan Vincent, who had told him of Drew's past. He saw Nancy come in, and wondered what had become of her brother.

Vincent had offered congratulations: "I read in the London paper that Hallam's engagement is broken. Did you have anything to do with it?"

"I made him tell Miss Dudley the truth."

"How did he take it?"

"Blustered a bit, and then we came to blows—— It seemed a bit beastly to fight over a girl like Joan. But he brought it on himself."

"Did you see her?" Vincent asked.

"No."

"Why not?"

"I accomplished what I went for. I can wait for the rest."

He said nothing of his promise to Drew. That was between the two of them. He had agreed to Hallam's terms to save Joan. Whether he had saved her for himself had nothing to do with it. It was her happiness which counted.

"She has gone back to New York," he told Vincent, "and Hallam has disappeared . . . His creditors are after him."

"Where's his sister?"

"In Paris."

Alan lighted a cigaret. "I knew her—years ago. There's something rather fine about her, Armiger. She has had a hard life, but she sees straight, which is more than Drew does. He has been a great drag upon her." He was silent for a moment, then confessed, "There was a time when I thought a lot of her. But I couldn't stand Hallam, and she always fought for him, defended him and refused to leave him. That ended things between us. I haven't seen her for years."

"If you will look across the dining room," Giles said, "to that table in the corner, you'll see her now."

"You don't mean?" Alan ejaculated.

"Yes, in the green and silver, with that vivid hair."

Alan turned. "She hasn't changed," he said, after a moment, "she's the same old Nancy, spectacular, startling; glad to have eyes on her."

He left it at that, and they talked of Giles' plans. He was, he said, going into the country a bit, with Scripps and Amelie, and then back to Granite-head—"To my island and my books."

"And the girl?"

"That is on the knees of the gods, Vincent."

After the two men separated, Vincent waited in the lounge for Nancy Hallam. "Do you remember me?" he asked, stopping her as she came through with her friends.

"Of course. It has been years, hasn't it, Alan?"

"Can't we talk a bit tomorrow? Tea? Here? At five?"

"Yes." She went on with a smile for him over her shoulder. And the next day she sat opposite him, very handsome in black, with a close green hat, and an emerald at her throat.

"You have changed," he said. "When I saw you in the dining room I thought you had not. But you are—better-looking, Nancy."

She laughed. "How like you that sounds. You always made me feel so comfortable, Alan."

"I am not saying it to make you comfortable. Years ago you were attractive but now you are rather—splendid."

She liked that. It seemed to her incredible that she should be sitting here talking in this pleasant fashion to the man she had once adored. He had not known she adored him. He had hated Drew, and she had had, of course, to stick to Drew. And that had ended it.

She found herself confiding in Vincent: "There's nothing very pleasant ahead of me at the moment. I don't know whether you have followed Drew's romance. But it blew up suddenly the other day. He was to have married a very rich girl, but they broke the engagement by mutual consent. It leaves us rather at loose ends——" He was aware of a weariness, a sadness, which was most appealing. She had always seemed so self-sufficient, almost unfeminine in her independence.

"Marriage would have meant a lot to Drew," she went on. "I had hoped that with a girl like Joan Dudley he would settle down. And I would have a bit of life of my own. You see, I've always had him on my mind," she gave a hard little laugh, "we are a mercenary pair, Alan, and Joan's money would have helped."

"You are not as mercenary as you think, Nancy. You have linked your strength always with Drew's weakness and they won't balance. I told you that years ago. You could not lift him up—and he would ultimately drag you to his own level."

"Don't," she begged, in a shaking voice, "he's down and out—and unhappy."

"I see," with a sudden impulsive gesture, he laid his hand over hers, "I can't tell you how sorry I am that you should suffer."

There were tears in her eyes. "Thank you," she said, simply, "it's a great help to have you—sorry."

It was late when they parted, and Vincent had the address of the cheap pension in his pocket. "There's no reason why we shouldn't see something of each other, is there?" he asked. "I am going on to London tonight, but I'll be back in a week and I hope that you'll dine with me here."

She promised. He put her in a taxi, and the next morning, flowers came from him—red roses and white heather. Long ago he had sent her flowers like that. The ice around her heart melted a little. She was glad to feel that he was again her friend.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Sunday, September 30

Sunday's horoscope may not be deemed an entirely propitious one, as it seems to be beset with certain depressing and disappointing circumstances calling for wise and clever manipulation. And yet the mind and its workings may be disposed to be distorted, confused and erratic and the speech caustic and trouble-making.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of much confusion and unsettlement both in business and private connections. Employment is jeopardized by quixotic and volatile frames of mind as well as sarcastic, caustic or irresponsible speech. With firm control of these and calm and deliberate activities there may be benefits.

Personal relations may develop irregular angles.

A child born on this day may be talented in many directions but its distorted or irregular mental attitudes and provoking habits of speech should be disciplined and directed in early youth.

For Monday, October 1

Monday's astrological forecast is one showing a fair degree of activity and enterprise in business and workday interests but the emphasis seems to be on social, domestic or affectional affiliations or vocations or avocations of an artistic nature, or those connected with the home or feminine advancement. These should bring much pleasure and a generally happy and prosperous state of affairs.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year in which their social, domestic and romantic interests may claim attention rather than the more commonplace activities. Yet in these there will be a practical and constructive development and those forms of business having to do with the home and feminine interests, or practical expressions of art and culture, should flourish. It should be a pleasant year, with many personal and practical benefits in store. Friendships will enhance these prospects.

A child born on this day may be practical, enterprising but may devote itself to the social, artistic or romantic expressions of its nature.

WINNIPEG, September 29. — It was an ordinary day when five-year old Julia Johnson went out to play on an orrdinary street in Winnipeg.

Five minutes later when her mother called her there was no answer. Since that day April 25, 1928, wide searches through Canada, and across the international boundary into the United States and to far-flung corners of the earth, have failed to even disclose a hint as to what happened her.

The disappearance of Julia in broad daylight to-day stands as Canada's No. 1 child mystery, according to Chief of Police George Smith. Other children have been known to disappear and never have been found, but none has disappeared under such mysterious circumstances.

There was no one else around when Julia went out to play in the front of her home on Austin street, in north Winnipeg. She had never shown tendencies to wander away. She had strictly obeyed her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Anton Johnson, who came to Canada from Poland.

Hundreds of volunteers for several days aided city police in a widespread search of the city for the girl. Boy Scouts lent their aid. River banks were searched. Back alleys were explored. Every nook and corner of the Austin street neighborhood was hunted. But never a trace was disclosed.

Days rolled into weeks and weeks into years. The humble parents maintained their home-side vigil. They scanned newspapers and periodicals from other cities, always hoping to find some little item about a lost child that might lead to the return of their daughter.

One day in March, 1933, Mrs. Johnson believed she had found a clue. Reading a periodical, she saw the picture of a 10-year-old child lost in Chicago. She thought it resembled her daughter, who at that time would have been ten years old. Chicago authorities were communicated with by the police. It was not Julia.

Thousands of letters have been written. Thousands of circulars and pictures have been sent out. Yet none has ever brought an inkling of what happened to Julia. The search is still going on and Chief Smith is still the guiding hand in the endeavor to restore Julia to her parents.

Every year when December brings Julia's birthday, a little observance takes place in the Johnson home, and prayers are said for her safe return. "Somebody must know what happened to the girl," her father once said, "and I'm sure that some day they will be willing to tell.

SUPPLY OF SERUM HELD READY IN LOCAL HEALTH LABORATORY

No Infantile Paralysis Cases Are Yet Reported in City.

PARENTS URGED TO WATCH

Although infantile paralysis has laid its dread hand on more than a dozen communities in Southern Ontario during the past two months, Peterborough has so far escaped infection this season, Medical Officer of Health Dr. G. Murray Fraser said. No case has been reported here up to yesterday.

No cause for extreme alarm exists, yet it is urgent that Peterborough residents keep a watch for its first appearance if the disease should reach this city, Dr. Fraser warned. The spread of the disease in the province has not reached epidemic proportions, yet there are a few cases in municipalities surrounding Peterborough. Four cases in Port Hope and a case in Lindsay are reported under treatment.

Should cases occur in Peterborough, citizens are requested to cooperate with the Board of Health by calling a doctor on the first suspicion of the disease, by notifying immediately the Department of Health office here, and by observing strictly such isolation and quarantine regulations as may be ordered by the Medical Officer of Health.

The symptoms of infantile paralysis are exhaustion, fever, headache, a stiff, sore neck and back, tender muscles and an uneasy stomach. Mothers are urged by the Department of Health to watch for these symptoms as the disease is readily controlled when caught in the early stage. A supply of serum is being kept in readiness in the local laboratory of the Department.

A case of spinal meningitis was treated in a home on King Street here during the past several weeks and, on recovery of the patient, the placard of isolation was removed from the home this morning. Investigation revealed that it was not the epidemic type of spinal meningitis.

ST. GEORGE'S TROOP

Last night St. George's Church reorganized its Scout Troop which is hoped that in the very near future, will be one of the best troops in the city.

Rev. J. L. Hughes opened the first meeting and gave a short and encouraging address to the boys.

G. Houghton is the Scoutmaster while W. V. Hains-Howard will be temporary Assistant Scoutmaster. There were six boys in attendance and they were divided into temporary patrols. A few lively games were played. The meeting was brought to a close by prayer.

Starting next week the Troop will dig right down to hard work in a Scouty way with the hopes that every boy who was present last night will be a holder of the Tenderfoot Badge by the beginning of November.

The meetings are being held on Friday evenings at 7 o'clock prompt in the basement of the church. Any boy of 12 years and up wishing to join this troop is accordingly invited to do so.

SNOW PLOWING TENDERS LET

Invite McQuesten to City When Lakefield Road is Completed.

LOCKS BRIDGE.

Tenders for snow plowing were let by the Board of Works last night as a precaution against the possibility of winter's unseasonal incidence.

The tenders accepted were as follows: No. 2 district, E. S. Beebe, $173; No. 3, Arthur Deal, $190; No. 4, R. Manley; No. 5, John Lynch; No. 6, H. Moncrief; No. 7, James Conroy; No. 8, James Collins.

Mayor Dinnie suggested that the Hon. Mr. McQuesten, Minister of Highways, be invited to visit Peterborough and Lakefield when the new highway north of the city is completed. The Mayor and Alderman Sloan, chairman of the Reception Committee, were appointed to invite the co-operation of the County and Lakefield councils in an informal reception to the Minister in the event of his visit.

Ald. Tuggey moved that a request be sent to Premier Hepburn and Hon. Mr. McQuesten urging that the proposed new bridge at the Locks on No. 7 highway be proceeded with. Ald. Ellis seconded this motion, remarking that the bridge had been promised in 1929.

Ald. McIntyre, chairman of the Fire, Water and Light Committee, was authorized to have a light placed on Monaghan Road adjacent to the Peterborough Wood Products factory if he considered it was necessary. He was given power to act, and also to buy one hundred feet of chemical hose for the Fire Department.

DAL'S TAVERN IS NOW COMPLETED

Newly Modelled Beverage Room Has all the Old World Charm.

COST OF $4,000.

"Dal's Tavern" located at the Grand Hotel was formally opened for business to-day following extensive alterations just completed by the hotel department of the T. Eaton Company, Toronto.

The newly modelled beverage room with its distinctive atmosphere of old world charm was undertaken by Otto L. Dalgleish, manager of The Grand, and the finished result presents something of a nature that is absolutely unique in its class.

Its architectural features conform to traditional design of an old English tavern, complete with raftered ceiling, timbered walls, leaded glass casement, oaken doors and terra cotta tiled floor. The contract which has included installation of a complete new refrigeration system for the keeping of beer stocks at even temperature, was completed at a cost of $4,000.

Mr. Dalgleish acquired ownership of the "Grand" a little over two years ago, and has since expended over $7,000 on improvements. Other recent changes have included the remodelling of the dining room and rotunda, installation of Marshall springs and mattresses in each of the 36 beds and complete exterior redecoration of the premises inclusive of signs and awnings.

The new beverage room to be known as "Dal's Tavern" was designed and executed by Eaton architects and craftsmen with the assistance of local labor. It is the first of its kind undertaken in Ontario, it is stated, although the Eaton Company has other jobs in hand at present of a similar nature.

The room contains a large period fireplace, which along with the electric light fixtures and furniture provides a genuine note of originality.

While most of the furniture is executed in knotty spruce, 'eighths' kegs upholstered in red leather provide seats at two large tables situated near the fireplace and under the window. Ends of 'eights' kegs set into the walls also provide picturesque fixtures for the electric lighting arrangement.

All the lights are so designed as to resemble old fashioned oil lamps in keeping with the general scheme, and the whole has been the object of much favorable comment throughout the day, from the numerous patrons of the beverage room.

An indication reflecting the desire of the management to run the beverage rooms on strictly respectable lines, is contained in a portion of the hotel advertising, which states: "We hope you are a gentleman—if not, we hope we do not see you again."

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 96c to 98c; oats, 35c to 38c; barley, 57c to 60c; corn, 94c to 96c; rye, 57c to 59c; buckwheat, 53c to 55c; malting barley, 68c to 70c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Influenced by enlarged shipments of wheat from the Southern Hemisphere and by weakness of the Argentine wheat market, all grains average lower in price yesterday.

A disposition to be cautious pending to-day's wind-up of September delivery contracts was shown by most traders. Uncertainty as to the contents of President Roosevelt's speech Sunday night was also a restraining factor, and tended to keep price changes to within narrow limits. Rye, however, touched a new bottom price record for the season.

Wheat closed easy at the same as Thursday's finish to ⅛c lower; December, new, $1.03¾; corn, ⅝c off to ¼c up, December, new, 78¾c to 78¼c; oats at ⅝c decline to ¾c advance, and provisions unchanged to a setback of 10c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Top grades of eggs were higher in price, while quotations on white cheese were fractionally easier on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less were yesterday quoted at 26c to 29c a dozen for A-large, up 1 cent; 26c to 27c for A-medium, up 1 cent; 21c for B, and 19c to 19½c for C. Arrivals were 479 cases.

Ontario colored cheese brought 10⅝c to 10½c a pound and Quebec colored was 9¾c to 9¾c a pound, both unchanged. Ontario white sold at 10 cents a pound and Quebec white was quoted at 9½c a pound, each off ¼c. Receipts totalled 4,307 boxes.

On the butter market, fresh No. 1 brought 19¼c a pound in carlots or less, against 19¼c to 19¾c a pound. Small lots to retailers were 20½c a pound for solids and 21½c for prints. Arrivals totalled 604 boxes.

The potato market was steady, new Quebecs being 35c to 45c per 60-pound bag and new N.B. Mountains selling at 50c to 55c per 80-pound bag. Old stock continued to bring 20c to 25c per 80-pound bag.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, September 29. — Scattered buying, credited to export houses, petered out on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange in late trading yesterday, and futures values dropped ⅝c to ¼c under renewed hedging pressure.

The final bell found October wheat at 81⅝c, December at 82½c, and May at 87c. Southern interests were also credited with some selling. Hedging sales totalled 956,000 bushels, an increase from the previous day.

Export business overnight was estimated at 250,000 bushels. The market was stubborn at bottom levels, and further downturns were checked by artificial support.

Argentine wheat shipments for the week totalled 3,750,000 bushels, while Australia moved, 2,880,000 bushels, of which 1,900 bushels went to non-European countries, chiefly the Orient. Cash grains demand was dull. Coarse grains operations were lifeless.

BURNBRAE HAS WINNING HERDS

PROMINENT SHOWMEN

BURNBRAE, September 29. — Burnbrae farmers again held a prominent place in the showring at Campbellford Fair on Wednesday, the dairy cattle and horses from this district gaining many major awards from the judges.

The dairy cattle section was particularly well supplied with Alex. Hume, and Son showing Ayrshires, J. C. Nelson and Sons with Holsteins and Matthews Bros with Guernseys. W. S. Milne and Sons had a nice group of grade cows out while Garnet Kerr, whose farm is just over the boundary into the neighboring community of Petherick's Corners, rounded out the dairy section with his well known show herd of Jerseys.

All of these herds were successful in winning many first places as well as a number of specials. Competition was keen in most of the breeds, particularly Holsteins, with four herds out and six exhibitors, two with only an animal each.

The Nelsons were prominent winners in the male section, while their junior herd swept the board winning in their own classification, and also the special for the best junior herd any breed.

Mr. Kerr had the unique experience of finding a rival exhibitor taking four red tickets on two animals which he purchased from the Kerr herd only a short time ago.

An interested spectator of the dairy judging and Ayrshires in particular, was no less a personage than Wallace Havelock Robb, poet-farmer, and owner of the Abbey-Dawn farm and game preserve, near Kingston. Mr. Robb is well-known to readers of Canadian Country-man, who have followed with interest his running fire of half-serious, half-comic experiences as a poet and a farmer. Holsteins were his first love, but he has dispersed his Black and White herd, and is starting a herd of Ayrshires.

Obituary

VERONICA BROUGH.

TWEED, Sept. 29 (Examiner Correspondence).—Rushed to the General Hospital at Belleville on Thursday morning, two-year-old Veronica Dorlane Brough, of Elzivir Township, North Hastings, passed away yesterday at noon.

The child was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Brough, and had taken suddenly ill.

Five brothers and sisters survive. The child was a member of Flinton Roman Catholic Church. The burial took place on Friday, with interment in Flinton Cemetery.

REV. C. M. CAREW

(From the Fenelon Falls Gazette.)

The passing on Saturday, Sept. 22nd, of Rev. Calvert Morrow Carew, pastor of the Baptist church, came as a great shock to his congregation and to the community at large. Although Mr. Carew had been in poor health for some months, and had been unable to fulfill his duties as minister, his condition had shown improvement until a week previous to his death when he became seriously ill. His death however was unexpected.

A resident of the village for thirteen years, Mr. Carew was well-known and his genial disposition won him many friends outside his own congregation.

Born in Emily Township, the fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. John R. Carew (Sarah Ann Calvert), Mr. Carew was educated at the local Public School, Lindsay Collegiate Institute and McMaster University. He held pastorates in Reaboro, Campbellford, London, Toronto and Fenelon Falls, coming to the village in December, 1930.

He is survived by his widow, two brothers, Samuel B. Carew on the homestead in Emily Township, and George R. Carew, on his grandfather's farm in Emily; also by two two sisters, Mrs. Thomas W. Brien, of [illegible] and Mrs. Alfred Spancy Shaw, of Red Deer, Alta., also by a number of nieces and nephews.

The funeral was held on Monday, September 24th, private service for the family at the parsonage preceding the public service in the church, which was very largely attended. The service was under the direction of the executive of the Union of Regular Baptist churches of Ontario and Quebec. Rev. David Alexander of Waverley Road Baptist Church, Toronto, officiated, and several members of the executive took part, including Rev. Alex. Dobbs, Rev. W. E. Atchison, secretary of the Union, who came from Montreal for the funeral, and Rev. C. J. Loney, of Stanley Avenue, Toronto. Mr. Loney spoke from the text, "And Enoch walked with God, and he was not, for God took him," Genesis 5: 24.

Interment was made in the family plot in Emily cemetery, near Omemee. Pallbearers were deacons of the church, Messrs Frank Smitheram, Robert Eyres, J. R. Wellington, Thomas West, Arthur Ball, and Victor Stewart.

A profusion of beautiful floral tributes from relatives, friends and organizations banked the casket. Several telegrams of sympathy were received by Mrs. Carew, among them being the following cablegram from London, England, from Dr. T. T. Shields, pastor of the Jarvis Street Baptist church, Toronto, which was read at the service:

"The news of Mr. Carew's passing has overwhelmed me and I mourn with you the loss of my dearest friend for thirty years.

"I have known him to be the noblest type of minister, able, true, faithful, unchanging, and withal, the very incarnation of graciousness.

"My personal bereavement is second only to yours. Mr. Carew was the most sterling friend I have known in my public life, and I grieve my absence on this occasion.

"If flying would make it possible for me to be present I should certainly be with you. I earnestly commend you to the Great Comforter."

To Be Groomsman

H.R.H. THE PRINCE OF WALES

Edward, Prince of Wales, the world's best-known bachelor, will in all likelihood be best man at the state wedding in Westminster Abbey when his younger brother, Prince George, marries Princess Marina. Their Majesties, King George and Queen Mary, will drive to the Abbey in state, while the heir to the throne will accompany his brother in a separate conveyance.

WARSAW

There was a good attendance at the United Church Women's Association in the S. S. room on Thursday afternoon, Sept. 27. Mrs. Weller presided, after devotions and routine business reports of the various committees were given. As some dishes are broken and some of the silver is lost it was decided to replace the losses and purchase a few more table spoons. After tea was served by Mrs. Ulrich Payne, Mrs. W. S. Anderson and Mrs. Allan U. Payne.

Rev. J. W. Wilkinson attending meeting of Presbytery in Peterborough on Thursday.

Mrs. J. A. Crowe is spending a few days with her daughter, Mrs. E. Adamson in Norwood.

Mrs. Lillie is improving very much.

Mr. and Mrs. David Armstrong and Miss Armstrong, Keene and Mr. and Mrs. John Kerr, Peterborough called on relatives near Warsaw on Thursday.

Corn cutting is in full swing. The silos are not so full as last year. There are none of the extra good crops, though what was not frosted is fairly well cobbed.

The English line road is being straightened and widened. A heavy coat of crushed stone will go on. The stone crusher is at the grave pit.
